—THE WOMAN'S REALM—

FROM MEADOW AND LEA

Now sing we a song of the harvest; Thanking and honor and praise; For all that the bountiful Giver Hath given to gladden our days; We reap it from mountain and moorland;

We glean it from meadow and lea; We garner it in from the cloudland; We bind it in sheaves from the sea.—W.C.G.

AUTOMATIC DOORS

Garage doors which open without electricity's aid have been designed. A mechanical device set in the drive-way is set by contact with one of the car wheels. When the machine is in the garage the doors close.

Take care of mirrors for they do so much to beautify a room, but only if their surface is bright and unmarred. If moisture gets through the backing or onto the mirror edges it will spoil the silver. A mirror should be wiped off with a slightly damp, soft cloth, and later polished with dry cloth.

Some people find it easy to believe that the big things in life are part of God's plan, but they cannot so readily see His hand in the small details. But what is big and what is small in this world? Great events turn on tiny hinges. You remember the old jingle: For lack of a nail a shoe was lost, For lack of a shoe a horse was lost, For lack of a horse a rider was lost, For lack of a rider a message was lost, For lack of a message a battle was lost—A.

SEALED FABRIC

LONDON.—A wool fabric with all the advantages of pure wool but as fine to the touch as georgette is the latest material produced by the United Kingdom scientific research. To give an idea of how light this new wool is, here is a comparison. The average woollen jumper weighs about 6 ozs. to the square yard; a jumper of this new wool would weigh about 1-1/2 to 2 ozs. to the square yard. Experiments in this fabric were started at Leeds University. These led to the discovery that, from ordinary seaweed, fibre called alginate could be made. Because it dissolves in soapy water and alkalis this would not be used as a "scaffolding" when weaving it was found to provide a tough base for the most delicate wool yarn—to delicate to be handled by machine in the ordinary way. The "scaffolding" the scientists discovered, could be washed away leaving a fine, soft wool. As smooth as crepe-de-chine, this fabric is ideal for women's clothes; it can be spun in bright deeper colors for evening gowns; pastel shades for lingerie. In fact, such materials are likely to have a bigger influence on future fashions than any other fabric known today.

MADE OWN SCHOOL

Farmers in three districts of Brown county, Neb., pooled their efforts and constructed a sod-high school, being to open to send their children to town schools.

NEW YORK.—The shortage in fur is an extra garment which every woman longs to own. This year it may be a snug-fitting little jacket with cape sleeve or it may have the big puffed sleeve; The shoulder cape with long stole ends is another fur piece that dresses up any suit and adds warmth by the way. Almost any fur of your choice may make one of these jackets, black or white, brown or gray, to suit the taste of the wearer.

When hay fever victims sneeze, they usually sneeze in series of three, four or five.

FULL-LENGTH COATS

NEW YORK.—Full-length coats with skirts for dinner are worn with the waistlines tightly belted in wide leather belts. Sleeves finished with shirtwaist cuffs.

PONY RIDERS CROSS CANADA

MOOSE JAW, Sask., August 7.—(CP) Two coast-to-coast trekkers who stopped here recently didn't mention the state of the highways or the speed of the airways. They are logging from New Westminster, B. C., to Halifax, on a pair of ponies.

Leslie (Sleepy) Frost and Nils (Swede) Nilsson, New Westminster cowboy-entertainers, trotted out of the west coast town May 11 and expect to get down off their nags for a Christmas dinner at the east coast port.

The entertainers, who played before Canadian troops during the war are also carrying the mail. They have a letter from Major J. W. Cornish of Vancouver for Mayor A. M. Butler of Halifax. Tucked in one of their bed rolls is a bottle of salt water from the Pacific which they will empty into the Atlantic.

The men are keeping a full diary and hope to publish their adventures when the trip is completed.

Nilsson hails from Sweden and his companion was born at Massey, Ont.

