The House of Dreams-Come-True

By Margaret Pedler

And at that Jean came right back to an understanding of all that had happened, as the needle of a compass swings back to the frozen north.

"Rest?" she said. "Rest? Do you realize that I shall have all the remainder of life to—rest in? There'll be nothing else to do."

She released herself very gently from Tormarin's arms and, crossing the room to the window, stood looking out.

"How funny!" she said in a rather high-pitched, uncertain voice. "It looks just the same—although everything in the world is changed." He came and stood beside her.

"No," he said quietly. "Nothing is changed dear. Our love is the same as it was before. Always remember that."

"But we can't marry now."

"No. We can't marry—now. You'll never have the Tormarin temper to bear with, after all!"

She laid her hand swiftly across his lips.

"Oh, it was dreadful!" she said, recalling the terrible scene which she had interrupted. "It—hardly seemed—your, Blaise."

"For the moment it wasn't. It was the Tormarin devil—the curse of every generation. But I think that Varigny woman could turn a saint into a devil if she tried! She said something about you—and I couldn't stand it."

"Was that it? Then I suppose I shall have to forgive you"—with a pale little attempt at a smile.

But the half-hearted smile faded again almost instantly.

"Oh, Blaise, what would your temper matter if we could still be together?" she cried passionately. "Nothing in the wide world would matter then!"

Presently she spoke again.

"But it's worse for you than for me. I wish it were more equal."

"How worse for me? I don't understand. Unless—with a brief, sad smile—"you love me less?"

"Ah, you know I don't mean that! But I've only the separation to face. I'm not tied to somebody I don't love. You've got Nesta to consider."

"Nesta?" He gave a short, grim laugh. "Nesta can go back to where she came from."

There was a long silence. At last Jean broke it.

"Blaise, you can't do that—you can't send her away again," she said in quick low tones. "She's your wife."

"My wife! She seems to have been oblivious of the fact—and to have wished to be equally oblivious of it—for the last few years."

"Yes, of course she's been wrong, wickedly wrong. But that doesn't

Acute Gastritis, result of War, remedied by Carter's Little Liver Pills

Mr. A. E. R. was in wretched health after the War. He had Acute Gastritis. He couldn't eat normally and felt poorly all the time. Constipation and indigestion generally commenced my attacks (he writes). Headaches and Bad Breath naturally followed.

His trouble was aggravated by a sluggish liver. As soon as he started taking Dr. Carter's Little Liver Pills he began to feel better; and soon had an entirely different outlook on life. "Today I am able to eat anything I fancy," he concludes his letter.

Vegetables are a valuable aid to health; and Dr. Carter's Little Liver Pills are PURELY VEGETABLE. No calomel. Ordinary laxatives only move your bowels. Carter's also give your liver gentle and very necessary stimulation. Always ask for Carter's by name. Sold everywhere. In 2c & 75c red packages.

FRIEND TOLD HIM ABOUT ALL-BRAN

And It Brought Relief From Constipation

Those who are bothered with constipation should read Mr. Gelpke's unsolicited letter:

"I have suffered with constipation for years. A friend of mine told me to try ALL-BRAN. I have taken ALL-BRAN for the past six weeks as a breakfast food. It has regulated my bowels as clockwork. Now I would not be without a package at all times."—Mr. Leslie Gelpke (address upon request).

Common constipation—with its headaches, loss of appetite, sleeplessness—is due to lack of "bulk" to exercise the intestines. Vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. Both are present in Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, as well as iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in lettuce. Within the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. Being a natural corrective, ALL-BRAN is not habit-forming.

Try ALL-BRAN in place of pills and drugs—so often harmful. Just eat two tablespoons daily—serious cases with every meal. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

In the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

alter the fact that she's your responsibility, Blaise. You must take her back."

"Take her back?"—violently. "I'll be shot if I do! She's chosen to live her life without me for the last few years—she can continue to do so."

Jean laid her hand on his arm. She was smiling wistfully.

"Dear, you'll have to take her back," she persisted gently. "Don't you see—she's not wholly to blame? You've admitted that. You've blamed yourself in a large measure for her running away. It's up to you now to put things straight, to—to give her the chance she didn't have before."

"You're discounting these last few years," he returned gruffly. "These years in which she has lived a lie, allowing me to believe her dead—cheating and deceiving me as no man was ever cheated before. She's cheated me out of my happiness—heavily!"—taken you from me!"

"Yes, I know," Jean's voice quivered, but she steeled it again. "But even in that, she was not solely to blame. You've told me how—how weak she is and easily led away. And she's very young. What chance would Nesta have of asserting her will against her sister's, even had she wished to return to you? She ran away from Staple in a fit of temper and because you had frightened her. After that—you can see for yourself—Madame de Varigny is responsible for everything that has happened since."

