

NOTICE

Whilst we have advanced our prices half cent per lb. we wish to advise farmers against killing hogs before they are properly finished. There is practically no demand for underweights at present time and as regards heavier hogs no matter what weight if thin the product is inferior and not wanted even at greatly reduced prices.

Holles stared, suddenly hopefully, and yet not daring to yield entirely to his hope.

"Your grace does not mean that you . . . that you would do this for me?"

His grace's smile grew broader, kinder. "But, of course, my friend. If I am to employ you as I hope I shall, so much would be a necessary preliminary."

"Your grace!" Holles bounded to his feet. "How to thank you?"

His grace waved him back again to his chair. "I will show you presently, my friend. There are certain conditions I must impose. There is a certain task I shall require of you."

"Your grace should know that you have but to name it."

"Have you ever heard of Sylvia Farquharson?"

Surprised, it was a moment before the Colonel answered him.

"Sylvia Farquharson?" he echoed, musing. "I've heard the name. Oh! I have it. That was the lady in the sedan-chair your grace rescued yonder in Paul's Yard on the day we met. Aye, aye. I heard her named at the time. A baggage of a lady across from the Duke's House, I think. But what has she to do with us?"

"Something, I think—unless the stars are wrong. And the stars drawled with a mildly humorous inflection.

"But in such a matter your grace's own vast experience should surely serve you better than could I."

In his eagerness, the Duke took him literally, never heeding the sarcasm.

"My experience will be there to guide you."

"I see," said Holles.

"I'll tell you more precisely how I need you—where you can serve me."

And Buckingham proceeded to inform him to the well-equipped house in Knight Ryde Street, which he now desired Holles to take it, he was to make the necessary arrangements to carry the girl thither on the evening of Saturday next, after the last performance at the Duke's House.

"Taking what men you need," the Duke concluded, "it should be easy to waylay and capture her chair as it is being borne home. We will consider that more closely if the service is one that you are disposed to accept."

The Colonel's face was flushed. He felt his gorge rising. At last his anger mastered him, and he heaved himself up to confront the handsome profligate who dared in cold blood to make him this proposal.

"My God!" he growled. "Are you led by your vices like a blind man by his dog?"

The Duke stepped back before the sudden menace of that tone and mien. At once he wrapt himself in a mantle of arrogance.

"I warned you, sir, that I will suffer no heroics; that I will have no man play Bobadil to me. You asked service of me. I have shown you how I can employ you."

"Service?" echoed Holles, his voice almost choked with anger. "Is this service for a gentleman?"

Economical for Cooking

THERE is no waste with Carnation Milk. It stays fresh in the can indefinitely and for several days when opened. It serves in place of cream at breakfast and later in the day will add richness to your cooking.

Carnation is just pure fresh milk, evaporated to double richness, kept safe by sterilization. By adding a little more than an equal part of water you have milk of natural consistency for every milk use.

Order several tall (16 oz.) cans or a case of 48 cans from your grocer.

Try this recipe and write for your copy of the Carnation Cook Book containing 100 tested recipes.

DEVIL'S FOOD CAKE: 4 egg yolks, 2 cups sugar, 1/2 cup water, 1/2 cup Carnation Milk, 1/2 cup butter or substitute, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 4 egg whites, 2 1/2 cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 4 squares unsweetened chocolate, 1/4 teaspoon vanilla.

Cream the butter or substitute, add the sugar gradually, then the well-beaten egg yolks. Add alternately the milk, diluted with water and flour mixed and sifted with baking powder and salt. Add melted chocolate and vanilla, then the stiffly-beaten whites of eggs. Bake in a loaf from 45 to 50 minutes. This recipe serves from twelve to fifteen people.

Laxatives do not overcome constipation

LAXATIVES and cathartics provide temporary relief only, at the expense of permanent injury. In time, says an eminent physician, an almost incalculable amount of harm is done by the use of pills, salts, mineral waters, castor oil and the like.

Some laxatives, according to an intestinal specialist, contain poisons which affect the stomach and intestines, resulting in grave disorders. Certain laxatives are a direct cause of piles.

Medical science, through knowledge of the intestinal tract gained by X-ray ob-ervation, has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Not a Medicine

Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water it is harmless.

Get rid of constipation and avoid disease by adopting the habit of internal cleanliness. Take Nujol as regularly as you brush your teeth or wash your face. For sale by all druggists.
