Mystery crash Of Nazi planes In Portugal

By John P. McKnight
Associated Press Staff Writer

LISBON, June 15 —(AP)— Three German warplanes and a fourth of unannounced nationality have crashed mysteriously in the Spanish frontier zone of Southern Portugal, it was announced today.

Presumably the planes crashed during the night, at least two of them falling in flames while a third caught fire after it crashed. Several bodies were found in the wreckage.

They plowed into open fields of the back country about three miles from the village of Amarelejа which itself is only about five miles from the border.

Near the wreckage two opened parachutes were found, indicating that the crew of at least one plane had bailed out and upon landing had vanished into the countryside.

There were no further details in the first report from Amarelejа but Lisbon sources concluded there had been an air battle over Portuguese or Spanish territory.

The place where the planes crashed is about 200 miles northwest of Gibraltar and nearly 500 miles from the nearest German-occupied territory in France.

A German attack on a British convoy in the Atlantic west of Gibraltar was claimed in Berlin but the regular high command communique, which frequently fails to cover events immediately preceding its issuance, did not mention the aerial attack.

A dispatch from La Linea, Spain, which faces Gibraltar, said that two warplanes of unidentified nationality ran a gauntlet of anti-aircraft fire Sunday morning to fly over two British aircraft carriers, a battleship and a flotilla of destroyers as they entered Gibraltar harbor.

One dipped fairly low over the warships but climbed again and turned away with the other plane when anti-aircraft fire started. No bombs were dropped.

British Subs Sink seven Axis vessels

By Holand Norgaard
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, June 15 —(CP) — British submarines were officially announced Saturday to have sunk seven axis vessels and damaged three others in the Mediterranean and fresh blocs were recorded against German efforts to get Nazi surface raiders loose in the Atlantic.

"Attacks not only have been carried out at sea," the admiralty said of the Mediterranean warfare, "but our submarines have sought out the enemy and destroyed him in his harbors."

By gunfire or torpedoes, British underseas craft raiding axis communication lines between the Italian island of Lamvedusa and the Aegean sank an armed Italian trawler, four schooners, a large supply lighter and a fully-laden supply ship of about 1,000 tons.

In other raids, an Italian armed mechant cruiser and two tankers, of 5,232 and 8,000 tons, were damaged by torpedo hits, and the largest was "almost certainly" sunk.

Harbors of Lamvedusa, which lies south of Sicily; Bengasi, Libya; and the Aegean island of Mytilene were listed as the scenes of much of this activity. The period covered was not made public.

Elsewhere, berths of Nazi warships at Brest again were bombed heavily Friday night and early Saturday, and the seventh ship from the sunken Bismarck's flotilla was destroyed.

Britons generally assumed that a northbound German pocket battleship torpedoed amidships in a plane attack off Norway Friday probably would be out of commission for months.

Neither the air ministry nor the admiralty offered further word on this 10,000-ton target of coastal command fliers—apparently either the Admiral Scheer or the Leutzow—which was last reported nosing homeward at a third of her normal speed of 26 knots.

Ottawa police Tangle with soldiers

OTTAWA, June 15—(CP)—Fists and night-sticks were brought into play Saturday night when 12 Ottawa policemen tangled for more than an hour in the lower-town section of the capital with more than 30 men from the Cape Breton Highlanders, stationed at nearby Connaught Ranges.

There were numerous black eyes and bruises but nobody was seriously injured.

Five soldiers, Pte. Neil Curry, Alex McDougall, G. White, Michael Curry and A. R. Gillis, were turned over to military police when the fray ended.

Police said the rumpus apparently started when four soldiers, having won a box of candy at a carnival tried to sell it to a colored man who wasn't much interested. When his resistance to their salesmanship continued they began to pummel him.

Constable Thomas Daley, Ottawa Roughriders football star, rushed to the colored man's aid but the four soldiers were joined by about 30 more army men.

Eleven more constables joined the fray and, with night sticks swinging the police gained control of the situation.

Six Danish ships Go into service For U. S. today

WASHINGTON, June 15 —(AP) —The maritime commission announced today that six Danish ships would be placed in active service of the United States merchant fleet tomorrow. They are among 84 foreign vessels tied up in American waters which were taken into protective custody some time ago.

The names of the owners were not announced pending completion of negotiations for payment of compensation.

The commission said it plans to take over the remainder of the idle foreign ships, which include 23 Italian and two German, as fast as possible. The six Danish ships were selected as the first to go into active service, an official said, because they were in condition and "we had to start somewhere."

Officials were non-committal as to whether any additional ships would be released to Britain as a result of return of the foreign ships into active service.

Legislation authorizing the government to requisition these ships and put them into operation was enacted by congress two weeks ago. It requires that "just compensation" be given the owners.

The six Danish ships will be the first requisitioned under this legislation. They are the motor ship Nora and the stamships Marna and Jonna, now in New York; the steamships Rita Maersk and Herta Maersk at Boston; and the steamship Jutta, at Portland, Me.

The gross tonnage and speed of the vessels:—

Nora, 2,937, 14 knots; Marna, 1,700 12 1-2 knots; Jonna, 1,517. 12 1-2 knots; Rita Maersk, 1,883, 11 knots; Herta Maersk, 1,820, 11 1-2 knots; Jutta, 1,549, 12 knots.

In another phase of its activities, the maritime commission predicted Saturday that the rapidly expanding shipbuilding facilities in the United States will turn out 1,250,000 deadweight tons of merchant ships this year, with an increase to 3,500,000 tons in 1942 and 5,000,000 in 1943.