FOTS AND PANS LURE YOUNG MAN

BERLIN.—Matrimonial agencies throughout the American zone are doing a flourishing business, writes Judy Barden.

Besides a Summer woodland, softly carpeted with ferns and mosses, and with bits of blue sky above the lacy hemlocks and spruces and "moss" is the best of places to loiter next to a stream in charm and interest it surpasses the seashore. My friend the rexy squirrel was there "but really Elmer" just have to excuse me for running away in such a hurry "I'll tell you all about it some morning. Listen," she whispered, and then scurrying back she was gone in a flash. "I'll tell you all about it some morning. Listen," she whispered, and then scurrying back she was gone in a flash. "I'll tell you all about it some morning. Listen," she whispered, and then scurrying back she was gone in a flash.

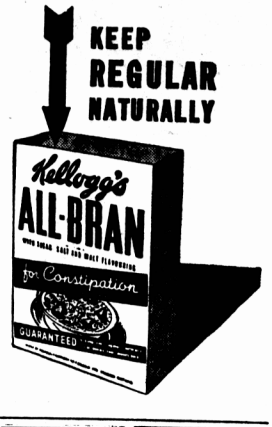

Men, on the other hand, don't get away completely "scot-free." They also have to offer something in exchange for the pots and pans. They have to be, say, labouring working 60 hours a week and therefore getting a class A ration card.

Both men and women take in to consideration living accommodations. A woman with a reasonable house and no likelihood of being evicted by the Americans can have a filthy temper and be practically bald, but she will stand a chance—and a good chance—of first place in the wedlock stakes.

Men who have an establishment, and by establishment I mean any sort of home other than an air-raised shelter, are snowed-under by the women. When two Germans decide that they can make a go of it, the nearest procession starts. Jew Germans have cars and wedding processions are usually on foot. In some cases, however, an affluent man in Berlin, who I believe was in the undertaking business before the war and possibly still is, often lends his coach for weddings and the happy couple rattle away from the local church in what looks like a horse.

Seeing the array of wedding presents is also unforgettable. The average person, even if he could afford it, can't find things to buy as gifts. Therefore, he gives for his home: A kitchen chair, a broken-down table, a grandfather clock that doesn't work but will fill up a space, an unmatched set of china, and always plenty of cut glass.

Dip the knife in water before youk it hard-boiled eggs and the yolk is not nearly so apt to crumble and break apart.

Ellen's Diary

By an Island Farmer's Wife

This was the day, when at noon the cattle pasturing there were content to rest lazily against the hill-side in the sun. And a cool refreshing breeze blew out of the West for farmers who had not yet completed their hay, and the maples above the old grey mill and along the stream held pretty silvery glints in their resins, branches while the evergreens were dark and unmoved, made to withstand these and stronger winds. The same land across the sides of the woodland, I sat minute in the shade to await the coming of the mailman. I had come to the millbox with my Sunday letters, and since he was down at any minute, there was no need of making a second trip.

Q. Would it be ill-bred to exchange a wedding present when one has received four or five duplicates? A. No; it would be a very sensitive person who would resent it. However, it would be preferable to consult any member of the bride's or groom's families before exchanging one of their gifts.

Using a razor blade, carefully scrape from the outside "seams" all protruberances of cement. If there are small missing pieces you will have to fill them in with porcelain cement. Mix this cement with water until a thick paste is obtained. With an orange wood stick apply the paste to the edges of the hole, working slowly and building up and filling the hole. Smooth the surface of the "seams" area and allow to dry for 24 hours. Scrape again, lightly, with "razor blade," smooth down with fine sandpaper and paint with copious shellac. Again dry for 24 hours.

