ENGLAND FRANCE AND GERMANY

Andre Tardieu Talks On The Effects Of Recent French Treaties

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 12.—M. Andre Tardieu yesterday delivered the second of his course of eight lectures on France and her alliances before the Circle Francais of Harvard University. His subject yesterday was France and the English Alliance. He said that the necessity existed for this agreement as for the Franco-Russian Alliance. He traced the history of the alliance as brought about by King Edward VII. and M. Delcasse. Referring to the report that a secret alliance between France and England in 1906, M. Tardieu stated positively that no such treaty ever had been made. He said that in view of the present conditions in Europe and of certain verbal statements made between English and French statesmen seemed certain that if France should be attacked by Germany, England would interfere in her favor. The lecturer said that if there had been some difficulties between France and England in Egypt the fault was in the imperfect manner in which the French drafted the treaty in 1904. With these exceptions he believed that France had derived great profit from the pact.

CHIEF HOPE OF SUFFRAGISTS

College Girls And Laboring Women—Why Martyrs Are Scarce

LONDON, Feb. 11.—Despite petitions and indignant protests from fellow-Suffragists, last week's five offenders are being treated as ordinary offenders in Holloway Jail, which means considerable hardship and suffering. Mrs. Cobden Sanderson, speaking of the interest of American women in the suffrage movement, says that it is difficult for the women to be martyrs in America, because the men never oppose them on the suffrage question. Women suffrage meetings are never broken up there, people merely stay away if they do not approve of these affairs. The only real opposition to women suffrage comes she says, from the rich, idle. She went on to say, "These horrid women sign petitions against their sex having the franchise, and so far they have been meeting with success in the eastern part of the United States. There are two classes of women upon whom the chief hope of the suffrage movement rests, college girls and laboring women. Both of these classes are willing to work hard in order to achieve this end, but to my mind, women will get the ballot in America only by way of Socialism. They will have to wait till the American Federation of Labor is strong enough to have its way, for women suffrage is part of the program of that organization."

Royal Humane Society Will Commemorate The Bravery Of Jacob Chippis

VICTORIA, Feb. 11.—The Royal Humane Society of London, Eng., has granted to Jacob Chippis a bronze medal and certificate for bravery. Rev. E. A. Roberts received this news in a letter from the society's agent in British Columbia yesterday. Jacob Chippis is the Indian who last July accomplished a wonderful feat in his attempt to rescue his daughter and her baby from drowning. They were making a trip in their boat from Stevenson to Vancouver when a storm struck them and capsized the boat. The daughter, clasping her baby, was flung far out in the water and Chippis swam to her. For nine long hours he struggled with his loved ones in his arms trying to get ashore, but at last was thrown up on shore half dead without his daughter or her baby. For this brave act he has been accorded the medal. A public meeting is to be held when the medal will be pinned on the brave old father's unhappy breast.
