Deranged Nerves AND Weak Spells.

Mr. R. H. Sampson's, Sydney, N.S., Advice to all Sufferers from Nerve Trouble is

"GET A BOX OF MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS."

He says: "I have been ailing for about a year from deranged nerves, and very often weak spells would come over me and be so bad that I sometimes thought I would be unable to survive them. I have been treated by doctors and have taken numerous preparations but none of them helped me in the least. I finally got a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. Before taking them I did not feel able to do any work, but now I can work as well as ever, thanks to one box of your pills. They have made a new man of me, and my advice to any person troubled as I was, is to get a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills."

WARWICK CASTLE.

Lady Warwick Writes of the Pile and Its Earls.

The Countess of Warwick has just had published her historical work, "Warwick Castle and Its Earls, from Saxon Times to the Present Day."

As is often the case with books compiled and written by those who, while having no pretense to special literary acquirements, yet possess an absorbing interest in and knowledge of their subject, "Warwick Castle and Its Earls" is full of valuable material for the future historian, and contains many charming glimpses of the daily life led by our great nobility in times gone by.

Some most curious letters, pathetic, humorous and politically important, are scattered through the thousand pages, and here and there Lady Warwick indulges in amusing digressions concerning certain of her husband's ancestors and their often eventful lives.

She tells very prettily the romantic story of Guy, Earl of Warwick, and his wife, Phyllis, and in setting forth the famous adventures of Lady Godiva—who was, by the way, a connection of the Lord Warwick of her day—quotes the witty and little-known stanzas which appeared in the Etonian of 1780, and which are certainly the best ever written on the subject.

After dealing with the Saxon and Norman nobles who had the good fortune to own the first of the many castles built at Warwick, Lady Warwick divides the rest of her work into five sections, each describing exhaustively one of the great families, Beauchamps, Nevilles, Plantagenets, Dudleys, Riches and last, not least, Grevilles, whose life histories were interwoven with that of the historic pile.

It is amazing how many famous folk, from William the Conqueror to Lord Nelson, have had some sort of connection with Warwick Castle. Well and spiritedly told are the stories of the two famous women. Penelope Devereux and Mary Boyle, who both bore the proud title of Countess of Warwick.

Penelope deserves to take her place among the romantic heroines of the world, even if she did have but "an attenuated respect for the marriage tie," for she was the beloved "Stella" of Sir Philip Sidney, and, but for her worldly parents, would have been his wife. However, concerning this lady, her modern namesake is very severe, observing "that she is better forgotten than remembered."

"Lady Warwick is, however, scarcely kinder in her appreciation of the saintly Mary Rich, whose famous diary is one among the most curious of spiritual human documents in existence.

Scotch Women.

The new volume of the Scotch census throws some light on the female portion of the population. In 1901 there were in Scotland 4,472,103 persons, of whom 2,173,755 were males, and 2,298,348 were females. Of this total, 1,982,812, or 44 per cent., followed some occupation. There were, however, 1,198,618 females over ten years of age who were returned as "unoccupied and non-productive," against 264,893 males.

There were no women engaged in the "defence of the country," but many were employed in occupations usually reserved for men. Two only are described as "dealers in money," but one is described as a dock laborer, one is classed as a "coachman," two are classed as builders, one as a chimney sweeper, thirty-seven are engaged in cycle and motor manufacture, five rank as farm grieves (managers), one is engaged in "omnibus service," one is a paper-hanger, another is a plasterer, and two are house agents.

Altogether 5,686 women are classed as employers, and 42,418 women are "working on their own account."

In 1901 there were 7,200 females and 6,468 male lunatics over ten years of age in Scotland. Their former employments included: Medical profession, twenty-five females and twenty-six males; teaching, eighty-two females and fifty-four males; art, music and drama, twenty females and twenty-four males; and domestic service, 1,740 females and thirty-five males.

Subject of a Cartoon.

The rubicund subject of the cartoon in a recent number of Vanity Fair was Sir Edward Letchworth, F.S.A., Grand Secretary of Freemasons. Though he was born seventy years ago, he is described as still a hale and hearty young fellow, who plunged into matrimony last year with a lady who preferred his picture to diamonds as a wedding present, so that his portrait helped to adorn the walls of the Royal Academy. He began life as a solicitor, but he is now one of the best known men in the world as the most frequently executive officer in English Freemasonry. In 1877 he was made a member of the Grand Lodge of England, and, after having worthily filled a Grand Deacon's office, he was chosen to succeed the late Colonel Shadwell Clarke as Grand Secretary. Five-and-forty years ago he was a keen promoter of the volunteer movement, and served as captain in two corps; he was a sportsman who rode and rowed; he is a Governor of the Foundling Hospital and of St. Bartholomew's Hospital, and he was knighted last year.—London Star.

Wanted to Frighten Himself.

Andrew Carnegie at the opening of the autumn conference of the Iron and Steel Institute at Barrow-in-Furness, in England, told an odd little story from his vast collection of Scottish anecdotes.

"A Scot," he said, "was unhappy because he had lost his money. He borrowed a loaded gun and with a desperate look started toward a dismal fen. The owner of the gun, a little anxious, bawled after him to know if he was going to commit suicide. He bawled back:

" 'No just that. I'm only thinkin' o' gangin' doun to the fens to gie' mysel' a confounded fricht.' "
