McGraw's Genius Responsible For Great Showing

NEW YORK, Aug. 24—After the genius of leadership he has shown in the last seasons, it might be true even if it sounds a little unfair to his boys, to say that John McGraw can win a pennant with any kind of a good ball club.

The New York Giants of 1922 were, comparison to the other clubs in the National League a fine ball club, but it is almost certain that they would not have won the pennant behind any manager other than McGraw.

No other manager, with such a dilapidated pitching staff, could have urged the Giants to the heights which they attained in the critical parts of the 1922 pennant race.

Outside of the pitching department, which some tacticians consider the most important, the Giants have a great team. McGraw has said he figures it to be the smartest and the best ball club he has ever handled.

In building up what no doubt will turn out to be at least a three-time pennant winner, McGraw was able to find everything but good, young pitchers and since the New York club has more to spend than any other National League club, it seems but fate that has reduced the team to such poverty in pitching.

From the results of the 1921 and 1922 pennant races, it might be argued that a great team can win without great pitchers, but the results are achieved only by genius in direction. McGraw has that genius and the figures show that it is impossible by any other manager.

Taking an outside chance, that the Giants might be beaten in the present chase for the National League pennant, it is out of order to look to the future and see McGraw leading another race to the pennant in 1924.

If the Giants had some young pitchers of promise for the next season it is hard to see how they could guess that New York will have another National League pennant to make it four in a row. Considering the fact that none of the other National League clubs promise to be much stronger next season, it would be logical to figure that a team good enough to win this year ought to be good enough next year.

The Giants are not youths but in one way they are a young ball club inasmuch as McGraw has two or not more than three slipping veterans and to replace them he has several of the finest young ball players in the league.

Heinie Groh is about through but when the time comes for him to be seated on the bench, McGraw can shift Frank Frisch over to third base and use Fred Maguire at second.

Frisch is a fine second baseman and a great all-around player, but many critics believe that third base is his position and that he would be a star at the fast corner. Maguire has all the makings of a second baseman. He isn't a major league hitter yet and if he doesn't learn the giant's batting order has enough power to carry him along.

Dave Bancroft, the smartest shortstop in the major leagues and the spark-plug of the Giants defense may not have more than an other good year, but when he has to be replaced, McGraw has in Travis Jackson a youngster who is about ready for stardom right now.

Bancroft is none too strong physically, and when he was forced out of his position this season by illness Jackson stepped in and did everything that was asked of him.

George Kelly has many years ahead of him at first base, but if anything should happen to him McGraw can bring Jimmy O'Connell in from the outfield and play him at his natural position.

Casey Stengel is liable to be through after this season, but the way veterans have been acting in recent years, Casey is likely to be around for several years.

Bill Cunningham is available for any outfield jobs that have to be filled and he is a player good enough to be holding a regular job on any other major league club.

Pep Young, the brilliant right fielder of the club, is a young player and he should be good for five years at least. In left field, Irish Meusel may need replacement, as he has slipped a lot and is having trouble with his legs.

The pitching, however will be the big worry for McGraw again, as it has been for three years. The club is buying up every good young pitching prospect in sight, and if the law of averages ever starts working for the Giant leader he ought to find a couple of good ones before long, because his efforts so far have been fruitless.

organizer of victory in the Great War. As Commander of the Canadian Corps, while winning honor and glory for yourself, you were winning honor and distinction for Canada. The name and title you bear—Baron Byng of Vimy—will forever link you with Canadian valor, while the memory of that War endures. You had won the love and confidence of our boys whom you had so often led to victory, confident as they always were that, however hard might be the task assigned to them, there never would be under your leadership any unnecessary or reckless prodigality of life.

We welcome you, too, Sir, on behalf of those now forever silent ones, whose names are carved on yonder monument, who yielded up their all on the altar of freedom, defending against a ruthless foe what they deemed more precious than life itself, and whose sacred dust now commingles with the soil of a foreign land, where "Stars silent are over them, Graves under them silent."

They, too, in death as in life, had loved and trusted you. Now it is yours and ours, to carry on their behalf to conserve the fruits of their sacrifice; to help organize Victory in Peace, as you, Sir, had so greatly helped to organize Victory in War. Great is the need today of such service as you can render; nor less great we are assured, is your readiness to enlist in such service.

Nor to you, Gracious Lady, shall the measure and spirit of our welcome be less unstinted nor less cordial. In that tragic world drama you, too, had played your part, as your husband had played his great part. There, or may be elsewhere, you learned the lesson, not always easy of practise that true success in ruling often comes by the way of service. Now as then you are practising that lesson and that gospel of service; and you are devoting your great gifts of mind and heart to the bringing into our social and National life, more of sweetness and light and charity, more of that "patient endurance that attaineth to all things." You had already by brilliant gifts won an honored place in the field of Art and Letters. You are now by the exercise of intuitive courtesy and true womanly sympathy winning your way by unerring step into the hearts of the men and women of Canada. We are pleased to have this opportunity of associating you with His Excellency in a true and loyal hearted greeting.

