FEARFUL CARNIVAL OF BLOOD TERRORIZES PEOPLE OF HAYTI

Wholesale Execution of Revolutionists Followed by Threat of Terrible Massacre if Foreign Interference Occurs--
Nominal Dollar Only Worth Six Cents.--Terrible Destitution Prevails

NEW YORK, April 22—More than three weeks have elapsed since the savage shooting of political prisoners, variously estimated at from twenty-seven to forty-eight, sent the warships of four nations scurrying to Port Au Prince Hayti. Their arrival put the seal of security on the lives and property of foreigners, and since then at least outward tranquility has prevailed.

While there have been many arrests of natives suspected of sympathy with the late revolution and political prisoners continue to be brought in in batches from interior points, there have been no more public shootings. Indeed, the government denies that any more executions have taken place. This, however, is incredible in view of the fact that many persons are known to have been dragged from their beds at night and that all trace of them has been lost.

In the executions of March 15 last, Pres. Nord Alexis achieved the double purpose of obliterating as many of his foes as he could lay hands on and striking terror into the hearts of those who were beyond his reach. Since then his name and that of his ferocious lieutenant, Gen. Jules Alexis Odeton, who personally directed the shooting of the prisoners including some of his own blood relatives, are only mentioned in whispers. All Hayti trembles before them, and as long as they are in power there is scant probability of any renewal of insurrection until any one of the half dozen exiled aspirants for the presidency has raised the sinews of war for another attempt. Alexis can afford to regard the movements of these patriots with indifference, but he has made the significant statement that if he is not permitted to end his term of office unmolested, rather than submit to deposition he will write his name on the scroll of fame in the blood of such a massacre as Hayti has not since the days of Dessalines, once known as Jean Jacques I. No one doubts his ability to carry out his threat, which is understood to be intended as a deterrent not only to revolutionists but to any attempt at foreign interference in the affairs of Hayti.

Destitution prevails on every hand. Ragged soldiers swarm the streets, begging piteously, and even officers, in dingy gold and silver lace, cap in hand, are profuse in thanks for a dole of five cents. The soldiers beg because their pay, when they get it, amounts to less than 30 cents a month and what else they are able to secure is small. A general receives two hundred gourdes a month, equal to about $27, so that to live he must add to his income as best he may.

Similarly, all government officials, who are paid in the debased currency, are expected to recoup themselves in some manner. Only when they are immoderate are they subject to removal. It is rumored now that another huge issue of paper and nickel money is impending which will cut the present value of the gourde in half, making the nominal dollar worth about three cents.
