CRERAR AND BIG INTERESTS

If Mr. Crerar believed that duty on implements was favoring big interest, why did he not... out of his huge profits his company had made, acting as a middle-man between the Grain Growers and the grain buyers start an implement factory so that he could produce something that was useful for the farmers at fair profit instead of putting the profit from their grain into political propaganda for his own ends. If he did that, he would very soon moderate his views as to what ought to be the tariff policy of the country.—Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen.

After Ten Years
BY MARION RUBINCAN

A QUARREL
Chapter 11

"I suppose that means you're tired of me," Humphrey said finally.

"I suppose it does," Millie replied. "Good heavens, why shouldn't I be? I've seen you almost every day since I married you, ten years ago. Think of it, ten years seeing you every day across a breakfast table and knowing that every evening will bring you around again for supper!"

"Did it ever occur to you that I have to see you just as much?" Humphrey began to bluster. "You've complained a lot because I'm getting fat and losing some hair. I guess I can't help that, at my age!"

This magnificent defence was no sooner delivered than Bridget came through the swinging doors between dining room and kitchen with another pot of coffee.

Promptly master and mistress tried to relax their faces, to appear casual and composed and ordinary for the benefit of the cook--an exceedingly difficult task in the state of temper each had achieved.

Fortunately for them, they could not hear Bridget's comment as she took in the daily supply of food a moment later. The ice-man had his weekly bill.

"I wouldn't dare give it to 'em now, sure, with the tempers they're in," she said cheerfully. "Quarrel? To be sure they do, all the time. Ain't they been married long enough?"

Bridget was out of the way. Humphrey went on with defence and complaint.

"You object to my careless habits? How about your own? If I don't like my shiny bald head, I don't like your hair done in curls. You don't like me to come to table without a coat on. I don't like that eternal kimono, or whatever it is you wear to breakfast. You don't--"

Poor Humphrey brought out his grievances so rapidly that Millie could not even interrupt. Seeing that were setting nowhere and ashamed of such a domestic scene, she finally put in, sarcastically: "I should think then you would be glad to get rid of me for a few months!"

To which Humphrey, swallowing a second cup of coffee, much worse than the first, said: "If you can't make Bridget give me a better breakfast than she gives you're home, I'd like to know what I'd get when she's gone! This coffee is a disgrace!"

And Humphrey stormed away from the table and the house. Millie, weeping, related all this to her sister, Patty had come in to borrow a book. She was sitting on the floor, on her feet now, behind the oak bookcase. The glass door swung open, she had the key which always carefully locked them in her hand, and she played with it while she listened.

"Humphrey said he was poor, that is, he said he was putting a lot of money in some timber scheme," Patty said, seeking an easy way out of the trouble. "Nonsense, he's always buying timber land and cutting it up and selling it. He has lots of money." Millie said, drying a red and shiny nose. "He makes at least $6,000 a year, that's a lot for this town. We don't half live up to it. He's just like all men--ready enough to spend money on a woman when she's young and a novelty, but not wanting to part with a cent when she's an old story. And that's all I am to him, an old story! After ten years a man cares about his comfort. All Humphrey wants is for me to stay home and keep him comfortable."

Patty still played with the key, looking unhappy and anxious.

"But you'd have to go away alone, I can't ask mother to let me go when I've been away so long, and she won't move. She thinks she has to stay home now and chaperone me until I'm married. Goodness, Millie, you don't make marriage sound very cheerful."

Millie was glad to go on talking. "It isn't if I had it to do over again, knowing all I do now, I wouldn't get married, I can tell you."

Patty did not want to give in so easily. "But if one falls in love--"

"It's all right as long as that lasts. But there never was a lovey that could stand the daily wear and tear of married life. You may think a man's handsome and romantic, but when you see him get up in the morning sleepy and cranky, and see him shave, and gobble breakfast behind a paper--"

Patty interrupted with her little embarrassed laugh again. "But after all, you needn't watch him shave, or see him when he's sleepy and cross--"

Millie shook her shoulders impatiently. "I did have my own room, or take breakfast separately, from Humphrey, all Wisakeegan would know of it and talk about it next morning. They'd begin to pity Humphrey for the sort of wife he had, they--"

Patty opened her lips to protest, but that it was none of her business. But thinking that after all, she knew little enough of the town, she sat silent instead.

