SAURDAY, AUGUST 30, 1913

"The Evening Guardian will not be issued on Monday but will be published on Tuesday as usual. Advertisers will please note these changes.

PRIME MINISTER'S MESSAGE.

The Toronto Globe, Canada's National Liberal Weekly, and formerly a staunch and bitterly-partisan supporter of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, publishes a glowing panegyric on the Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden's Exhibition address, surely the warmest and most pleasing confirmation of the country's verdict that Borden, not Laurier, is the man for the helm at this particular juncture. Coming as it does from the most unlikely and unexpected quarter, the praise will be all the more appreciated. Says The Globe—

"The Right Hon. R. L. Borden, in his message as Prime Minister of Canada at the opening of the Canadian National Exhibition yesterday, was at his best. The occasion itself was indeed stimulating alike to the patriot's sentiment and to the orator's emotion. A nation's everyday life and the industry and handiwork of its people were represented everywhere within the eye's range, richer and more varied than ever before in the country's history. A sense of peace and all the marks of prosperity were present. The faces of the audience shone with intelligence and hopefulness. The grass of the well-kept award, washed clean by the recent rains, was still unworn by the coming million feet, and high over the shimmering waters of the lake the afternoon sun glinted soft and glad in the cloudless sky. A man with Canadian blood in his veins would scarcely need the urge and passion of a Prime Minister's vision to utter on such a day the statesman's great word side by side with the poet's sweet comment."

"And with dignity and high seriousness the Right Hon. Mr. Borden took up his prophesy. Of very necessity his words were not for the eager-hearted listeners alone, but for the nation. The occasion, as he fittingly acknowledged, was an event of national significance. To have horizons no wider than mere local interest or civic pride or the pleasure of a holiday were indeed an impertinence. It was a Canadian occasion, nay more, an achievement of high Imperial worth. The men who make possible the Canadian National Exhibition—the Directors and the City Council who organize and administer it, the captains of Canada's industry, the artisans with the horny hands, the farmers from the furrow, the men and women of science and scholarship and artistic genius and patient service, who in any corner of Canadian life worthily plan and honestly do, and whose doings contribute to this gigantic resultant—these all, the Prime Minister averred, take rank with the makers of Canada and the founders of the Empire, and nameless though they be in Parliament or Press, their deeds make strong the pillars of the nation."

"It was good to have the First Minister of Canada eulogize the fidelity of the common man and the social idealism of the common cause as the supreme expression of Canada's loyalty to the flag. Patriotism may indeed be the last refuge of a scoundrel, but the flag is the first resort of the barren-minded jingo demagogue who has neither wit nor words nor worth wherewith to raise a cheer. Mr. Borden was worthy of himself in the emphasis he placed on the part played by the average man and the common task in making Canadian citizenship noble and just and free."

POTATO BUGS.

There is general rejoicing over the fact that the Colorado Beetle, alias the potato bug, has this season failed, or practically failed, to put in an appearance. In consequence there has been a perceptible, and not unexpected, falling off in the industry known in these latter days as "bugging." There has also been a very perceptible falling off in the quantity of paris green used, many farmers having discarded it altogether this season. This is certainly cause for thankfulness, as the cost of keeping the pest within reasonable bounds has for many years made serious inroads upon the revenue from the potato crop and also added very greatly to the labors of the farmer.

But there is little hope that we have seen the last of the potato bug and it will be advisable to await further developments before closing up the paris green factories and strapping the spraying appliances. All the potato bugs are not dead yet and they that remain will still stand a lot of killing.

In conversation yesterday with a well-informed farmer we were reminded that a similar lapse in our activity occurred about ten years ago. That lapse followed winter conditions similar to those of last winter; alternate heavy rains and frosts and a late, cold spring. There were so few bugs during that summer that no paris green was used. After ten years of strenuous life and feasting on paris green and potato vines, chiefly the latter, Mr. Bug has been more or less crippled by the peculiarities of an extraordinary winter, but only crippled, and if conditions next winter are not too many for him he will be found a very lively cripple when the springtime comes again.

It was hoped by many that the Colorado beetle had run its natural course, as successive pests have done in all ages. In order, doubtless, to avoid monotony, Nature has usually permitted one pest to succeed another by the "survival of the fittest" process, the modus operandi, roughly speaking, being thus: Every species of animal, great or small, is used as food by another species. If the food thus provided is ample and reasonably available, the preying species fattens, multiplies and eventually assumes a sufficiently important place in the economy of nature to feed another species, and forthwith, the latter species appears on the scene. To the newcomers the former is "Nature's ample store," they attack it and eventually put it out of existence.

