WELDED TO NICKEL AFTER DEATH

There were seven in the family. They got ten cents from the mother with that pittance, lived home little Margaret, three years old, was crying with hunger, and Mr. Meade, intrusted with the dime, sent out to buy milk to still the baby's cries. ### NEW LINER WAS HELPLESS IN GALE

NEW YORK, October 29.—When the steamer Furness arrived from Glasgow this week, her three hundred passengers, through their spokesman, expressed their great relief over the safe ending of the voyage. For thirty hours on last Wednesday the ship was helpless during a ninety-nine hour gale, due to an accident in her engine room. A cross-head slipped out of place, a matter that is usually remedied in calm weather, but with such a storm as then was raging, the machinists were able to work with one hand while holding on with the other to prevent themselves from being knocked down. Meanwhile the waves were making a plaything of the big liner and the passengers were tossed out of their beds. The accident caused her to be a day late in reaching port.

HORRID SCENES IN SIBERIA

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Horrid is the picture of existence in the penal colonies of Northern Siberia given in a book just published in Germany by L. Tane, who returned to life after a period of eight and a half years in the living grave of Kolymsk. In that time, he says, he saw one after another of his fellows succumb to suicide, hunger and insanity. They were all young men and all went away for terms ranging from five to ten years for political offenses. The trip to Kolymsk takes sixteen months. "I was twenty years old," he says, "when I was convicted for harboring liberal convictions. In our party were a sixteen year old boy and another a year younger. All told were fifty political." The writer describes the agonies of hunger which the deported "politicals" had to endure. Mail was received three times a year. "I shall never forget one mail day," he says, "in eighteen months a certain one of our number had not heard from home. This mail brought him a letter. It was a last greeting written in an uncertain hand by his mother on her death-bed. In desperation he did what so many of our party had done before him and which others did after we had laid him away."

WHAT A FOOL IT MADE OF HIM

ST. JOHN, Oct. 29.—A man slightly the worse off for that which infuriates, but does not always cheer, was on his way home when he collided with a box picket fence which had been placed around a tree to protect it. Being somewhat unsteady on his limbs, the man grasped hold of what he supposed was a picket fence and started to feel his way along it. After retreating around the tree for half an hour he appeared somewhat puzzled at the extraordinary length of the fence, but he kept bravely on for some time. Finally, however, his courage failed him, and he sank down at the foot of the 'box fence with a groan of despair. "Fenced in!" he moaned.

This order applies especially to the new battleships New Hampshire, Idaho, and Mississippi, the armored cruisers Montana and North Carolina, and to the scout cruisers Birmingham, Chester and Salem. It is not yet known definitely whether this order will be extended to apply to the auxiliary vessels of the fleet.

IMPROPER TALK IN PULPIT COSTS $100

TELENTA, Ga., Oct. 29.—The Georgia Court of Appeals yesterday affirmed the verdict of guilty against the Rev. W. H. Holcombe of Cartersville, Ga., who was convicted of using improper language in the pulpit when there were women in the congregation and sentenced to pay a fine of five hundred dollars and costs. Holcombe is an evangelist and the son-in-law of the late Rev. Sam P. Jones. Holcombe used the language for which he was indicted in the Cartersville Tabernacle while a great revival was in progress. In affirming the conviction the Court of Appeals says: "It was not the ribaldry of some low-grade comedian in second-class theatre; it was the indecent jest of a minister of the Gospel, made in a house devoted to the services of God in the presence of some three thousand worshippers, aimed at a female member of the congregation whose excess of adipose happened to excite his attention."

CHORUS GIRL FOUND PEARL

MONTREAL, Oct. 29.—Montrealers have, for a number of years, considered that they knew a considerable amount about the luscious Malpeque oyster, as a food, as a delight to the palate and as a characteristic Canadian product. It has remained, however, for a young woman, presently of the chorus of "The Boys and Betty," to discover another claim he has on consideration. This is the story, as the assistant manager told it this morning after coming post-haste in a cab in order that the great reading and eating public might remain in ignorance not a minute longer than was necessary. "One of the brightest and most accomplished members of our company," he said, "Miss Gordon by name and descended from many noble families of the United States, was peacefully pursuing her way through the regular supper of ladies in a comic opera chorus—consisting, as all the world knows, of oysters and champagne—when she noticed a foreign substance in a particularly luscious bivalve she had just put in her mouth. "To her amazement, investigation showed it to be a pearl, valued conservatively at $300. No, I have not brought it downtown with me. "The waiter—it was at the Corona—attempted to take the pearl from Miss Gordon on the ground that her crêper had been for oysters, not pearls, but she succeeded in repulsing him and retaining possession of the jewel. "I am thinking seriously of leaving the theatrical business and organizing a company to search for pearls in Malpeque Bay."

AGED TWENTY-TWO, BUT STILL A BABY

Remarkable Case of Girl Who Has Grown Neither Physically Nor Mentally. Plays With Her Doll.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—In an isolated cottage by a quiet by-road in the small hamlet of Cove, Devon, lives a girl who, though 22 years old, has never grown up. Her name is Mildred Hart, and she is the daughter of a carpenter. Since she was five years of age she has not developed either physically or mentally. Her teeth are those cut as an infant and she has retained all her baby ways. She was seated in a baby's chair nursing a doll when a correspondent entered the cottage. Every now and then she would kiss the doll and then hold it up to her younger sister, a tall girl of 20, with the command in a loud Devon, "Kissun!" Her clothes, even to her little socks and shoes, are such as one is accustomed to see on a child of 5. She takes some pride in a conversationalist as some children of 5, but will answer every question put to her. When her sister asked her who made her clothes, she replied, "Mudder," and answered several other queries in monosyllables. Her mother still nurses her daughter just as she did seventeen years ago. The girl dislikes going to bed, and insists on remaining downstairs until her parents retire for the night, when she is put in a little cot in her room. The parents cannot assign a reason for the arrested development of their child, but it appears that two sisters failed to develop in the same way. One died at the age of 9 and the other at 18. The girl enjoys the best health and is much more contented than the ordinary child of 5. She will sit for hours at a stretch nursing her doll. Every one in the hamlet has a kindly word for her when she is driven out in her mailcoat. She smiles back their greetings and is usually very good-tempered. There are five members of the family, one of the sons being a stalwart member of the Metropolitan police force.

CHOCOLATE KING IS NOT SELLING

OTTAWA, Oct. 29.—Inquiry into the report that Mr. Manier, the French chocolate king is endeavoring to sell the Island of Anticosti, shows that it is unfounded. Manier paid one hundred thousand dollars for the Island some years ago and has spent large sums of money in the construction of docks, buildings and roads. His own residence cost over fifty thousand dollars.

The mother said that when a young woman, who called for deceased, was told that he had taken his life, she said that she knew he had been gambling, and that she had begged him to leave his companions but he was so fascinated by them that he refused. Many fine hunting dogs are being taken with the outgoing parties and if their being well supplied with outfit means anything, the parties leaving the Union Station these days should be successful.

The Government has called upon the most eminent scientists in Mexico to investigate the situation.