We have in this Province but little to show Your Excellency in the way of material wealth. We have no great factories nor organized industries. Apart from the fertility of our soil and the wealth of our fisheries we have but few natural resources. We have no great wealth centred in the hands of a few. But on the other hand you will find no Lazarus sitting by the gate with hand outstretched for the doles of the rich. We have no invidious jealousies or envies between poor and rich, for we are free from the distracting friction between Labor and Capital.

We can show you a Town whose affairs have always been honestly and efficiently administered where never in all its history has there been even the shadow of civic scandal, and which now owns and operates its own public utilities of electric lighting and water and sewerage system. We can show you several commercial houses, controlled and managed by enterprising young men, whose wares find their markets in all parts of Canada and beyond it. We can show you a well equipped and well maintained hospital whose doors are ever open to rich and poor without distinction. We can show you a modest but substantial school building (now unfortunately closed for the summer) furnished with modern sanitary conditions, and surrounded by school grounds perhaps unexcelled in Eastern Canada. And better perhaps than all these you will find throughout our country districts, fine farmsteads owned and occupied by intelligent and progressive farmers. In peace and comfort continue to enjoy the fruits of their own labor.

We trust that your visit to us will in every way prove agreeable to Your Excellency and that the present will be but an earnest of many future visits to our province, where you may always be assured of a cordial welcome.

On behalf of the citizens and members of the Council of the Town of Summerside I have the honor to be your humble, obedient and loyal servant,

W. J. LIDSTONE, Mayor.

Tribute to Lady Byng.

The Governor General's Reply

Mr. Mayor, Ladies and Gentlemen. It will give me the greatest pleasure to forward to His Majesty the King your messages of loyalty and devotion. He has maintained ever since his visit to this Dominion a constant interest in the affairs of the Dominion, and we must count ourselves singularly fortunate in having as our Sovereign one whose fine sense of duty and self-sacrifice is a model for us in our private and public life.

I have listened with great interest to the account of your Province and Town, and am indeed glad to hear of the efficiency of its administration and the lack of severe poverty. It is on the prosperity of districts such as this that the welfare of the whole Dominion, both material and moral largely depends. But it depends equally on the retention of that spirit of mutual understanding and sympathy between men of different races and provinces. In the present age of commercial rivalry, we rely to a degree unknown before in the history of Empires, on trust and confidence. In the war Canada gave to the Empire a pledge of this word "confidence." She gave wholeheartedly of her resources; and what is more, she gave that magnificent force of fighting men "The Canadian Corps," whom I was proud to command. If we can face the problems that peace brings to us with the same united front that we showed to the enemy, then we shall win through, and make Cana-

FACTS GIVEN BY CITY EMPLOYEE

"Tanlac has put me in such fine shape I feel fully twenty-five years younger, just like a new man," said F. Coombs, 553 Janette Ave., Windsor, Ont., well known city employee.

"I never thought any medicine could be as good as Tanlac has been in my case. I suffered from stomach trouble until my appetite was so poor many days I didn't touch a mouthful of dinner and I could hardly get home from work at night. I couldn't rest, and mornings when I got up it seemed like my eyes were about to drop out of my head for want of sleep.

"But I sleep like a farm hand now and get up feeling like a two-year-old. I eat three hearty meals every day, everything agrees with me, and I'm so strong I finish a day's work feeling so good I go home in jig time. Tanlac is the best medicine I ever heard of."

da the great nation that we believe it her destiny to be.

Ladies and Gentlemen, Lady Byng and I thank you very sincerely for the warm welcome you have given us today at Summerside and the generous terms of your address. We have come to Prince Edward Island to try and learn for ourselves something of what you are doing and of the difficulties with which you have to contend, so that we may, if possible, take our share in solving them. It has given us the greatest pleasure to see some of those men who were my comrades in France and Flanders and to meet their wives and mothers in their own home land. This visit holds for us very pleasant memories, and we hope we shall be able to repeat it during our stay in Canada.

said he left that very obvious prejudice against bankers while perhaps understandable was not reasonable. He pointed out that it was greatly in the interests of all banks and bankers that the entire matter should be cleared up in the most satisfactory manner. Replied Dr. William declared that all concerned were eminently respectable people "not Communists, nor surn of the earth."

He appealed to the two hundred people who packed the room, confidence that the government had been thoroughly roused, of that their interests would be sufficiently safeguarded by allowing matters to go on as at present. The overwhelming vote in favor of his motion answered the question and the Minister of Finance will be notified of their views in the matter.

The equally overwhelming opposition to liquidation was expressed in the following resolution, which carried almost unopposed.

"That the meeting is unanimously opposed to any liquidation proceedings being taken until after the curators have made his report and that the court be asked to stay proceedings until full particulars can be obtained." Another motion calling for the formation of a "Home Bank Depositors' Protective Association" in order to keep alive the activity to offer some concrete means of furthering the depositors' interests was withdrawn.

Several depositors stated that the present committee was enough to carry out this work. The statement made by the sponsor of this motion, Mr. Crompton, that it might be well, if necessary, for depositors to put more money into the bank to avoid liquidation was met with a very chilly response.
