SHORT COURSE OPENED YESTERDAY.—About 210 students attended classes at the opening of the extension course in teacher training methods at Prince of Wales College yesterday. Classes began at 8.30 a. m. Out of the total number there were approximately 160 first year students seeking a second class license, the remainder were studying for a first class teacher's license. This is the last year that licenses to teach will be granted to students completing only one year at the institution. According to a plan which the government intends introducing next year students will be required to study at least two years at Prince of Wales College before being granted a license.

GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY OF ORDINATION—Fifty years ago today Rev. Alexander MacAulay, Roman Catholic parish priest at St. Peter's district school, was ordained to the holy priesthood in Montreal. His early education was obtained in St. Peter's and later at St. Dunstan's University. He attended the Seminary of Quebec before his ordination. Following his ordination he was stationed at Charlottetown as assistant priest at St. Dunstan's Cathedral. He was appointed Secretary to the Bishop and later given charge of Hope River parish. Over a quarter of a century ago, Father MacAulay was transferred to his native parish where he has remained ever since. Although the golden anniversary of his ordination is today, the observance of it will take place sometime during the summer—probably in July.

PRINCE EDWARD : TWO DAYS : FRIDAY & SATURDAY

All-Star Cast Of Top Comics In Roach Film At Prince Edward

Hal Roach's hilarious screen comedy romance, "The Housekeeper's Daughter," filmed from the best-selling noval of the same name by Donald Henderson Clarke, opens today at Prince Edward Theatre for a two days' run. Joan Bennet, again appearing as a dark-tressed glamour girl, and Adolphe Menjou, appearing as a screwy newspaperman, head the imposing cast of "The Housekeeper's Daughter."

The story of "The Housekeeper's Daughter" concerns the mad and merry antics of a group of amateur and professional sleuths who try to solve the mysterious murder of Gladys Fontaine, a Broadway play girl, in the swanky town house of the socially prominent Randall family. In this hilarious group, whose various members are working at cross purposes, are the beautiful and alluring housekeeper's daughter, the scion of the Randall family, two screwy newspapermen, a mob of zany gangsters and a psychopathic homicide. A smash climax is provided when Adolphe Menjou, as the crack news hound solves the murder after he has terrorized a gang of underworld hoodlums in a burst of firecracker glory.

Joan Bennett, as the housekeeper's daughter, arouses the romantic interest of Robert Randall, when she runs away from the underworld to join her mother who is housekeeper for the wealthy family. Young Robert Randall, who hasn't joined his family for the summer, becomes a newspaperman and stumbles on the first clue in the baffling murder case while making the rounds of the night clubs with the two seasoned news hounds, Adolphe Menjou and William Gargan.

GORT LINE HOLDS

..Behind the flood defences in the Dunkirk area, Allied forces have brought the Nazi drive to a halt and there were indications June 1 that the supreme Allied war council might decide to maintain that foothold on the north coast. In Calais, it was revealed, a small Allied garrison is still holding off fighting near Abbeville, where French and B. E. F. have gained footholds north of the Somme.....

EASTERN STEAMSHIP LINES

"I just wish to God I could get over there again for a few hours at least...." It was in this way that Norman Millard, father of Douglas Millard, Toronto, asked for a chance to avenge the death of his 19-year-old son, reported killed in action while fighting with the British expeditionary force. Douglas is believed to be the first Canadian killed with the B.E.F. although other Canadians have died serving with the Royal Air Force. Himself a veteran of the last war, enlisting with the 3rd Battalion when only 15, Mr. Millard said he had been nervous about his boy during the recent week, since he had not heard from him for a couple of months.

GOT BAPTISM OF FIRE

A young Canadian Naval Reserve sub-lieutenant from Oakville, who, now back in Engand, told how he received his baptism of fire in the heroic evacuation from the Flanders pocket, is believed to be either Douglas Armour (pictured here) or Peter Thompson. Douglas is the son of Mrs. M. Armour, of Oakville.

GEN. HUGHES PASSES

Brig.-Gen. William St. Pierre Hughes, soldier and penologist and brother of the late Sir Sam Hughes minister of national defence in the great war, died early June 1 at Ottawa. The 76-year-old penologist, ill for some time, had been in retirement since 1932 when he gave up the post of administering Canada's several penal institutions.

JUDGE GOES BACK TO WAR

Commanding officer of the Queen's Own Rifles, now mobilized for active service in the third division, is a judge in the county court. He is Lieut.-Col. Ian McLean Macdonell, of Toronto, who went overseas with the 41st battery, Canadian Field Artillery, and during service in France was mentioned in dispatches.

CHARGES "SABOTAGE"

Hon. C.G. Power, minister of national defence for air, May 30, charged Rodney Adamson (Con., West York) across the floor of the Commons with "sabotage of Canada's war effort." In the midst of an uproar that had dozens of members shouting accusations, Mr. Power at white heat declared Rt. Hon. Ernest Lapointe, minister of justice, should "interne that fifth column over there."

