COMMISSION WILL SIT AT TIGNISH TODAY

Evidence Of One Witness Heard At Summerside Yesterday.

After hearing the evidence of but one witness at Summerside yesterday, Mrs. Jeremiah Howatt, Charlottetown, Mr. Justice A. T. LeBlanc of Moncton sitting as Commissioner probing the illegal fishing of lobsters and smelts during 1936 in Districts 7 and 8, will this morning proceed to Tignish where a one day session will be held following which the commission will, for the remainder of this week, sit at Alberton, O'Leary and probably West Point.

Indications were yesterday that the commission would conclude sittings on Prince Edward Island either the latter part of this week or the first of next.

Mrs. Howatt in her testimony stated she had not operated a lobster cannery for the past two years, but in 1935 she operated a factory at Canoe Cove in the Spring and one at Borden in the Fall.

Lloyd Inman and Claude Howatt were buyers for her during the time she operated the two canneries, the witness said. Mrs. Howatt estimated that about five hundred cases of lobsters had been packed at the Canoe Cove factory in 1935 and about three hundred cases at Borden. The witness stated she had never operated a cannery during the closed season and stated that she and her husband had been in the lobster business for thirty-three years, and as far as she knew, no illegally canned lobsters had been handled until 1934. During 1934 and 1935, the witness admitted, she had bought lobsters through her buyers which she believed to have been poached.

"When you operated the factory at Borden in the Fall, did you ever buy lobsters brought over from the North Side?"

"Yes."

"Who were the persons who delivered them at Borden?"

"There was only one man I know of. I don't know his surname but his first name was Paul."

Mrs. Howatt said in 1935 possibly 1600 pounds of lobsters had been bought at Borden which had been transported across the province from the North coast into local territory.

"Is it your opinion that poaching was getting worse when you started operating your factories in 1935?"

"Yes, I think probably it was getting a little worse."

"Can you give me an estimate of about how many pounds of lobsters were caught illegally and landed at Borden in 1935?"

"That is pretty hard to say. The fishermen were fishing in local territory but I would say not more than 3600 pounds."

"And about how many in 1934?"

"I would say less than that."

"The lobsters that this man Paul brought over from the north side to Borden—were they delivered in the day time or at night?"

"I believe mostly in the evening."

"Where they concealed in any way?"

"No. They came in the regular way."

Asked about the evidence submitted by Thomas Allan at Charlottetown that three years ago he had sold Mrs. Howatt in the vicinity of 2500 pounds of lobsters caught illegally, the witness said she had no knowledge of it, but that Allan had been fishing in the open season, and she was of the opinion that the lobsters were accepted in the usual way and no questions asked.

"Did you ever buy canned lobsters from other canners to mix and sell with your own pack?"

"No. Never."

The witness expressed the opinion that one season, a Spring season, and a size limit on small and large lobsters would benefit fishermen in this province, and this, she contended, would also make it much easier for fishery officials to cope with the situation, in that they would have much more time to work on land.

"George Darrach told us in Charlottetown that in 1933 he sold you approximately 5000 pounds of illegally caught lobsters. Is that correct?" asked Hon. H. F. G. Bridges, the commission counsel.

"Approximately so. They would have been bought by the buyers and I would not know where they came from."

Duke Of Windsor

The two are free to marry whenever they choose, but a spokesman for Mrs. Simpson said the wedding would await until after the coronation of King George VI, brother-successor to the Duke.

Friends indicated the wedding might be at a British consular office in France or at a French town hall, but final plans awaited the Duke's arrival at Tours tomorrow.

MONT'S, France, May 3—Mrs. Wallis Simpson, now free to marry the Duke of Windsor, tonight turned the Chateau de Candé into a fairy castle to welcome the Duke of Windsor.

Truckloads of flowers were sent from Tours and arranged under her direction in the Chateau's scores of rooms as the Duke sped by train from Austria for the reunion.

The dark-eyed American-born woman was strolling quietly through the Chateau's gardens when she received the word her divorce from Ernest Simpson had been made absolute in London.

But the decision of the Duke to send her away for their first meeting since before he stepped down from the British throne galvanized the Chateau into action.

Mrs. Simpson's spokesman, Herman L. Rogers, indicated that the former King might arrive at the Chateau between one p. m. and three p. m. tomorrow.

The Chateau's lights gleamed tonight as elaborate preparations were hurried for his arrival.

Some of Mont's inhabitants already speak of Mrs. Simpson as "Miss Warfield" but Rogers said she has not decided whether to assume her maiden name for the period before her marriage to the Duke. She wishes to continue to be Mrs. Simpson for the time being, he said.

The village telephonist, refusing to put through calls to the castle, said outgoing long-distance were being occupied 1-2 hours with calls from it.

Fire Destroys Residence At Searletown

The residence of Michael Conway at Searletown was burned to the ground early yesterday morning. The fire appeared to have started in the attic and spread rapidly until the whole of the upper storey was in flames. Mr. and Mrs. Conway were attending service at Seven Mile Bay Church. Mr. Conway's uncle, Edward Conway, and four children were in the house and with the help of neighbors removed most of the furniture from the ground floor. The family lost most of their clothing. There was a small insurance on the property, which was known as the old Will MacNeill house. Mr. Conway had moved into it from Carleton last fall. Friends will recall that a year ago last March the Conway's lost a little girl of seven years who was burned to death when her clothing caught fire as she reached up to the warming closet. Kind neighbors are assisting in their present trouble.—S.

