HAS HIS EYE ON KAISER'S FLEET

NEW YORK, Nov. 19. A London despatch to The Times says: There is no doubt that the British Admiral has his eye on Emperor William's fleet of warships and counts it a quantity to be reckoned with in its naval disposition. This accounts for the present additions to the strength of the Home Fleet and also for the determination to retain Admiral Wilson in command of that fleet instead of transferring him to the Mediterranean to succeed Admiral Donville.

In the judgment of the Admiralty, Sir Arthur Wilson's post has become the most important sea assignment in the entire British Navy and all because of Germany's naval strength, which the British naval authorities consider to possess an unfriendly potentiality. They do not expect to have to fight the German fleet, but it is part of the British naval policy to be ready to meet any and every possible danger.

CONTRADICTORY EVIDENCE GIVEN

At the Police Court Yesterday in Murder Case

Doiron, the Missing Man Swore He Spoke to Boys on the Corner But this they Most Emphatically Deny.

The Power murder trial preliminary hearing was resumed at Police Court yesterday. More than the ordinary interest was added to the case by the evidence of Henry Doiron the man seen by several witnesses coming from the spot where the murdered woman lay.

The Crown was represented by H. B. Williams and W. A. Weeks Jr. in the absence of the Attorney General and Mr. Haszard. The following evidence was given:

Henry Doiron was the first witness. He worked at James Currie's corner of Water and Union. He usually went to his home in the place known as Coyle's peg corner of Richmond and Rochford by way of Union to the jail square and thence diagonally. On the night of the murder he did not go diagonally but instead went along Rochford to the Hospital. The time he left Currie's was about twenty minutes after seven. When he had passed the hospital to the warehouse he saw a black lump lying on the sidewalk. He did not pass it but jumped across through the mud to the opposite side of the street and then along to Sydney street when he again crossed to the other side going in the direction of Power's house. He then went straight on home. He met some woman just by Power's but did not know her. At Coyle's corner Mr. Besso where the axe was obtained, saying good night and he said good night. Douse and Herron were two of them, he did not know the third. From that he went straight home. It was raining heavily that night. The electric lights in the vicinity were lighted at the time and it was quite bright. That night he had a black short coat, dark grey pants and an old light hat. He thought the body on the sidewalk was a drunken man and he did not like to pass it. Just across from the rear of Mr. Currie's is the yard of Mr. Besso where the axe was obtained. Asked by Mr. Williams why he had kept the information quiet so long, he said he did not think he was the one meant. The morning after the murder he had told a man at the hospital of the facts just related. He had also told his wife's father who lives in Rustico. No one had ever spoken with him about keeping the information quiet. He had told Angus Pinaud in the presence of a number of others. He was sure one of the boys was Arthur Douse who had spoken to him. He had seen no one around Besso's yard that night. There was nothing else he knew of in connection with the murder.

Annie McInnis was the next witness. She lived at Keppoch, but on the night of the murder worked at Mr. Ings' the Explorers. She had seen Miss Warren leaving the house between five and ten after seven the night she was murdered. She had her hat on and was going out when last witness saw deceased. Witness heard of the murder shortly after eight and went down and recognized the body in the Hospital.

Alice Dooley also worked at Mr. Ings'. She had last seen deceased about six o'clock. Witness went out to church at a quarter past seven. The church bells were ringing, they had just started when she left. She went along Haviland to the Hospital and then crossed up

PARLIAMENT MEETS JAN 12

Cabinet So Decided Yesterday—Recount Seats Conservative Member in Wentworth, Ont. Ballots Being Rejected.

OTTAWA, Nov. 21—[Special]—Parliament will meet on Wednesday, January 12th.

This decision was reached at today's Cabinet meeting and will be welcome news to the members.

For years past members have protested against summer sessions and this has evidently influenced the Cabinet to call the session earlier.

HAMILTON, Nov. 21—[Special]—In the Wentworth recount Judge Snider threw out the ballots in Beverley township where the returning officer illegally numbered the ballots.

The recounts elects Smith, Conservative, by 10 majority.

Dorchester. It was raining heavily but the street was bright. After attending Cathedral she returned and saw some men at the corner. She asked the trouble and was told some one had been murdered. She went to Mr. Ings' and returned with Miss McInnis to the hospital and saw Miss Warren dead.

Bradford King testified that on the night of the murder he was in Michael Power's. He had gone there in the morning. Michael, jr. was around the house and barn. He did nothing strange while he was there. On the night of murder he got tea at Power's then went to his home around the corner at twenty minutes past six. Returned at twenty-five minutes to seven. Douse, Michael, Sr. and Mr. John Power were in at the time. Henry Palmer had left about six o'clock. When he came back he lit a light and went up stairs where prisoner and his father were. The father had asked for a light. He hung up the light and went down again. He did not know whether he had told the Coroner that Michael Power had taken out his watch and told the time. Henry Palmer had come in about a quarter after seven and Douse a little later. The latter had an axe in his hand. He said a woman had been murdered or killed. He then went right out again. Witness and Mahar went over to the Hospital, the others went in and he went to the corner. Palmer came out after and said it might have been his mother. He then went over home and said she had not returned. Michael Power went out about a quarter past six but he did not know whether he had gone up to the place where the fire was at McDonald & Hughes on Thursday morning. Witness also described the clothes of prisoner on night of murder and a visit to Hennessey's told of by previous witnesses. Michael Power, Sr. and Jr. were upstairs from the time he went up with the light till he went over to the Hospital about 7.40 to the best of his knowledge. They could get down stairs and out through the stable, but it was locked from the outside. They might get out through a window.

Mrs. Horne, who lives at the corner of Rochford and Kent testified that Tuesday before the murder she was returning from Mr. Watson's along Haviland Street opposite to the Hospital. Crossed over and went past the wing. Saw a man leaning against the building between the big gate and the wing. The man was tall but she did not notice him particularly and could not tell if it was the prisoner.

Arthur Douse, recalled, and examined regarding speaking to Doiron, testified that he knew him to see him. Witness did not remember seeing him at all and as far as he remembered did not speak to anyone or see anyone pass.

Henry Doiron, recalled, again positively asserted that Douse spoke to him first saying good night and he replied. The night was bright and he had no doubt these three boys were there and he passed alongside of them.

Frank Herron, recalled, testified, that he did not see Doiron passing. He knew him to see him. Doiron might have passed and said good night and he have forgotten all about it.

John McMillan, recalled, testified that he had not seen Doiron pass. If a man spoke to Douse he supposed he would have seen him. He knew Doiron to see him.

Court then adjourned till half past two and at that hour till next Monday.
