PHYSIOLOGICAL ACTION OF TANLAC EXPLAINED

World's Leading Authorities Show Just What Tanlac Really Is and Explain Effect of Each of Ten Ingredients on the Human System. Power of Medicine Conclusively proven.

A day never passes but what thousands of people ask the questions: What is Tanlac? Why its phenomenal success? Why do we hear so much about it? and Why has this preparation so far out-striped all other medicines of its kind?

The answer to these questions is easy and can be explained in just one word—merit. Tanlac is scientifically compounded and represents years of work study, experimentation and research by some of the foremost chemists and pharmacologists of America.

The Tanlac formula is purely ethical and complies with all National and State pure food laws. It is purely vegetable and is made from the most beneficial roots, herbs and barks known to Materia Medica. The Tanlac Laboratories are among the largest and most modernly equipped in this country

Ten Ingredients in Tanlac

Altogether, there are ten ingredients in Tanlac, each of which is of recognized therapeotic value.

In referring to one of the more important ingredients of Tanlac, the Encyclopedia Brittanica says: "It has been the source of the most valuable tonic medicnies that have ever been discovered."

In referring to other of the general tonic drugs contained in Tanlac the 13th, Edition of Potter's Therapeutics, a standard medical text-book states that "they impart entire system including all organs general tone and strength to the and tissues."

This same well-known authority in describing the physiological action of still another of the ingredients of Tanlac, which is of value in treating what is commonly knwn as a "run-down condition," uses the following expression:

"It is highly esteemed in loss of appetite during convalescence from acute diseases.

There are certain other elements in Tanlac, which, because of their influence upon the appetite, digestion, assimiliation and eliminatiou, improve the nutrition and vital activity of all the tissues and organs of the body and produce that state of general tonicity which is called health.

The United States Dispensatory makes the following comment regarding another ingredient:

"It may be used in all cases of pure debility of the digestive organs or where a general tonic impression is required."

There are certain other ingredients described in the Dispensatory and in other standard medical text-books, as having a beneficial action upon the organs of secretion, whose proper functioning results in a purificatin of the blood streams pasing through them. In this manner, objectionable and poisonous ingredients of the blood are removed and the entire system invigorated and vitalized.

Tonic and Body Builder

Tanlac was designed primarily for the correction of disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. At the same time, however, it is a powerful reconstructive tonic and body builder, for it naturally follows that any medicine that brings about proper assimiliation of the food and the thorough elimination of the waste produts must, therefor have a far-reaching and most beneficial effect upon the entire system.

Tanlac is sold in Charlottetown by Reddin Bros., and by leading druggists.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE P. E. ISLAND UNITED BAPTIST ASSOCIATION

The fifty fourth annual meeting of the P. E. Island United Baptist Association met in the East Point Baptist Church at Kingsboro on Thursday evening, June 30th, 1921, with Rev. A. K. Herman of Summerside Moderator in the chair.

The delegates were very kindly welcomed by Rev. W. R. MacKalker, Hazelbrook replied on behalf of those assembled from other churches. Rev. H. G. Mellick preached a strong sermon on consecration to a large audience.

Friday Morning

Following a devotional service conducted by Lic. Kaempton a welcome was extended by the Moderator to new ministers and their wives. The following are some of the visitors invited to seats in the Association: Dr. and Mrs. W. L. Archibald, Rev. E. E. Mason, Miss Matie Clark, Mr. E. A. Therrien, and Rev. M. C. Machum. The Moderator named a nominating committee with Rev. C. R. Freeman, chairman. The first report was that on "Baptist Minister's Annuity Fund" by Rev. C. R. Freeman who presented the matter very clearly urging the younger men in the ministry to take advantage of the new plan and urging all ministers to take advantage of the group insurance which is now available if the churches will back up the scheme. The report on "Temperance and Moral Reform" written by Mr. Robert Jenkins was read by the clerk. The discussion on this report brought out the information that the Baptist churches were realizing their responsibility to the community and were standing for the great principles essential to the common good of all. Mrs. J. A. Clark read a very interesting report on Sunday Schools pointing out the need for more trained teachers and the opportunities that there now is for the boys and girls at the Summer Camps for training in leadership. Rev. F. A. Hubley read his report on "Home Missions" the discussion on this report was left over until after Rev. E. E. Mason's address.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON

