DISFIGURED BABY BORN.

WILKESBARRE, Penn., June 10—Mrs. Anthony Dehollen of Durys gave birth to a baby with two heads, four arms and four feet. The baby lived but a few hours after birth. The extra head and arms branched off the trunk. The heads were set on the shoulders firmly, but instead of facing towards the front, they faced each other. The feet also faced each other and the 10 toes almost touched. One set of hands grew just above the other, but the child, during its short life, seemed to have separate control of each.

NAKED CHILDREN TO FORM PARADE.

CHICAGO, June 8—Naked children by a score will, it is planned, appear in the streets throughout the congested quarters of the west side of the city next week as a striking protest against the suffering brought to women and children by reason of the high cost of meat. This was decided at a meeting of the Hebrew mothers in a west side hall today. It is designed to attract the attention of the public, they say, to what they characterize as unnecessary high prices fixed both by wholesalers and retailers upon the only meat they may eat.

OWNS MANY DEER.

NEW YORK, June 10—When a woman in an enlightened country makes her way to a front rank in the industrial world, she is not only to be commended but she is also to be learned something of the conditions that brought it about and of the character of the one who accomplished it. That a woman with a brown skin should also successfully compete with the men of her race is less generally understood, says the Christian Herald, Out of 200 Eskimos who own reindeer in Alaska who are women. One of these, Mary Arisarlook Andrewk, has received the title of Reindeer Queen of Alaska.

Queen Mary owns a herd of 1,303 deer, which she manages with judgment and intelligence. According to the usual contract made with the government she is required to train three apprentices and to give to each the customary number of deer. She has trained and rewarded eight or ten apprentices, and at the present time has another under her care. She long since discarded the igloo or native hut, half underground, in which she was born, and is now comfortably housed near Nome in a cabin of logs. She speaks seven or eight Indian languages and this has enabled her to be of considerable service as an interpreter.

Queen Mary has brought up a number of helpless children, and having none of her own, has not only cared for them physically, but has also given them a place in her heart. Surely, according to her light, she hath done her part.

TOWEL RACKS.

In selecting a glass towel rack for the bathroom it is well to look at the rod of twisted glass, mounted in nickel. These rods have a decided advantage over the simple round glass rod. The twist is just enough to keep the towels from slipping off, as frequently happens with the smooth rod.

FOSS SIGNS G.T.R. BILL. BOSTON, June 10—In view of the statement that he should veto all transportation measures unless his plans for improvements in an about Boston were approved the action of the government surprised members of the legislature. On Saturday the government vetoed the so-called westerly trolley consolidation bill, a measure advocated by the New York, New Haven, and Hartford railway. In signing the Grand Trunk bill, Governor Foss said: "The entrance of the Grand Trunk into Boston is needed for future development of the port and desirable as a means of controlling thru competition of the grain road interest of the state."