The days of exploration are not over yet, and the view of the mysterious land from the third stair climbed by this baby must be rather puzzling. Having reached the third stair, though, the biggest puzzle of all is how to get down again.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Look At Her Mother

Man Does Preliminary Sleuthing Before He Pops Question

A LAD ASKES how he can't tell what sort of a wife a girl will make. Well, son, you can't even tell what she is going to look like after she combs the rice out of her hair after the wedding and puts on a bungalow apron. Naturally a girl puts her best foot foremost when she is husband-hunting and no bridegroom can know, with certainty, whether he is winning a prize package or getting stuck.

Still, there is no sense in buying a pig in a poke in marriage and the wise guy should do some preliminary sleuthing before he pops the question. About the best way to find out what sort of a wife a girl will make is to take a good, hard, appraising look at her mother, for, 90 times out of a 100, Angelina is going to be Mama's double.

If Mother has gotten fat and slouchy by the time she is 40, you have a snapshot of how Angelina is going to look when she takes off her hunting clothes and bids farewell to her waistline. If Mother just slaps any kind of a pickup meal on a table and doesn't think it worth while to give her family good food, don't trust your digestion to Angelina. If Mother spats with Father and treats him without respect, pass up Angelina.

YOUR DISH

But if Mother is spick and span and up on her toes, if she is a good cook and manager and if she makes a pet of Papa, Angelina is your dish. Also, observe Angelina's position in the family. If she runs the household and everybody in it is afraid of her, it is a dead sure tip on how she will heckpe her husband.

Cast a wary eye on Angelina's clothes. If she dresses beyond her means, it is a sign that never fails that she will keep her husband's nose to the grindstone paying for sweet little 240 hats and darling little numbers that have been marked down from $100 to $69.48.

Cut out the love talk long enough to get a line on Angelina's conversational ability. You can't spend 40 or 50 years asking her if she is sure she loves you and if she would die of grief if anything untoward happened to you. You would get mighty fed up with a wife who never reads a book or had an original idea and who never even knew what was going on in the world. Boring wives send more husbands philiandering than any other one thing.

Take notice of what sort of sport Angelina is. If she is one of the sort who whines and complains over everything that goes wrong and who blames you for the state of the weather and not having gotten the best seats at a show, flee from her for your life. Married life is bound to have a lot of ups and downs in it, and what a man wants in a wife is a woman who will stand by him and fight with him, shoulder to shoulder, and keep him cheered up by her faith in him.

Don't be fooled into thinking that it is cute in Angelina to always be asking "pretty please" for things as if she were a darling little child who didn't know any better. She is a seasoned little gold-digger who is playing you for a sucker. If you fall for it, you will deserve what you get. She will make one of the wives who always live beyond their husband's incomes and who drive them into bankruptcy and often send them to the penitentiary for stealing to get the money to pay for mint and diamond jewelry.

You can't know just what sort of a wife Angelina will make, son, but you can make a mighty good guess if you take note of her little ways.

Without a doubt, this is the prettiest frock of the season for a Junior miss. She can't help wearing it heart on her sleeves, or on the broken article just stays broken. repairs. Incidentally, the fine way in the world to break a lamp is to arrange the cord so that it just swings clear of the floor on its way up to a table. It may take years but eventually you'll manage to tangle a foot in it and the lamp crashes to the floor!

Well, make a vow to use better sense in disposing of trailing lamp cords and in filling the menial job. Vases, plates, china, cabinet boxes, bibelot of all sorts respond to the following treatment.

First, the enamel coating of ordinary household china cement to all the broken edges. Use a child's smutting brush for this. Dry the broken pieces for a few minutes and apply a second coating. Press broken pieces of china together, holding up one to the adjoining piece until it is "set." Remove fingers from pieces cautiously as there is nothing quite so disastrous as to have the pieces all come out again. Dry the pieces for two or three days.

Again dry for 24 hours.

Repeat the article if there is no design on it, in enamel paint of the original shade—a little mixing and blending of two or three colors of enamel will result in a satisfactory coating of clear shellac, working from top down, or in the case of a plate—from the centre nearly as large as himself. Feeding these New Hampshire vellelets is a daily chore of his.