Tormarin remained silent. The quiet justice of Jean's summing up of the situation struck at him hard. She waited a moment, then added quietly:

He wheeled round on her violently.

"And you?" he exclaimed. "You? Did you ever love me, Jean, that you can talk so coolly about turning me over to another woman?"

She whitened at the bitter accusation in his tones, but she did not flinch.

"It's just because I love you, Blaise, that I want you to do this thing—to do the only thing that is worthy of you. Oh, my dear, my dear—her hands went out to him in sudden, helpless pleading—"do you think it's easy for me to ask it?"

The desolate cry pierced him. He caught her in his arms kissing her fiercely, adoringly.

"Sweetheart! . . . Forgive me! I'm half mad, I think. Beloved, say that you forgive me!"

She leaned against him, glad to feel the straining clasp of his arms about her—to rest once more in her place against his heart.

"Dearest of all," she said tremulously, "there is no question of forgiveness between us two. There

Big Demand For Bermuda Vegetables

HAMILTON, Bermuda, May 20—(Canadian Press Cable)—Canada's embargo upon California vegetable products, owing to an outbreak of foot and mouth disease in that State, has created extensive demand for Bermudian vegetables in the Dominion, according to J. P. Hand, chairman of the Bermuda trade and development board.

Mr. Hand is enroute to Montreal and Ottawa and will endeavor to persuade Canadian authorities to furnish faster transportation facilities between Canada and Bermuda.

The Dominion's trade agreement with Bermuda stipulates that to secure free admission into Canada, Bermudian produce must be shipped by Canadian ships, but the increasing Canadian demand has caused congestion here owing to scarcity of steamship space.

He felt a shudder run through her frame. Twice she tried ineffectually to answer. At last she forced her dry lips to utter an affirmative.

"So be it."

His answer sounded in her ears like the knell to the whole meaning of life. The future was settled. Henceforth their lives must lie apart.

"So be it," said Blaise. "She shall come back and take her place at Staple."

Jean clung to him a little closer.

"Blaise, beloved—I know the harder part will be yours. But mine won't be easy dear. I shall go to Chamwood to be with Claire at once—to-morrow—and it won't be easy when I see in an evening the lights twinkle up at Staple, to know that you two are within shut in from the world together, while I'm outside—always outside your life and your love."

"You'll never be outside my love," he said swiftly. "That's yours, now and forever. And no other woman shall rob you of one jot or tittle of it, were she my wife twenty times over. I will bring Nesta back to Staple, and she shall bear my name and live as my wife in the eyes of the world. But my love—that's yours, utterly and entirely. Yours and no other's."

She lifted her face to his, and their lips met in a kiss that was the seal of love and all love's faithfulness.

"So is mine yours," she said. "Now and forever, in this world and the next. Oh, Blaise—beloved!"—she clung to him in a passion of love and anguish and straining belief—"Some day, surely, in that other world, God will give us freedom to take our happiness!"

CHAPTER XXXIII
THE RETURNING TIDE

Two months had elapsed since Fate's dividing sword had fallen, for ever separating Jean from the man she loved, and the subsequent march of events, with the many changes involved and the bitter loneliness of soul entailed, had made the two months seem to her more like two years.

She had left Staple for Chamwood on the day following that of Madame de Varigny's visit. It was not longer possible for her to remain under the same roof with Blaise, where the enforced strain of meeting each other daily, and of endeavouring to behave as though nothing more than mere commonplace friendship linked them together, would have been too great for either of them to endure even for the few remaining days which still intervened before the date originally planned for her departure.

Make the same use of a boot that a bee does of a shower; she steals sweets from it, but does not injure it.

Murder And Suicide Verdict

ST STEPHEN, N. B., May 20—(By The Canadian Press)—A verdict of murder-suicide was returned at an inquest held at Calais, Maine, across the St. Croix River from here, in the deaths early this afternoon of Leonard Steeves and his wife, both about 30 years of age.

Evidence given at the inquiry was to the effect that the woman had not been well for the last few weeks and, when the husband entered the home at 2 o'clock this afternoon, she was standing at the top of the stairs pointing a heavy service rifle at him. She fired, the bullet tearing off the top of the man's head. He died in a few minutes. After firing the shot, Mrs. Steeves placed the muzzle of the weapon under her chin and pulled the trigger, witness at the inquest stated. The bullet ripped up through her head, causing instant death. Dr. W. H. Bunker, Calais, medical examiner for Washington County, Maine, presided at the inquest.

Leonard Steeves was a plumber. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Steeves, live in St. Stephen.
