DEATH'S SPEED-TOLL.

Mother Shipton who lived during the reign of Henry VIII left on record a number of prophecies among which was the following couplet:

Carriages without horse shall go;
Accidents fill the world with woe.
At that time the horseless carriage was more remote and improbable than aerial flight by men is today. But the horseless carriage came long since and with it have come the predicted accidents, here and there about the earth wherever a passenger train is run.

We cannot do without railways, and the speed with which passengers are carried, which is so fruitful of casualties is after all not a mere whim or fad. It is a necessity of the swift moving age in which we live. So death takes toll at the curves, and the weak bridges, the misplaced switches, the level crossings, and in head-on and rear-end collisions. And a careful toll he takes. Last year 5,000 persons were killed and 76,200 injured in railway accidents in the United States alone. It is like the slaughter of a great battle, or "an earthquake's spoil."

And Canada's record is not much better than that of the United States if the number of passengers carried is taken into account. We have not the particulars at hand for the moment. In the meantime another form of horseless carriage has more recently come into use in all civilized lands, the automobile, and it too has been fruitful of accidents and fatalities in many ways, verifying the portentous accuracy of the Shiptonian prophecy.

The fatalities from the automobile have been very great. During the first ten months of the current year 236 men, women and children were killed outright by these vehicles in the United States alone, while the number of those injured more or less seriously runs into thousands. Ninety six were run down and killed while crossing the streets, and many more on the public highway. The owners and drivers of autos suffered terribly also. Seventy-four of these were killed by losing control of the car, 37 by collision with railway cars, street cars or vehicles, and 20 were killed in racing accidents.

Compared with the Spanish war in which 906 Americans were killed, or the San Francisco earthquake with its 383 fatalities, the automobile has been a close competitor as an instrument of death. But the automobile has double-s come to stay, like the railway, and the best that can be done is by careful regulation and care in operating to limit to a minimum the toll which death may take with this latest horseless carriage.

little more prohibitory legislation except along the lines of local option, which has since obtained very wide acceptance, so that today vast areas have delegatized the sale of liquor by popular vote in many hundreds of municipalities in both the United States and Canada.

Other advances made have been along the lines of high license, a great and growing restriction of the number of licenses, the closing of bars at earlier hours, on holidays and election days, and near important public works, the requirement that bars shall not be opened near public schools or places of worship and so on. The Canada Temperance Act and the local option provisions in the license laws of Ontario, Quebec and other Provinces have been of great benefit in restricting the traffic.

With the present century has come a great revival of faith in Prohibition. Every plan for regulating the liquor traffic has conspicuously failed. Prince Edward Island holds the great honor of being the first Canadian Province to both enact and maintain Prohibition. Manitoba made the attempt but it failed. But never before was there such a resolute advance all over the world along prohibition lines as there is today. Five states of the American union are now under the Prohibition banner. Finland recently adopted the principle and in Scandinavia, Switzerland, Australia and in almost every English-speaking country in the world the people are working earnestly and hopefully towards the total abolition of the liquor traffic.

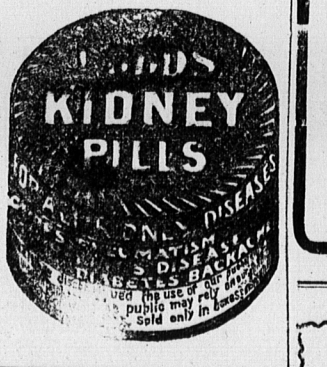

The wireless telephone is now in operation in Germany over distances of 50 to 60 miles. Men may yet talk with each other across the Atlantic. Who knows?

Prof. Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, has launched his new flying machine at Baddeck, N. S., with high hopes of success. Prof. Bell is the Edison of Canada, and as likely as not may once more astonish the world.

We are glad to find The Patriot giving some attention to the vital question of the relation of the tariff to the cost of living. The fact is that when the Fielding tariff was brought down in 1897 many thousands of people were disappointed at the very light reduction made in the old Conservative tariff which had been pronounced oppressive. Since then has come such a great advance in prices that the present tariff takes much more largely from the pockets of the people in proportion to the actual quantities of goods imported than any previous tariff. This was not intended, but has come as the result of a high ad valorem tariff applied to enhanced values. If present high prices continue the tariff ought to be greatly reduced and this the great consuming class, upon whom the cost of living now bears with crushing weight, will demand.

LIQUOR LEGISLATION.

For hundreds of years the parliaments of civilized countries have legislated to reduce the evils of the liquor traffic. It was not till nearly the middle of last century that the advanced reformers adopted the principle of entire prohibition. To the state of Maine belongs the honor of having adopted prohibition more than fifty-five years ago, and of since having kept the law continuously on its statute books. Some years ago it was embodied in the constitution of the state, and thus placed in a position of permanence. New Brunswick was the first British Province to adopt a Prohibitory Law, which came into operation on 1st January 1856. But it proved to be in advance of public sentiment and was repealed at a special session of the Legislature called for that purpose before the year had expired. Then for a time there was

Madam, Is your Coat soiled?

We can make it look like new.

Ask almost any lady you meet on the street who wears a coat or skirt THAT LOOKS LIKE NEW and in the majority of cases she will tell you it was cleaned and pressed at Stern's Lau Dry.

Our success in this department has been wonderful — During the summer months we have turned out by actual count 677 garments and a few still turn them out at the rate of about 25 per week.

Just lovely — look like new — did not think you could make it look so nice, are some of the remarks of the customers.

HOT AIR HEATING

Was your home comfortable last winter? If not you'll see a chilly proposal again shortly and one of our Improved Hot Air Furnaces will prove a warm friend with the glass below zero. With one of these you can keep your entire winter at an even temperature day and night. On a cold winter night the cheerful effect of a well-heated home more than repays you for the cost. It is economical too in the small amount of fuel it consumes for the heat it produces. Come in and talk the matter over.