The Association was handed over at 2.30 p. m. to the United Baptist Woman's Missionary Union for their annual meeting. The attendance was good and many hopefull and inspiring reports were given and read. Summing them up we may say that the ladies have made splendid progress along all lines of their work. Miss Mattie M. Clark, who has just returned from India gave the Missionary address to the afternoon. The audience was deeply interested as she told of the work in that wonderful land and more particularly of the work carried on by she and her sister Dr. Zella M. Clark at Sompet the most Northern Telegu field. J. A. Clark presented the needs of the P. E. Island Protestant Orphanage to the Association making his appeal for the continued support of this most worthy cause to the ladies who do not forget the children. A Field Treat was prepared in the form of a picnic in Mr. Robertson's field near the shore which was greatly enjoyed by all. The report of the nominations committee was as follows: Moderator, J. A. Clark; Vice-Moderator John Smallman; Clerk, Rev. W. R. MacWalker; Asst. Clerk, P. C. Kaempton; Treasurer, Alexander Scott; Press correspondent, J. A. Clark; Home Missions, Rev. C. R. Freeman; Church Finance, R. H. Jenkins; Minister's Annuity Fund, Rev. C. A Britten; Temperance and Moral Reform, Rev. James Neilson; Grand Leigne, Rev. R. W. Lindsay; Western Missions, Rev. H. G. Mellick; Education, Wilfred Boulter; Denominational Literature, Rev. F. A. Hubley; Foreign Mission, A. D. Matheson; Associational Sermon, Rev. R. W. MacWalker; Alerlate, Rev. A. K. Herman; Sunday Schools, Dr. A. W. Leard; Delegates to Convention, J. A. Clark and John Smallman; Committee on resolutions, J. P. Gordon, Rev. F. A. Hubley and George Wood.

Two instructive and interesting addresses were given Friday evening by Dr. W. L. Archibald on Education and by Rev. E. E. Mason on Home Missions.

THE OUTLAW

The Story of a Girl Who Didn't Want to Marry

By ETHEL LLOYD PATT.

Chapter XXIX

The day after Dr. Parker and Hugh Trotter had been to see mother, and had told her that she was really ill and needed a long rest, I went in to the city to fill an engagement with the Champion Film Company.

This time I went half-heartedly. I was very depressed by what Dr. Parker had said about mother. I was in despair at the thought of how much money it would take to give her the necessary care.

To look to my brutish, hard-drinking father for assistance I knew was hopeless. To be sure, there was a chance of my earning $9 to $12 a week, I thought, with the moving picture company, but a fair slice of this was required for my railroad fare and luncheons.

As it happened, we who had the small parts in this particular film had to wait for the dressing rooms to be cleared. Another picture had just been filmed, and another company of actors and actresses were dressing for the street.

I was tired. My weary thoughts had kept me awake most of the night. So, instead of joining the other girls at one corner of the studio to chatter, I went over and sat down upon a roll of carpet. The box which took the place of a dress suit case for me, and in which I carried my mother's madeover evening gown and my other things, was at my feet. I sat with my chin on my palm. My eyes were fixed vaguely on space. In imagination I saw the thin, tired face of my mother, with its brave smile. I wanted so much to help her.

I was so lost in thought that I didn't realize the director had come into the room with another man. I realized even less that they were staring at me, and talking in undertones. I woke from my reverie at the sound of my name.

"Miss Birney," somebody was saying, "will you step into the office please?"

I got up immediately and stooped to get my box.

