To Make a Tart Salad Jelly

Jiffy-Jell is for salads as well as desserts. Get the lime-flavor flavo and it will make you a tart, green salad jelly. Mint flavor makes mint jelly.
The fruit flavors in Jiffy-Jell as fruit-juice essences in vials—a bottle in each package. They are red fruit, and the flavor is abundant. No artificial flavors—no saccharin.
Try loganberry or pineapple flavor for a dessert, and learn why delicious Jiffy-Jell brings to your table. A package will bring six people.
Jiffy-Jell with its natural fruit flavor costs much less than jam or marmalade.

JUST A GIRL

BY VERA PHELPS
ZENA TRIES A CAFETERIA
CHAPTER 39

I realized that I had no time—rather no money, to waste, so I put on my hat again and went out for papers, leaving my unpacking until I should come in. I stopped at Mrs. Lynch's room on the second floor and asked some questions as to where I could find a cheap restaurant in the locality, and so forth.
"Be careful how you take your men folks," she warned kindly after a new look at my face. "I know they ain't no good. And some of 'em are around just to make trouble for young girls. Don't have nothin' to say to none of 'em."
I found a small cafeteria near the house—a first venture. I had heard of such places, where they ate themselves wain a tray, knife and fork, and waited upon themselves, but I never had been in one. I was naturally awkward, and also backward about taking what I wanted. There were no prices on the viands. That troubled me. I was afraid I would spend too much. So I took only coffee and toast. The checker gave me a slip, and when I saw how moderate it was, I asked the privilege of going back in the line and getting more. I was young, healthy and the odor of the food had made me realize that I would be hungry. I had eaten nothing but a cold bite out of my lunch box all day.
The checker kindly told me it would be all right, and I went back. This time I selected a chop and a baked potato. When I carried the tray to the table, I saw a young girl sitting at the table. She smiled kindly at me and said: "That is better."
The few kindly words, and the smile, made a lump come in my throat. I thought the world wasn't all unkind. She had seen through my need for economy, yet had not made me one bit uncomfortable. She was about 50 years old, with snow white hair, and a nice trustworthy face. I made up my mind to come often. I little knew that even their moderate prices would soon be far beyond me.
I bought my papers. Then I returned to my room. I would unpack, then spend the evening

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

This is a Short Letter, But it Proves the Reliability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
Bothwell, Ont.—"I was weak and run down, had no appetite and was nervous. The nurse who took care of me told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I am getting strong."
I recommend your medicine to my friends, and you may use my testimonial."—Mrs. W. J. Brady, R. R. 2, Bothwell, Ont.
The reason why Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so successful in overcoming woman's ills is because it contains the tonic, strengthening properties of good old-fashioned roots and herbs, which act on the female organism. Women from all parts of the country are continually testifying to its strength-giving, curative influence, and as it contains no narcotic or harmful drugs it is a safe medicine for women.
If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham, Medicine Co., (Incorporated), Lowell, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read, and answered by women only.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. JOHN DORNAN.
We regret very much to chronicle today the death of Mrs. John Dornan which occurred at her late home, Willow Street, at 10.45 last evening. The deceased contracted heavy cold, pneumonia developing, and all that medical skill and loving hands could do proved of no avail, and after an illness of about two weeks she passed peacefully away Born in Hope River, P. E. I., on May 12th, 1854, she spent her early life in that place, removing to Amherst shortly after the death of her first husband, the late Patrick Fleming, about thirty years ago, where she has since resided. A good friend and neighbor, every ready to help the poor and needy, and in sickness of all kinds, whenever the call came, Mrs. Dornan would lend a helping hand, administering to the sick and extending words of comfort to the bereaved. A devout member of St. Charles Church and as long as health permitted was a faithful attendant and took an active part in all its choosing places to visit on Monday. The next day being Sunday I could do nothing. I would find a church near, attend services, then get the Sunday papers also. Surely with all of them, and all day to decide upon whom to call, I would have no routine getting a position.

"For what should I try?"
I had asked myself this question over and over on the train. I was still asking it. I had proved that I could not get a place as a private secretary unless I knew typing and stenography. A dim resolution, lazy and unformed, lurked in the back of my mind, that some day I would add those two necessary items to my education. But just now I must think only of something that would bring me in enough to live on, and the prospect of more so I could help Mother when what she had was gone. It would not last her very long, I knew.
When I had unpacked—but first I washed the bureau drawers, and as best I could with the facilities at hand cleaned the closet—I unpacked my suitcase. I used the part of the paper containing no advertisements to line the drawers, and hung a skirt over the other dress I had brought in the suitcase. This done, I sat down with my manicure scissors and a pencil to look for something encouraging under the caption "Female Help Wanted."
There were columns of such advertisements. It seemed as if every business man in Chicago, every newspaper, every shop, wanted "Female help."
I took a paper and divided it by a line. One side I put offices I would visit—I still clung to the idea that I might find some one who would have a place for me, even though I was not a typist—on the other I put department stores and shops. Then, worn out I went to bed, but not before I had asked God to help me, and to keep me from being made horrid and common because of my surroundings.
I felt there was danger of just this too keenly had I already been affected by them.
Tomorrow—Sunday—Alone.

Another well-known citizen has been called away in the person of Mr. David J. McKinnon, whose death at an early hour on Saturday morning will be heard of with much regret by a large circle of acquaintances. Deceased was a man of a very genial and companionable nature who will be missed by all who had the pleasure of knowing him intimately. He had been a sufferer for some time from a severe form of rheumatism, and a few days ago he was seized with a paralytic stroke from which he never recovered. He was 50 years of age, the son of the late Donald McKinnon. There are left to mourn two brothers, Dr. Ivan McKinnon now in London, England and Cammie R. of Revelstoke, B. C., two sisters Alice in Victoria, B. C., and Mrs. Thomas Kilpatrick, also of Revelstoke, B. C., to all whom sincere sympathy is extended. Deceased was a valued member of St. Lawrence Lodge I. O. O. F. of this city; the funeral today at 3.15 p. m. will be under the auspices of that order, by train to Sherwood.

fairly in connection with that church. There are left to mourn their loss, a husband and grown up family, who were all present when the end came, with the exception of the eldest son, who enlisted in the South African War over twenty years ago and never visited his home since that time, having settled in South Africa; Agents of Boston; Edward of Fauson, Mass.; Mrs. Cliff Richards and Daniel V. at home; Three sisters, Mrs. Barry D. Tingley, who resides here, and who has been in constant attendance during the past week; Mrs. James Turner, Glynde River, P. E. I. and Mrs. P. Quinn, Charlottetown and two brothers, Alfred Fraser, Halifax and William Fraser of Bangor, Me.
The deepest sympathy is extended to the sorrowing ones in their sad bereavement.
The funeral of the late Mrs. John Dornan was held from St. Charles Church with Requiem High Mass and funeral services conducted by Rev. Father Brown. A large number of sorrowing friends were present to pay their last tribute of respect to the departed. The pall bearers were Messrs. Charles Connolly, Dennis Collins, Frank Turner and F. P. Hickey. The remains were laid to rest in the R. C. Cemetery on the Highlands.
The floral tributes were many and lovely while the Mass cards were also exceptionally numerous.
