The British and Foreign Bible Society

IN CANADA AND NEWFOUNDLAND
PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND AUXILIARY

BEQUESTS

During the past years the Society has received contributions under the wills of departed friends of the Society who, during their lifetime, had made provision for the furtherance of the work of the Bible Society, either in the Dominion of Canada and Newfoundland or the various Mission Fields. In many instances these friends were generous supporters of the Society during their life. "They now rest from their labors and their works do follow them."

Many who cannot give large sums to the world-wide work of the Bible Society during their lifetime, may, through a bequest, extend their influence many years. Be sure and mark your bequest for the P. E. I. Auxiliary or Branch. Auxiliary Office, 143 Prince St., Charlottetown.

TRINITY CHURCH. — Special Christmas services will mark the day in Trinity Church this Sunday. The morning service will be conducted by the Minister, and will be broadcast over station CFCY. At this service the children of the Church School will present their White Gifts and the service of song will be led by the Junior Choir. Mr. McLennan will deliver the sermon, guiding the thoughts on the subject of "Christmas Giving." The hymns for this service have been selected particularly for the smaller children. The Junior Choir will sing two hymns: "Infant Holy" and "What Child is This?" At this service Mr. Kendall will be assisted at the organ by Paul Cudmore. In the evening the Young People's Union will present their annual Candle Lighting Service. This service will be conducted by David Barwise, assisted by Willard Brehaut and Lorne Storey. Mr. McLennan will deliver the sermon on "The Christmas Challenge to Youth," and he will also install the new officers of the Union. The choir, under the direction of Mr. Kendall will sing "See Amid the Winter Snow", by West. There will be a solo by Miss Kaye McEachern. In the afternoon the Young People's Bible Class will meet as usual. The Church auditorium has been made particularly beautiful by the members of the Willing Circle of the King's Daughters, and all are heartily invited to join in all the Christmas services, on the following Sundays and through the weeks ahead.

Literature And Life

By bookman

NEAR-BY WONDERS

Robert Louis Stevenson has a memorable line in his "Child's Garden of Verses"— "Wonderful places though handy to home". He represents a man who has been away to the Indies for a long time and is now back among the scenes of his boyhood. The "Keep-Sake Mill" is visited and he thinks of those who played there. The old mill wheel is turning and churning the water to foam. Then he says— "wonderful places though to home."

We do not need to travel far to see interesting things. Edward FitzGarald, a friend of Tennyson's hardly ever left London; there was no need, he said. When Dante was told that he might return to Florence, provided he paid a fine and apologized he replied that he could see the stars from where he was.

A farmer's wife contributes a daily article to an Island paper, and deals with happenings on an ordinary farm. Every season brought its own peculiar contribution to the interest of the place. It opened the eyes of the public to the wonders that they had never noticed— the habits of the animals, the colour of tree and field, the happenings of their little world, the division of labour. To her the farm was much more than a place to make a living— there was the romance of the commonplace. She would appreciate those lines of Mrs. Browning:

"Earth's crammed with heaven,
And every common bush afire with God;
And only he who sees takes off his shoes;
The rest sit round it and pluck blackberries."

There are near-by wonders. The farm has them. Think of the life of the farm—the cattle, the sheep, the feathered creatures, the romance of growth, "first the blade, then the ear, then the full corn in the ear." Our Lord put these in his sermon— even the hen and her chickens.

Then if one works in a shop or store, there are those who look to such for service. Each one suggests a world. The talk, the friendships formed, the interest in those who have gone forth from those quiet surroundings. How interesting it all may be; it is their world!

After all most of our lives are made up of little happenings; and if we wait till the extraordinary occurs, we may be terribly disappointed. The Bible speaks of those whose "eyes are in the ends of the earth" and so are blind to that which is near—the laughter of children, rosy cheeks, birthdays, picnics, school-days, baptisms, holidays, anniversaries, meeting old friends, letters and the numberless things that go to make up an ordinary day and thus a life. Marcus Aurelius says that "all things are usual." "Do not tire if you have to look at the same thing over and over again."

How life is made up of little things is brought out by Wordsworth in his poem "Brothers". One brother comes back after an absence of many years and goes to the cemetery where he hopes to read the happenings of the village during his absence; he hopes the graves may shed some light on that. The rector of the parish is at the time strolling through the graveyard. The visitor wants to know if his brother is yet alive, but does not disclose his identity to the clergyman. The life of the quiet community is thus condensed:

"A sharp May-storm
Will come with loads of January snow,
And in one night send twenty score of sheep
To feed the ravens; or a shepherd dies
By some untoward death among the rocks,
The ice breaks up and sweeps away a bridge—
A wood is felled:— and then for our own homes!
A child is born or christened, a field is ploughed,
A daughter sent to service, a web spun
The old house clock is decked with a new face,
And hence so far from wanting facts or dates
To chronicle the time, we all have here
Matter for diaries."

All this is very like the life of any village today in quiet places, but who will say that it is void of interest? Take these two lines explaining the scarcity of tomb-stones in the cemetery: The clergyman says to the visitor who had remarked on their absence:

"We have no need of names and epitaphs,
We talk about the dead by our firesides."

Card Of Thanks

Mrs. F. C. Dollar and Family, take this opportunity to thank their relatives, neighbours and friends for their many acts of kindness and sympathy. To the blood-doners and many volunteers. Also the nursing staff, student nurses and Doctors of P. E. I. Hospital and the visiting clergymen, also for the many letters and cards of sympathy which was most comforting in their recent bereavement.

In Memoriam

WHITLOCK—In loving memory of our dear father Daniel G. Whitlock, who was killed in Italy, December 14, 1944.

Sleep on, dear daddy, it has been
two years since you left
Our hearts filled with sadness and tears;
You know how we loved you, and
yes, love you yet.
Though God took you from us
We cannot forget.

Fondly Remembered by Your Little Son and Daughter, Donnie and Carol.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Aenas Clarkin, who passed away December 14th, 1931.

God called him home, it was His will,
But in our hearts we love him still;
His memory is as dear today,
As in the hour he passed away.

Inserted by Wife and Family.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my father, Tobias Murray, who departed this life December 15, 1939.

In my heart your memory lingers,
Sweetly, tender, fond and true,
There is not a day dear father,
That I do not think of you.

Fondly Remembered by His Daughter, Blanche.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of T. Wilfred Inman, North Tryon, P. E. I., who passed away four years ago today, December 15th, 1942.

Inserted by His Wife.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my dear grandson L/Cpl. Daniel G. Whitlock, Killed in Action in Italy, December 14th, 1944.

Remembrance is a golden chain
Death tries to break but all in vain.
To have, to love, and then to part
Is the greatest sorrow of one's heart.
The years may wipe out many things
But this they wipe out never
The memory of those happy days
When we were all together.

Sadly Missed by His Grandmother, Mrs. Daniel Dunnirg.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Corporal Daniel Whitlock, who was Killed Somewhere in Action in Italy, Dec. 14, 1944, Saturday.

Today recalls sad memories
Of a loved one far away
Those who think of him today
Are those that loved him best.

Brother Elmer, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Whitlock.