FINE CONCERT

an composers, one of whose delightful songs, from Dryden's drama "The Indian Queen", formed the third number on the program. These three pieces, together with an aria from Ponchielli's "La Gioconda", were sung as one group.

Not less interesting was the arrangement of the following group which included composers as diverse in their genius as Hugo Wolf, Robert Schumann and Richard Strauss. The latter was represented by a beautiful Serenade, the others by love songs which were interpreted with fine feeling and effect.

Excerpts from the popular opera "Carmen" received perhaps the most generous applause, as being more familiar to the audience. A group of Russian songs, also splendidly interpreted, was followed by representative works of modern American and English composers. These included three charming Fairy Songs by Maurice Besley, dedicated to the composer's mother. The concluding number was a stirring composition, "Ecstasy" by Walter Morse Rummel, set to words of the Canadian poet, Duncan Campbell Scott.

Throughout the program the audience expressed enthusiastic appreciation, to which Miss Olheim responded with numerous encores.

Her competent accompanist at the piano was Mr. King.

The concert was the last of this season's series, and undoubtedly one of the most enjoyable in its variety and musical content.

Following was the program:
My Heart, Ever Faithful—J. S. Bach.
Have You Seen But a Whyte Lillie Grow—Old English.
I Attempt from Love's Sickness to Fly—Purcell.
"Voce di Donna" (from "La Gioconda")—Ponchielli.
Auf dem Meer—Franz.
In dem Schatten meiner Locken—Wolf.
Ich Grolle Nicht—Schumann.
Ständchen—Strauss.
(Habaneira; Seguidilla) from "Carmen"—Bizet.
(Over the Steppe; Snowflakes)—Gretchaninoff.
The Hour of Dreams—Arensky.
Whether by Day—Tschalkovsky.
A Spirit Flower—Campbell-Tipton.
Three Little Fairy Songs—Maurice Besley.
Saida—Harry Matthews.
Ecstasy—Walter Rummel.

3—Warships of Great Britain and France tonight began evacuation of non-combatants from Bilbao, besieged Basque capital, in insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco's refusal to agree to it.

Eighty-four French, Belgian and British refugees were brought to St. Jean de Luz. Evacuation of Spaniards so far as could be determined here, had not begun.

The British destroyer Faulknor arrived first with 12 persons, among them the British consul and vice-consul.

The Faulknor was followed into port by the French despatch ship Somme, with 72 French and Belgian refugees.

It was the Faulknor's second trip into Bilbao since the insurgents declared a blockade of the Basque coast. Last week insurgent airplanes dropped bombs near her when she slipped into Bilbao to enable her commander to discuss evacuation plans with the British consul.

The insurgent army meanwhile prepared for a final dash down the Durango highway to the Basque capital.

The insurgents announced they had occupied heights commanding the highway and were driving into the hills to break up bands of defenders.

However, a Basque officer asserted a second column of Franco's army had encountered trouble and was falling back in the Bermeo sector along the Biscayan coast.

LONDON, May 3—The British government is determined to proceed with naval evacuation of civilians besieged in Bilbao despite the opposition of Insurgent Commander-in-Chief Francisco Franco, Foreign Secretary Eden told the House of Commons tonight.

Meanwhile the captain of the British freighter Knitaley informed the Admiralty that a floating mine, not Spanish government bombing planes, sent the Insurgent battleship Espana to the bottom of the Bay of Biscay last Friday.

ABOARD THE ARLBURG EXPRESS EN ROUTE TO PARIS, May 3—Five words pronounced in a London court freed Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson to marry the Duke of Windsor; but it took the Duke 12 to shout his reaction.

A close companion of the former King, with him when he heard the news from London, quoted the Duke as shouting:

"We are free!
"We are free!
"When's the next train for Paris?"

(A. P. by Guardian's Special Wire)

MONT'S, France, May 3—A dark-eyed woman quietly awaited tonight reunion with the man who gave up his Throne for her love.

Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson received news today as she strolled through the gardens of Chateau De Candé that the British divorce court had declared her free to marry the Duke of Windsor.

The Duke was aboard an express train en route to France within a few hours after he talked with his betrothed by telephone and learned of the court's action.

Her spokesman, Herman L. Rogers, indicated she had nothing to say after learning of the decree. Rogers said there would be a statement "before the Duke arrives."

The Duke is expected tomorrow. During the weeks since last December that she had been separated from the Duke Mrs. Simpson has remained in seclusion.

Before Edward VIII abdicated, she left England and went to the Riviera villa of Mr. and Mrs. Rogers. A few weeks ago she came to the Chateau De Candé.

Warm, spring weather in recent weeks has caused Mrs. Simpson to extend her outdoor activities. Frequent turns about the chateau golf courses have given her a heavy tan and she appears in gay spirits.

The date of her wedding to the Duke is still a secret. Rogers insisted they would not be married until after the Coronation.