As far as science has been able to determine, the species that is to prey upon the potato bug has not yet arrived, or if it has, it has quit the job in disgust, for, humanly speaking, the potato bug does not appear to be obtrusively inviting as an all round food. Anyway its successors are not in any particular hurry in coming to the feast.

For the present the only hope for the extermination of the potato bug lies somewhere between paris green and such a winter as that of 1912-13, or better still in combining the two. The bug winters in the earth, a few inches below the surface. Under a mantle of snow and dry frozen earth he will live comfortably at a temperature of between 20 and 100 below zero, and come out in the spring with a good appetite for new potato vines. If, however, there is little snow, lots of rain to soak his habitation, plenty of frost to crush him with the earth's contraction, and this process repeated several times during the winter, he will be, at least, partially disabled and his efforts in the potato field will be such that a little paris green will put him out of business.

We understand that in many fields which escaped the early visitation this year, there have been later arrivals. As each potato bug rears a family of about a million it will be seen that, with a few progenitors still in existence there is still a prospect of renewed activity and a brisk trade in paris green for next year.

IN MEMORIAM

GRANVILLE CUDMORE.

At Winsloe North Aug. 25th, 1913, Granville, youngest son of Albert and Mrs. Cudmore, age 1 year and 9 months.

Another little lamb has gone To dwell with Him who gave Another little darling babe Is sheltered in the grave. God needed one more Angel child Amidst his shining band And so he bent with loving smile And clasped our darling's hand.

MR. WM. MCKENZIE

(From Yesterday's Evening Guardian) The death occurred at Melville on the 21st Aug., 1913, of Mr. Donald McKenzie in the 72nd year of his age. The late Mr. McKenzie followed the sea in his younger days and had been to many parts of the world. He had been ailing for a long time and was kindly attended by his wife and daughter at home. He was of a kindly disposition and the very large concourse that attended his funeral on the 22nd testified that he was well liked. His remains were laid to rest, with the sleeping dust of the ancestors and kindred in the beautiful and historical cemetery of Belfast. The Rev. Mr. Gillis conducted the funeral services at the house. He leaves a disconsolate widow, one son and two daughters at home, one son in Vancouver, B.C., and three in the eastern states.

HAPPENINGS OF THE WEEK

Charlottetown has not been lacking in interesting events during the past week, perhaps the foremost of these being the Maritime Ladies' Golf Championship Meet, held at Belvidere Links during the past five days. But for one day of rain the weather has been kind indeed and the meet voted by one and all a grand success in every way. The luncheons and teas held daily at the club-house, for players, have been much appreciated and the visitors will carry away with them a lasting impression of Charlottetown hospitality and Charlottetown sport.

Another event of striking interest was the Flower Show held in Prince of Wales College on Thursday and Friday last. On Thursday evening the spacious hall was thronged with lovers of flowers who found much to delight their fancy in the beautiful coloring and varieties of the display. The thanks of Island people are surely due to the Minister of Agriculture and his assistants who have made so enjoyable a treat possible.

On Wednesday evening Mrs. A. A. McLean entertained at eight tables of Bridge for the visiting golfers. Attractive prizes were won by Mrs. Bagnall, Mrs. Purdy and Mrs. Claxton. The guests included—Mrs. Stewart, Mrs. Bartlett, Mrs. McCready, Mrs. Murray, (Halifax); Mrs. Roberts, (Halifax); Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Kaiser, Mrs. Longworth, Mrs. Rhodes, (Amherst); Mrs. Hyndman, Mrs. Mahon, Mrs. Bartlett, Miss Skinner, (Halifax), and many others.

Mrs. Bartlett entertained informally at supper on Sunday evening for a few St. John friends.

Mrs. Percy Pope entertained informally for the visiting golfers on Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Parsons, (Montreal), Mrs. Roy Holman, Miss Holman and Miss Sharpe, (Summerside), were visitors in Charlottetown during the past week.

Mrs. J. O. Hyndman entertained informally for the golfers on Monday evening.

Mrs. W. S. Stewart entertained at four tables of Bridge for the visiting golfers on Friday evening.

