Franco-German Rift Intrigue of Arms Trust?

"Two million Germans are in arms," rings the cry throughout France. "France is playing with fire," is the German come-back. All of which has to do with a little piece of land rich in minerals, known as the Saar Valley, on the border line of France and Germany, and since the great war, under the control of the League of Nations. It was the late President Wilson of the United States who conceived the plan whereby Saar

Valley citizens should vote in 1935 on whether they would return to Germany, turn to France or remain under the league's rule. Both France and Germany desire the coal and iron mines and are taking little pains to conceal the fact. Germany is reported to be smuggling Nazis wholesale into the country. Alarmed, France threatens to send an army to "protect" the Saar in its plebiscite. The French army moves toward the border, threats are hurled back and forth. French papers turn to France or remain under the league's rule. TUBER MARKET IN PANAMA AND VENEZUELA

Mr. A. E. MacLean, M.P., has received the following information regarding the potato markets of Panama and Venezuela from the Trade Commissioner at Panama through the Commercial Intelligence Service, Ottawa, which should be of interest to our farmers and potato shippers.

The Republic of Panama consumed 1,250 tons of foreign potatoes in 1933. Of this amount approximately 80 per cent arrived during the Canadian shipping season.

The United States Government regulations now preclude sale of foreign potatoes to the Panama Railroad Co. on account of the Government Commissioners in the Canal Zone and the United States Army. Shipping firms in Colon and Panama City buy potatoes from Vancouver, B. C., and the Maritimes, some firms buy direct others through their New York agents. They are not particularly interested in direct quotations from Canada, chiefly on account of the lack of direct and regular shipping facilities.

The Canadian Trade Commissioner at Panama has been endeavouring to build up a direct business from the Maritime Provinces for some time.

Farmers take now approximately 1,000 tons annually, all from the United States and Canada. Market fairly stable. Local production is not likely to supplant imports in the near future. Consumption should increase with better business conditions.

Caracas, the capital of Venezuela, from reports sent by the Trade Commissioner at Panama appears to offer a better opportunity for a Canadian market, especially seed potatoes, if better direct shipping facilities were available.

Competitors for the Caracas market are Northern Europe, principally Holland, with shipments coming from Hamburg, Amsterdam and Antwerp, dominate the market from late August until December. Shipments from these sources reach their peak in October and November. These potatoes are shipped on direct steamers. Shipments are made in open crates of 23 kilos gross and are sold through commission agents.

In 1931-2 Northern Europe supplied 1,150 tons against 824 tons in 1933-4. The decline is due to the import duty being increased from approximately $1.35 per 100 lb sack on August 31st, 1933, to $2.70 per sack, which rate is effective at the present time. Another reason is the falling off of purchasing power in general in Venezuela and increasing local production.

The Canary Islands dominate the market from February until August. In 1931-2 the Canary Islands shipped 2,370 tons of potatoes for Caracas, representing 60 per cent of the total import. A steamer brings potatoes once a month direct from the Canary Islands. Orders are taken by an importer just prior to the sailing date of the steamer and cable to shippers in the Canary Islands.

United States and Canadian potatoes are sold through New York and arrive in small quantities beginning the latter part of September, but are not a factor in the trade until after the peak of the Dutch season in December. From January to April a limited quantity is sold mainly between the Dutch and Canary Island seasons.

Prompt shipment rather than straight competition or price basis appears to account for the New York trade, as when the Caracas importer is short of a supply and cannot wait for the regular monthly steamer from the Canary Islands, he orders from New York to carry him over until the arrival of his order from the Canary Islands.

In the season 1931-2 the United States shipped 1,201 tons, last year's shipments amounted to only 239 tons.

Shipments from England are confined to seed potatoes. They arrive during November and December for the planting season.

Lad Recovers Sufficiently To Return Home

Master Jackie Thompson, five year old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Thompson of Conway, who was so seriously injured when he was struck by a heavy motor truck that his life was despaired of, has sufficiently recovered to be able to return home.

Jackie had a depressed fracture of the skull and a fractured jaw. His life hung in the balance for several days. The accident happened not two weeks ago on Saturday, October 27th. The little chap was brought to the Prince County Hospital and twenty four hours after, a skillful operation was performed on the skull and also on the fractured jaw, in a hope that he would save the little fellow's life. Through careful nursing and the best of medical attention Jackie has made a marvelous recovery.

Jackie is now in the hospital and is being fed along with Canadian leading producing countries in the buttermilk in semi-solid form in barrels.

BRITISH HENS THRIVE ON CANADIAN FEED

There is a large continuous market for poultry feedstuffs in the United Kingdom. The number of domestic fowl in England and Wales increased six per cent in 1933 over the previous year, the total number in June, 1933, being some 61,171,000, states the Agricultural Department of the Canadian National Railways, Lancashire, Yorkshire, Lincolnshire, Essex and Devonshire were the best of medical attention Jackie has made a marvelous recovery.
