INSPECTION OF CADET CORPS

THE CADETS OF QUEEN SQUARE AND WEST KENT MADE SPLENDID SHOWING LAST EVENING

The annual inspection of the Cadets of West Kent and Queen Square Schools took place last evening at Victoria Park.

That much interest was taken in the event was evident by the large number of citizens present.

The boys in their natty uniforms presented a fine appearance and went through the various evolutions in a masterly manner and style which would have done credit to soldiers of a more advanced stage.

The inspecting officer last evening was Colonel Leigh, who had as assistants, Colonel Prowse, D. S. O., and Colonel Davidson.

The boys were put through company movements, platoon drill, extended order drill, and physical training.

The inspecting officer was delighted with their work. Simply wonderful, was the phrase he used to describe it.

Sergt. Major Baigant was in charge of the West Kent cadets and Principal Francis of Queen Square. Both made a showing that was highly creditable indeed to these instructors, and to the casual spectator, it would appear that in making a final decision the judging officer will have some intricate points to consider.

Before the inspection took place Mayor Wright formally presented the West Kent cadets with the cup won by them last year which he presented.

After tea inspection the cadets were briefly addressed by Colonel Leigh, Colonel Prowse, and Col. Davidson who heartily congratulated them upon their efficiency.

Col. Leigh expressed regret the Mayor R. B. Willis, the organizer and Col. Leigh expressed regret the Major R. B. Willis, the organizer and Inspector for the Maritime Provinces was unable to be present.

Col. Leigh goes to Georgetown tomorrow to inspect the corps of that town.

HAD ATMOSPHERE OF HOME

Ambassador Quick to S'e Attraction "Hostess House" Would Have for Americans in London.

It was an amusing incident that first made the need of the hostess house apparent in London. In 1917 certain American members of a Canadian unit had business with the American ambassador, but could come to him only on Sunday.

Mr. Page suggested that they come to tea at his house. Six of them arrived, and Mrs. Page poured tea in the drawing-room. It was very cheery and cordial, but somehow the business hung over. They had to meet another Sunday.

This time there were ten Americans—and the business was not completed. Mr. Page suggested a third Sunday, and 20 Americans came to transact business with him on that day.

During the following week he suggested that the Americans in the Canadian unit who still wished to talk to him should come to his house a fourth Sunday and wind up affairs with him, and on the fourth Sunday the Page drawing room was packed with soldiers.

The ambassador told his associates about it, and one of them chaffed an American who had gone there to tea. "Ambassadors are popular with you Yanks!" he said.

"Oh, the ambassador's all right!" conceded the American. "But we didn't attach much importance to the business. It was Mrs. Page. She served us tea around an honest-to-goodness leg fire, with a tea wagon and fixtures. It was great!"

And there you are! Mindful of those Sundays, Mr. Page realized that with the advent of American forces in England a substitute home for them was an immediate necessity; so he was the moving spirit in the establishment by the Y. M. C. A. of the Square, London.

American Officers' Inn at 5 Cavendish visits to Strasbourg in the spring of 1914, returned last week to the old nests on a building on the left side of the Place de Broglie, in the centre of Strasbourg. Several storks, the first in five years, now occupy the nests.

The unexpected return in the present circumstances is commented upon with pleasure by the native population, who have always held that the storks brought good luck. The building to which the storks returned is next door to the house in which on April 25, 1792 Rouget as Lisle first sang the Marseillaise. The Bank of France recently has established its offices in the building with the stork nests. Before the war the storks of Strasbourg brought many tourists to that city.

HOW TO CARE FOR A HORSE IN HOT WEATHER

The following suggestions for the care of horses in hot weather are offered by one of the Freight Transportation Departments:

- 1. Load lightly and drive slowly. 2. Stop in the shade if possible. 3. Water your horse as often as possible.

Do not suffer another day with itching, bleeding or protruding piles. No surgical operation required.

Dr. Chase's Ointment will relieve you at once and as a certain cure you see a box, all dealers or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Sample box free if you mention this paper, and enclose 1 cent postage.

HOW THE CIRCUS WILL BE UNLOADED JULY 4th.

possible. So long as a horse is working water in small quantities will not hurt him. But let him drink only a few swallows if he is going to stand still. Do not fail to water him at night after he has eaten his hay.

4. When he comes in after work, sponge off the harness marks and sweat, his eyes, his nose and mouth and the dock. Wash his feet but not his legs.

5. If the thermometer is 75 degrees or higher, wipe him all over with a damp sponge. Use vinegar water if possible. Do not turn the hose on him.

6. Saturday night give a bran mash lukewarm, and add a tablespoon of saltpeper.

7. Do not use a horse-hat unless it is a canopy-top hat. The ordinary bell-shaped hat does more harm than good.

8. A sponge on top of the head, or even a cloth is good if kept wet. If dry it is worse than nothing.

9. If the horse is overcome by heat, get him into the shade, remove all harness and bridle, wash out his mouth, sponge him all over, shower his legs, and give him two ounces of aromatic spirits of ammonia, or two ounces of sweet spirits of nitre in a pint of water; or give him a pint of coffee, warm. Cool his head at once, using cold water, or if necessary, chopped ice, wrapped in a cloth.

10. If the horse is off his feed try him with two quarts of oats and add a little salt or sugar. Or give him oatmeal gruel or barley water to drink.

11. Watch your horse. If he stops sweating suddenly or if he breathes short and quick, or if his ears droop, or if he stands with his legs braced sideways, he is in danger of a heat or sun stroke and needs attention at once.

12. If it is so hot that the horse sweats in the stable at night, tie him outside with bedding under him. Unless he cools off at night he cannot well stand the next day's heat.

WEANING PIGS

Too many farmers follow the practice of weaning pigs when too young. There is no better feed for growing pigs than their mother's milk, consequently it should be used to the greatest extent possible.

When the pigs are of suckling age, the sow should be on full feed. Often serious results follow weaning at too early an age. An entire change of feed following weaning may create serious trouble.

To obtain the best results, pigs should gain continuously until they are ready for market. The best results will not be obtained unless pigs have access all the time possible to good forage crops, alfalfa and red clover preferred. If these feeds cannot be procured, rye, oats, barley, rape or any other grain or grasses that will produce good forage in the locality, should be sown. The pigs should be watched closely to see that they are on their feed. If they are not, the feed should be changed, using skim milk or buttermilk, if possible. The pigs should be kept free from lice by the use of crude or good black oil. They must have access at all times to good pure water. Shade must be provided during the hot summer months. Natural shade is always best, but where this is not obtainable, temporary shade may be provided by setting posts and nailing boards on poles and covering with straw or grass.