Pains So Bad Stayed in Bed

YOUNG MRS. BEECROFT HAD MISERABLE TIME UNTIL SHE TOOK LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Hamilton, Ont.--"I have suffered for three years from a female trouble and consequent weakness, pain and irregularity which kept me in bed for four or five days each month. I nearly went crazy with pains in my back, and for about a week at a time I could not do my work. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the Hamilton Spectator and I took it. Now I have no pain and am quite regular unless I get work or stay on my feet from early morning until late at night. I keep house and do all my own work without any trouble. I have recommended the Compound to several friends."--Mrs. EMILY BEECROFT, 289 Victoria Ave., N., Hamilton, Ontario.

For forty years women have been telling how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored their health when suffering with female ills. This accounts for the enormous demand for it from coast to coast. If you are troubled with any ailment peculiar to women why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? It is made from native roots and herbs and contains no narcotics or harmful drugs.

For special advice women are asked to write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of forty years experience is at your service.

Liberals are liberal promoters. How about the "Spur line to Richmond Bay", and the untold "Millions of dollars worth of mussel mud to be distributed to farmers all over the Island"? Did they ever fulfill a promise?

THE WHITEST, LIGHTEST

MAGIC BAKING POWDER

CONTAINS NO ALUM

HILLARY MOYNAGH

Death for the first time entered the quiet little cottage of Mr. and Mrs. John Moynagh, Lower Freetown on Thursday morning, Nov. 24th, and took therefrom the soul of their second son Hillary, a young man only 26 years.

Death is hard on our poor nature, but when the victim is one so young and strong and who was apparently in the full bloom of youth and health and with every prospect for a long life before him, we feel it much worse. However, God who asked the great sacrifice from them will not leave them without the grace necessary to offer it to Him generously. About six weeks ago he contracted lung-bug which developed into spinal meningitis which caused his death despite all that medical skill and tender nursing could do. For the past two years or more he was a faithful employee in the Emerald Cheese Factory, where by his faithfulness to duty, his honesty in work and by his honesty in every respect he won the esteem and love of every milk driver and patron of the factory. Even the little children in the school loved to have a chat with Hillary. But the Master knew that he loved him too.

And a far better home he's found.

He will be sadly missed in the home as he was the chief mainstay of his heart broken parents. His funeral took place on Saturday morning to St. James Church Freetown, where a High Mass of Requiem was chanted by his pastor Rev. F. McQuaid, who frequently visited him during his illness and consoled him with the last rites of the church. His remains were laid to rest in the adjoining cemetery there to await a glorious resurrection. The pall bearers were John J. White, M. White, Leonard McFarrell Russell McCourt, Ray Mulligan and Walter McCourt. Besides his parents there are left to mourn two sisters, Mrs. Cecil Casely, of Spring Valley and Mrs. Clarence Mahon of Emerald and two brothers, Emmett of P. E. I. R. and Joseph in Charlottetown. To these we extend our sincerest sympathy. May his soul rest in peace.

Do you want another Motley Horde of Greedy Officials Hounding you for Direct Taxation? That's what the Liberal and Progressive Tariff Policy means.

They have drawn the Greece-Romanian loan like a red herring across the track to divert your attention from some issues. It doesn't amount to a hill of beans to any Islander, but their proposal to drop the price of pork 4 or 5 cents does count. Are you going to vote for it, or will you vote for the Meighen Government and protection?

How much do you spend in a week on trifles you would never miss?—About three dollars? That amount, deposited every week for five years, would amount to $841.02.

UNION BANK OF CANADA

Charlottetown Branch - R. B. Towriss, Manager

The Crerar-Grain-Growers policy is absolute free trade in five years. They will shorten the revenue by $160,000,000. Their promise is to make this up by direct taxation. This taxation will amount to $110 for the head of each family of persons. Do you want this more added to your Bill of Lament Taxation? Do you want it from the so-called Farmer dates, if you elect them.
