

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria. At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless, Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

THE STORY

CHAPTER XII

Garth found Joan Quarrier at the Mission school. Entering the building he stood for a space in a doorway and watched her read to a group of Cree orphans.

As she looked up, aware of his presence, he said: "It is not February but I have returned."
"Something is the matter?" she said, apprehensively. "What has happened at Elkwan?"

"Etienne shot himself."
"But you, why are you here? Why did you come?"

"For you."
"For me—to go to Elkwan?" Dazed at the idea, her hand sought her forehead, while the chattering children crowded curiously around them.

"He wants you. There may be infection—and you know wounds—have everything in your kit, bandages, stimulants, antiseptic."

"Let me put on my coat and we'll talk outside," she said.

So they went to the clearing.
"I know well what I'm asking," he said. "It means a day on the sled—discomfort, for you. But he is my friend, and it may mean his life—your coming."

Her troubled eyes turned to his. "I want to go—the trip is nothing I'm going, alone, with you—it means leaving the mission, I suppose."

"Of course, Swan will make a fuss. To him it will look immoral—your going—to save a man's life," he said, savagely, "but for you—an army nurse, with a life at stake," he pleaded, "is there any choice?"

She smiled wistfully as she gazed over the frozen river.

"I've got to go. It's in my blood—to help them—the wounded."

His heart leaped at the words. "To help the strong—to help me—is that in your blood, too, Joan Quarrier?" he asked passionately.

She shivered and avoided his eyes.

Woman Praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sarnia, Ont.—"I am willing to answer letters from other women, to tell them the wonderful good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did me. I cannot be thankful enough for the benefits I received during the Change of Life. I do housework and my troubles made me unfit to work. A friend advised me to try the Vegetable Compound. I felt great relief at once, began to regain my appetite, and my nerves got better. I will recommend your medicine to all with troubles like I had."—Mrs. JOHN BANSON, 162 N. Christian St., Sarnia, Ontario.

Clyde River Notes

Mr. Alex McNeill, Clyde River, was also a visitor to the city on Monday.

Messrs. Leslie Gillespie and Robert D. Matheson, commercial students at Charlottetown spent the week end at their homes in Clyde River.

Signs of spring in this locality: A flock of milk geese flying north, a robin's song, ice breaking up on the ponds, farmers ordering fertilizers and ladders looking over wall-paper catalogues! All these signs are surely harbingers of spring.

Great quantities of logs being moved to the several mills in this vicinity, to be sawed into building material testify to the prosperity of our farmers who are still able to "carry on" notwithstanding the prevailing low prices of potatoes.

Mr. Fred'k Beer, Clyde River and Mr. Ira C. Auld, Kingston were in Charlottetown on Monday with great loads of hogs for Messrs. Davis and Fraser. With the present excellent price, it is quite remunerative to "tell it" with hogs.

Mr. Harold Murray of Regina, Sask., who is spending the winter in Clyde River with his mother, Mrs. Angus Cameron and other relatives and friends was a visitor to Charlottetown last week. Mr. Murray intends returning to "the land of smiling wheatfields" in the near future.

Much credit is due Prowse Bros., and the management of CFCY for the splendid programme of old time music broadcast on Monday evening. The performing artists, who are really masters in their several lines have many friends and admirers in Clyde River.

Miss Ina Livingston, Clyde River, was a visitor to Kingston on Tuesday the guest of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Marshall. We are sorry to know that Mrs. Marshall's mother, Mrs. George Beer (Sr.) is indisposed and we hope that this remarkable lady who is over the four score mark may soon regain her usual splendid health and strength.

The rate payers of Clyde River School have provided an excellent case to hold the books for the School days library made possible through the generosity of Mr. Adam Andrew, San Francisco, Cal. Mr. Andrew spent part of his childhood days at the "Bannockburn Mills," Clyde River, and when he revisited the scenes of his boyhood last summer, he was able to recall vividly happenings of the old days, which seem to fill quite a large place in his affections.

We welcome Easter, hoping that March proves herself a real lady in taking her departure amid sunshine and balmy breezes—but we wonder! —Biddy-Deux.

A few hours' sleep, until his dogs were fit to take the ninety-mile run north to Elkwan and the sick man who, officially, had died on the Ghost.

At noon he drove his refreshed team to the mission where Joan, standing beside her duffle bags, waited in the snow.

With the light load of two passengers, the big runner sled—its wooden shoes shod with ice, which slips over a hard surface with less friction than steel and can be renewed at will, would be sport for the five powerful dogs. Driving, as he would, to bring skill and medicine to the succor of the guest at Elkwan, Garth hoped to reach the post before dawn, but much depended on the light. A thick night would slow the dogs to a walk while crossing the mouths of the big rivers, where tide cracks opened and closed over night and the trail led through hummocks and ridges, bad going by day—at night, heart-breaking to driver and dogs.

"You're not sorry—haven't regretted promising to come?" he asked, as he wrapped her in robes and stowed her bags.

She shook her head. "Not in the least, Mr. Exlie, I'm reconciled now to the loss of the last shred of my reputation. It was a wild scene—in the house. They even prayed for me

"Swan told her she couldn't return to the mission."

"A-ah!" contemptuously grunted the other. "We'll send over and get her belongings. She'll spend the rest of the winter with us. But she's much too valuable to the Swans for them to stick to their high horse. They'll be over trying to wheedle her into coming back."

"But I hope she won't."

"We'll see to that. Why, they didn't know how to feed a husky pup, and in charge of twenty children! Think of it! Joan turned to and taught 'em something, scientific, you know. Oh, they'll be back after her."

Guthrie grinned broadly as he said: "So will I."

"Well, I hope you get her."

Behind the slab counter Garth nudged up on a bundle of blankets for
