SUNDAY EATING.

Sir,—I see by the paper that quite a discussion took place at the last meeting of the City Council on the new Restaurant Law. His Worship says great masses of people were highly pleased with the respectable Sabbath which has prevailed the last two Sundays. Strange to say there should be such a holy city in so short a time. Has His Worship looked up the police records since the new restaurant law came in force? Six automobile accidents last Sunday; and at three o'clock on Sunday afternoon there were more drunken men on Queen street than has been for the last three months. Do the City Council, or anybody else think they are going to improve the morals of this City by closing the restaurants? Our restaurants were always run clean and above board and it never has been questioned that our restaurants sold liquor. Then why should our city attain such a state of holiness by closing them? Two of our best cafes do not even sell soft drinks. Nothing but food. I understand drugstores open on certain hours on Sunday and I do not think they are confined to selling drugs; they all have soda fountains. No wonder Nova Scotia and New Brunswick had a laugh at us. Our associations are looking for tourists, and steno of the mainland warn travellers to carry their own food when coming to P. E. Island. At the next meeting of the City Council, will someone ask his Worship to name a citizen in Canada with a population as large as Charlottetown with restaurants closed on Sunday?

I am, Sir, etc.

BACK TO THE FARM.

Sir,—Back to the farm "Boston Social Worker" back to the farm! Why should you be an object of charity in Boston when you could be a "hewer of wood or a drawer of water" in Valleyfield, Murray Harbor Road or in Caledonia?

Let not the green-eyed monster of jealousy poison your mind of reason and patriotism to your fellow countryman. Is the venting of your spleen due to a lack of charitable subjects from the Island of your birth? Why should it grieve and fill you with venom and satire to see the young men and women from King's County well dressed and going to church? Would you be happier if they were in rags and looking for a "hand-out" in the Dover Street Mission or the Salvation Army? Is working in a kitchen or in Waldorf's Lunch less honorable or less remunerative than being a social worker, loafing and gossiping around the homes of the less fortunate of every city's populace? Again, let me ask, is it less noble to pay as you go a la Thiele's, or a la Woolworth's, than it is to pay a dollar down and a dollar when you catch me a la credit house?

Your joke a la farm, was really funny. Imagine a poor farmer with sixteen sons, cutting the farm to suit them all, or buying each a separate farm. Really, "Social Worker" you should be on the Colth-Albee Circuit telling other funny ones about King's County.

Also, "Social Worker," may I ask you where you got your "line" on State House Statistics, and per capita wealth. If, as you say (but which I deny, as I work in the State House), 90 per cent of the people are dependent on others after they are unable to longer work, what are you doing to pay taxes to support the poor houses? Did they not contribute toward a home in age, while they worked in youth? Who in all the world is not dependent on others, when they are too old to care for themselves? Furthermore, perhaps there would be fewer island paupers in Boston if there were fewer Island sharks in Boston, swindling hard-earned money from industrious and credulous persons.

So far as per capita wealth is concerned—how about Brookline, Mass? Look in your "Social Workers" Guide Book, or in any authentic statistical reference, or in fact, any encyclopedia, and see what they say about Brookline. My data tells me it is the wealthiest place per capita in the world. Think of it—37,800 population, and 14,000 with wealth in excess of $500,000, with 500 millionaires. That is approximately 37 per cent of the population above the half-million dollar mark. What is P. E. I.'s per cent of millionaires?

There is, however, one point of agreement in "Social Worker's" letter, that is, Danes and Poles should not be imported to take the places of bona fide Island boys and girls, when the Canadian Government could easily make the premier province of Canada sufficiently attractive and prosperous to hold her sons and daughters, if she was half as interested in its development of natural resources and marketing facilities. Give P. E. Island a tunnel to the mainland; an air-line to the mainland; and equal representation and prestige in Ottawa with the other provinces. (This may be expedited by having wide-awake and never-to-be-defeated men who yield to other provinces on important issues pertaining to developments and improvements of P.E.I.)

Finally, let me remind "Social Worker" that P. E. Islanders do not want charity; they only want a chance. And, regardless of what their "business" is, it is just as much "business" to work in a kitchen, in a lunch room, or in a laundry, as it is "business" to be a "Social Worker" depending on charity for your living.

I am, Sir, etc.

The Largest Railway System in America

SHERBROOKE, Que., July 11. — Three boys, sons of Onanime Boulin, a farmer, were killed by a lightning bolt while in the pasture of their father's farm on the Flanders Road, between Cookshire and Sawerville, this afternoon.

The boys, Henry 14, Fernand 12, and Olivia, 11, had been sent to the pasture to bring their father's horses to the barn.

A severe electrical storm came up suddenly and the youths, with the horses, took shelter beneath a tree in the pasture.

When they failed to return after fifteen minutes the father set out to look for them and came upon the bodies beneath the tree which had been shattered by the bolt. The bodies of three dead horses lay nearby.

Their deaths brought the total of dead from lightning in the province during the past two days to four. Lawlor Eymon, 35, was killed yesterday at St. Saviour des Monts.

The whole province has been swept by electrical storms of marked intensity during the past two days, following a week of extremely hot weather.