Fredericton Sends $10,000 to Britain

FREDERICTON, June 4—(CP)—The Fredreicton City Council tonight voted unanimously to contribute $10,000 to the British Government as a token to show the people of the Motherland we're with them in spirit."

Supporting the proposal to send the money to London rather than Ottawa, Alderman Ray T. Forbes quoted the cry of Flanders veterans: 'For God's sake send us more planes."

After Mayor C. Hedley Forbes' declaration that Britain was in much more urgent need of the money than Canada, the council agreed unanimously to forward the sum to the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

NORTH WILTSHIRE W. I.

The May meeting of the North Wiltshire Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Cecil Campbell. With the president in the chair the meeting was opened in the usual way. There were ten members and two visitors present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved annd signed by the President. Roll call for June is to be answered by naming a book which I have read from the Carnegie Library. Six pairs of socks and two sweaters were handed in for Red Cross. The school committee reported that school had been scrubbed and paper towels had been sent to the school. The new lunch committee is Mrs. Geo. E. MacLean, Mrs. Coady and Mrs. Mitchell. School committee was asked to act for another month. Correspondence consisted of a letter from the Y. M. C. A. asking for financial aid to help the boys in uniform. The President, Mrs. Gordon MacLean, Mrs. Deacon and Mrs. Mitchell agreed to canvass the school district and are pleased to report over $30.00 sent in. Mrs. Lane invited the members for the next meeting. Mrs. Cecil Campbell and Mrs. Mitchell each gave a humourous reading, and a contest was conducted by Mrs. B. Younker. The meeting closed by singing the National Anthem. Lunch was served by the committee in charge assisted by the Hostess.

French Books For Canadians

PARIS, June 2 — (CP) —"Books in the French language for French-Canadian Soldiers" reads an appeal in a Paris newspaper suggesting the postal authorities accord special rates so that people in France who wish to send books and newspapers to French - Canadian soldiers in England may do so.

"The British public sends an abundance of books and magazines to the Canadian troops in their desire to show their interest in making training days comfortable and agreeable. Unhappily these books and periodicals are only in the English language," the writer said.

Southern Atlantic Legacy

By BY SYDNEY PARKMAN

"Really?" the Major said in a disturbed voice. "But I suppose it makes a difference if there is someone of the spot who is used to the ways of the country, I know nothing of this place, of course but there is a man there of the name of Maloney, who first sent up this—er—dreadful news. And he seemed to indicate a desire to help. In any case, I imagined that this plantation would come to me automatically—subject, of course, to death duties."

"Oh, that?" Mr. Becker said carelessly. "Well, yes; I don't guess there'll be much difficulty about that. There's not enough in it for the sharks to get busy about."

The Major sat up and looked at him sharply.

"How do you mean?" he demanded. "It's a—a valuable property, isn't it?"

Becker shrugged.

"I haven't seen it, but from what I understood your brother to say, it's just an ordinary small lot," he said.

"Land doesn't fetch much around those parts anyway, and I wouldn't bank on making real money out of that." He paused and then added: "But that's not what brought you here, Major?"

His companion stared at him, struck by something in his tone as he made this last statement—for it was more a statement than a question.

"It's all that brought me here," he stated emphatically. "And I sincerely hope you're wrong in your estimate of the value of this estate, Mr. Becker!"

Becker was regarding him with an odd expression on his face.

"Well, maybe I am," he admitted slowly, in a tone which suggested that it made little difference one way or the other. "But when I say that that's not all that brought you here, you'll understand that I'm referring to you and your daughter — Miss Diana, isn't it? I admire your caution, Major, but you see Tom Salter confided quite a lot in me, and I suppose I knew more about his affairs than most folk. So you needn't be scared to talk about it with me."

The Major looked up at him in some bewilderment.

"Talk about what?" he demanded. "I'm hanged if I know what you mean! It's true that this man Maloney, was rather insistent that my daughter should come out here, but from the fact that he never mentioned me, I concluded that he'd probably got hold of one of her letters to my brother and had assumed that she was his nearest relative. Do you happen to know him by the way?"

"I know of him," Becker said carefully. "He's the priest there."

"Oh, a priest is he?" the Major said. "I wondered what he was. Well, as I say, he made no specific mention of any other assets, so I naturally assumed that this property would be the item of greatest value. And as my brother apparently made no will . . . Why, what's the matter?"

He broke off, for Becker was slowly shaking his head and smiling in a curious manner to himself.

GOVERNOR PAYS

LAUNCESTON, Tasmania.—(CP)—Lord Gowrie, governor-general of Australia, refused to have a drink "on the house" at a military canteen here, saying it would "not be fair to the boys." He paid 4d. (8c) for a milk drink.