In its first comprehensive summary of a vast three-way construction program, the commission placed the cost of 705 merchantment "built, building or under contract" at $1,625,000,000, with an additional investment of $85,000,000 in new facilities, bringing the total cost to $1,711,000,000.

Divided into three parts, the construction program now includes:—

1. Long-range program calling for 500 ships in a 10-year period. This now includes 283 ships, of which 91 have been delivered Except for the liner America, recently taken over by the navy all contracts have been let since Jan. 1, 1938.

2. Emergency national defence program calling for 200 "ugly duckling" cargo carriers. Of approximately 10,000 deadweight tons and designed for mass production, the first "ugly ducklings" are expected to be completed in November.

3. Construction of 222 vessels for transfer to Great Britain under the lend-lease act. This program includes 112 "ugly ducklings," 72 high-speed tankers of 16,000 deadweight tons, 10 C-1, 22 C-2 and 6 C-3 cargo boats. The "C" boats, among the world's finest of their class, are the backbone of the long-range program. They range from 7,500 to 12,595 deadweight tons.

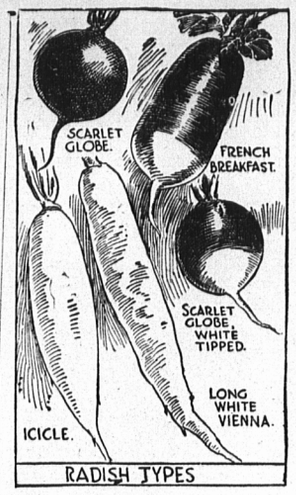
Late Sowing Gives Some of Garden's Best Crops

Planting season over? Not at all. For early crops you must plant early; but late crops are desirable also, and seeds planted now will grow so much faster that the harvest will not be relatively as late as was the seeding.

Annual flower seeds sown by June 10 of the quick germinating varieties, such as zinnias, poppies, nasturtiums, marigolds, ageratum and cosmos will produce flowers by August. In the vegetable garden there are many seeds which should be sown for late crops.

Beans should be sown at intervals until July to provide a successon of young plants, which will yield much better than the old ones in late summer and early fall. Carrots and beets from summer sowings will be better flavored and more tender than the old, fully matured vegetables which may be harvested late from early sown seeds. Cauliflower and brussels sprouts are fall crops, and seeds should be sown now for plants to be transplanted.

There are two salad crops which are at their best in the fall—endive and Chinese cabbage. The endive or chicory, sown now and transplanted in midsummer so that each plant has a foot of room in the row, will produce crisp, curly leaves, which are bitter until frost comes and then make the most delicious salad of the season. Chinese cabbage is difficult to grow in the summer, because it runs to seed, but in the short days of autumn it makes beautiful, elongated heads of crisp leaves having a suggestion of cabbage flavor which are delicious cooked or raw.



RADISH TYPES

Early, Midesason and Late Radishes, for a Continuous Harvest.

Vegetable crops which should not be sown in June include peas, early radishes, lettuce and spinach. All these require cool weather and you may sow very early kinds in August, so they will mature in the autumn. Sweet corn is a crop for late sowing. Early kinds may be put in as late as July 1, and the finest corn is produced by late sown seed.

Jam for Red Cross

Three hundred thousand pounds of Canada's fruits will be sent to Britain in the form of jam by the Canadian Red Cross Society during the season of 1941. Red Cross Branches and the Women's Institutes in fruit growing districts all over Canada are now organizing canning kitchens to preserve the fruits this summer and fall. Cans, labels and cartons are being supplied by the Red Cross and the Women's Institutes members are giving the fruit, sugar and labour.

This year's undertaking has the support of every province in the Dominion and has been greatly stimulated by the success of last season's jam project when the women of Ontario and British Columbia canned 125,000 pounds of fruit most of which was shipped overseas for British civilians and military hospitals. Women's church and club groups throughout the country have also offered their cooperation. Colonel John A. Cooper, of the Canadian Red Cross Society is national chairman of the Jam Committee. Mrs. Allan Stevenson, Red Cross Nutrition Service, is supervising the project under the direction of a national committee.

In British Columbia and some parts of Southern Ontario, where the fruit season commences early, strawberries have already been canned in local kitchens by groups of volunteer women. Great quantities of raspberries, red currants, gooseberries, blackberries, peaches, plums, grapes and apples will be made into jam or jelly as the summer advances. Red Cross Branches outside the fruit belt have offered money or sugar in support of the jam project and the Western provinces will contribute honey instead of fruit.

Great Britain has already signified that all the jam that can be shipped will be greatly in demand since jam is now rationed at one-half p[illegible] month.

BR[illegible]ges of £52 ($231.40) were awarded a 17 year old maid, against her employer, a vicar's wife, who "had suspicions she had a male in the house when the vicar and I were absent."

Braves Wolf's De n To Capture Cubs

Crawling on his stomach nine times into a wolf's den, Victor Powell, 13, of Toronto, was bitten three times by snarling cubs before he got all nine out. The wolf's den was almost dug out when Victor announced he was going in, in spite of the warnings of Duke Moore, Moore's wife and a driver. With only his heels sticking out each time the boy was pulled out by Moore, and each time he held a spitting, biting wolf cub in his hands. The boy originally set out, with his dog, Trix, to shoot a big she-wolf that had attacked the dog in the bush. He stumbled on the cubs gambolling, and they scrambled into the hole. If the cubs are three months old, as is thought, the bounty is $25 each; otherwise it is $5. Moore is keeping the cubs until the game warden decides what should be done with them.
