A Ford motor car has to be disposed of at once as circumstances make it of no further use to the owner. This car is really and actually as good if not better than a car right out of the factory as it has been tested and found to be one of the best Fords produced. It has a perfect running motor and has the appearance of, what it practically is, a brand new car. The car has absolutely no defects and has only been run about 200 miles with a very careful driver.

This offer will not last long so apply quickly.

The Promoter's Wife

BY JANE PHELPH

BARBARA IS RECONCILED TO THE PUBLIC SCHOOL FOR ROBERT CHAPTER XXIII.

The next morning I took Robert to the public school in our district. The teacher was very kind, and when I told her he had always been a private school pupil she congratulated me because of my making the change.

"Not that I would say anything against private schools," she said. "But I think boys work harder, grow more manly when they mix with all sorts of boys, instead of just with those of their own class. But I am a public school teacher, and one who taught in private schools might not have my views."

I felt quite happy about him when I left my boy in her charge. Perhaps it would be the best thing for him after all, this mixing with boys of middle class and poor parents, instead of the sons of wealthy fathers who indulged and often spoiled some of them.

I talked with Neil over the telephone, telling him what I had done, were about it. He appeared depressed, and did not respond with any enthusiasm. I wondered how affairs were going, then recalled Mr. Frederick's promise to keep me informed, so tried not to worry.

As I look back at this time in my life I can see how Mr. Frederick's efforts smoothed away many difficulties which but for him would have been almost insurmountable. But then my mind was too confused. I was too anxious about Neil to appreciate all or even a small part of what this dear friend was doing to help us—me. That was what it was, helping me. Yet even so I could not. I would not refuse that help because I knew it was Neil's salvation. And I loved Neil.

We women are often like that. I was no exception. We will take offerings from those who care for us simply to further the interests of those we love.

Mr. Frederick called me up and told me everything was going as well as could be expected, and that I was not to worry. I told him how Neil's indifference to Robert's school change had made me anxious; and he reassured me.

"Don't expect him to think much of anything until we get him out of the woods. I have taken all the necessary papers and books from the office, and put a man in there to attend to the mail."

"What of his stenographer and bookkeeper?" I asked.

"Discharged them both," laconically.

I couldn't help a little rush of gladness unworthy as it was. It is true. I believe that when we do wrong, or something which in any way belittles us, that we are anxious to avoid those who know of it. I never had felt comfortable about those two, since my trip to Neil's office during his absence when I intended to surreptitiously look over his mail, although I never had seen either of them since.

"You will keep the office going?"

"For the present, yes. Mail may come for some time. Those circulars have had a wide distribution."

How I hated the mention of those glowing circulars. The extravagant language, the promises they contained, promises they believed would be fulfilled, but which the men, Neil among them, knew never could be. I pictured men and women poring over them, figuring how much they would make if they sent certain amounts to be invested, the interest they would receive. I fancied many scripping their living in many ways to buy the worthless stock, then looked around at my luxurious home, expensive, beautiful, and all bought with their money, and for the first time I hated it. Hated all this luxury I had so loved, hated the thought that I had selected each piece of furniture, each hanging, each bit of bric-a-brac. I longed to be rid of it all, to leave.

"Have you put the advertisement in the paper?" was my next question. "The house can be seen at any time."

"No—I talked with Tearle. He is coming to look at it tomorrow, I shall try to come with him."

Vaurely I knew, as I thanked him and hung up the receiver, that he was coming so that he might help me, so that I might not be embarrassed. Surely no one ever had so considerate a friend. As I walked slowly upstairs I said to myself: "Were it not that I loved Neil so dearly I might have cared for you."

THIS WOMAN SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

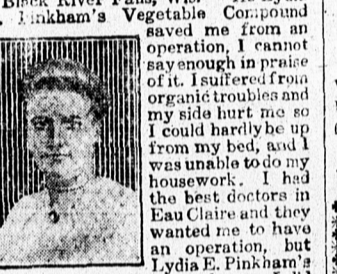

By taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, One of a hundred of Such Cases.

Black River Falls, Wis.—"As Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved me from an operation, I cannot say enough in praise of it. I suffered from organic troubles and my side hurt me so I could hardly be up from my bed, and I was unable to do my housework. I had the best doctors in Eau Claire and they wanted me to have an operation, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me so I did not need the operation, and I am telling all my friends about it."—Mrs. A. W. BINZER, Black River Falls, Wis.

It is just such experiences as that of Mrs. Binzer that has made this famous root and herb remedy a household word from ocean to ocean. Any woman who suffers from inflammation, ulceration, displacements, backache, nervousness, irregularities or "the blues" should not rest until she has given it a trial, and for special advice write Lydia E. BEGINS WEDNESDAY AT 10 A. M.

Below you will find the "Questionaire" for boys to be used in this survey. That for Girls is very similar. It would be a help if the householder would cut this out and have it filled out ready for the canvasser. At any rate, study the questions, so as to be able to quickly answer them, and thus materially assist the canvassers in their work.

Let some responsible member of the family arrange to be at home all day Wednesday.