Mrs. B. Hertz entertained informally at Bridge on Thursday evening for some St. John friends.

Mrs. McCready entertained informally on Thursday evening for the golfers.

Mrs. W. K. Rogers entertained on Wednesday evening for the Amherst and Truro golfers.

Friday was indeed gala day on Belvidere Links: The tea table with its charming decorations of sweet peas and heaps of good things to eat was in charge of the House Committee, namely: Mrs. Alley, Mrs. Blain, Mrs. McCready, Mrs. A. A. McLean, Mrs. Frost, Mrs. Pethick and Miss Alice McKinnon. Beside the members and the visiting lady golfers a very large number of invited guests were present among them being: Mrs. and Miss Boulton, (England); Mrs. von Thiele and Miss Quirk, (England); Mrs. Stavert and party, (Montreal); Mrs. Parsons, (Montreal); Mr. and Mrs. Burnett, Miss Demmler, Miss Wilkinson, Mrs. Goodwill, (Peterboro); Miss Holman (Summerside); Mrs. Spencer, (Edmonton); Miss Palmer, Miss Dorothy Longworth, and many others.

The girl friends of Miss Ethel Bridges, Charlottetown, entertained her to an aluminum shower at the home of Miss Mamie Ross, a Prince Street, on Wednesday evening last. Miss Bridges will be married next Wednesday morning to Mr. Erskine Stavert of Amherst.

Mrs. Goodwill, of Lynden Place, Brighton, announces the engagement of her niece, Mary Foster Goodwill to Mr. William Hayden Patterson, of Nelson, N. B., the marriage to take place quietly, the 17th of September.

Mrs. (Dr.) J. C. Ballew, Bedeque, received Thursday for the first time since her marriage. She was charmingly dressed in coral satin charmer's trimmed with Alice blue velvet and cream lace. Miss Isla Collett met the guests at the door, while Mrs. (Rev.) H. Johnston, beautifully gowned, assisted in receiving, and Miss Maud Wright ushered. Mrs. Misses Hazel Davison and Louise Schurman served dainty refreshments. The house decorations were very artistic.

MONTAGUE MARKETS

GOLF TOURNAMENT.

Continued from page one. She had attended a good many meetings but had never been to any more successful or enjoyable than that which had just been held here. They owed a hearty vote of thanks to the officers of the Association, and especially to Miss Bartlett, the Secretary. She knew something about the Secretary's duties and she could say that they had been carried out most successfully on this occasion. (Applause).

The Provincial Cup was handed over to Miss Bauld as captain of the winning team, by Mr. Rogers on behalf of Miss Smith, the captain of the New Brunswick team. Miss Bauld received the cup amid great applause. Cheers were given for each competitor, as she came up to receive her prize.

Finally on the call of Miss Smith, three hearty cheers were given by the visitors for the Charlottetown Golf Club. Miss Smith also proposed that Major Bartlett, Messrs. Handsomebody, Rogers and Barnes be made honorary members of the Ladies' Association—a suggestion that was received with applause and laughter.

ALWAYS CONSULT THE PHONE DIRECTORY.

It is surprising the large number of people in Charlottetown who, when they want to inquire about the Morning Daily Guardian or subscription, ask Central for the News phone No. 132-3, instead of 132-2, or when they want to inquire about advertising ask Central for the Subscription phone No. 132-2, or for the News phone No. 133, instead of 132-3; or when they want the News or Editorial Department ask Central for the Subscription phone No. 132-2, or the Advertising phone No. 132-3, instead of 133, although all those departments and their respective phone numbers are plainly given in the telephone book. Some people, instead of looking at the book, even phone one want will greatly lessen the work of other department. All this is a great waste of time on the part of the person phoning, the operator at the Central, and the clerk in the department wrongly phoned. The news staff, on an upper floor, cannot give the necessary information about either advertising or subscriptions, nor the advertising staff about subscriptions or news, nor the subscription staff about advertising or news. In other words the clerks know and can do but their own work in their own departments, and if it were otherwise they would be continually running from one department to another, upstairs and down, mixing work, wearing themselves out and causing the greatest possible confusion. On and after 6 p. m. daily it is useless to ask for any phone numbers except 132 and 133.

Patrons who consult their phone books for the numbers they really want number to ask for to get the patient Central telephone and Guardian clerks and thus help make their lives much brighter and happier.