"No; leave that there," said the director. "You can come back for it."

"Miss Birney," said the director, when we reached the office, "this is Mr. Dayton, president of the company. He wanted to talk to you."

I looked at Mr. Dayton inquiringly.

"It's like this," he said, and shifted his cigar from one side of his mouth to the other, "we've been looking for a certain type for a very good film we have, Miss Birney. It's the story of a Japanese girl—a little dark thing like you. Now, of course, you're no actress, and you haven't even any experience, but you look the part. If you're bright at all, we could teach you. We'd be willing to put in our time in speculation to try some of the film, if you wouldn't get a swelled head over it and want a lot of money. I think if we pay you $3 a day, the way we have been paying you, and give you your chance, we'll be acting pretty handsomely by you—don't you?"

My mind was beginning to work again. Almost at the first sentence I had begun to thing rapidly. Of course, a thrill of pleasurable excitement had swept over me. I had come to me at once that there was my chance—the chance I had longed for.

But then came a little flash of common sense, too. I realized that, if I was worth some special picture, I ought to be worth some special money. I steadied my voice as best I could.

"I'd like the chance to learn," I said, "but I don't think it's fair to pay me only $3 a day. I think it's worth more than that."

Mr. Dayton turned to the director with an angry gesture.

"You see? Isn't that like 'em?" He said. "They think we're made of money. Give 'em one word of encouragement and they want to bleed you!"

"Oh, no!" I interrupted, "I don't want to bleed you. I only want what I think is fair. I'm not being very well paid now. If you keep me busy every day, I can only earn $18 a week. It seems to me, if I'm at all clever and can do what you want, the work ought to be worth more than that."

"Well, it ain't," said the director, with an air of finality. "Take it or leave it."

Something in his tone angered me too much for my reason. As a matter of fact, of course, $18 a week to me seemed an exorbitant sum. But the way in which it had been offered me hurt my pride. I turned from the director with a gesture.

"Thanks," I said, "I think I'll—"

"Here! Hold on!" said Mr. Dayton. "How about twenty-five a week? Twenty-five a week while you're learning—working or not! Lord! You couldn't earn that anywhere else in the world!"

Suddenly it came to me quite clearly that these men were trading on my ignorance; that probably the work was worth a great deal more; that if they guessed how much I needed the money, they would give me as little as possible. Where as, if they thought I didn't need it and would hold out for a fair salary I would win in the end.

It was a hard thing for me to do. I feared so much to lose the money that would mean the very freedom from care for mother, which at the time, was the chief air of my life. But—

"Twenty five dollars a week, whether I'm working or not"—I said slowly—"I don't know. I'll have to think it over. I'll let you know tomorrow."

And, with as much dignity as I could muster. I turned and walked from the office. As I closed the door, I heard the director say:

"Well, I'll be darned! I never knew that little kid had that in her!" (He laughed) "She'll get away with it, too," he said.

Printers Wanted

$36. and bonus per week or piece work. Compositors and Linotypers wanted who would like to work in an open shop—a shop that never acknowledged either Masters' Association or Unions throughout its 77 years' existence—and would like to co-operate in the publication of papers continuously published at a "loss" in the public welfare. Our men are obeying the dictation from Indianapolis, U. S. A., in walking out on June 30th, as we cannot agree to shorten the 48-hour week or increase the minimum pay. The publishers of the undersigned papers work longer hours and without remuneration of salary or dividend, and they want to have about them men and women who can enter into the spirit of their work joyfully. Better than Union pay and permanent positions are open to men or women who exceed the "dead line." Opportunity for typewriter operator to learn machine in home town and come to us. A character reference from your minister and other references will help us to know something about you. But write us fully about your capacities and length of experience, age, whether married or not, your health and education, etc. John Dougall & Son, Publishers of the Montreal "WITNESS," "WORLD WIDE," and "NORTHERN MESSENGER," Montreal, Que.
