

WOMEN APPROACHING MIDDLE LIFE

WHAT MRS. GODIN SAYS ABOUT "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

MRS. O. GODIN.

Mrs. Godin's letter is of particular interest to women approaching middle-life. It reads: "I am giving this testimonial hoping it will benefit every woman suffering as I did at the change of life. I was obliged to go to bed, had terrible dizziness and pain, and felt extremely weak. 'Fruit-a-tives' were really a God-send to me. Now I am in perfect health. Every woman should follow my example. They would surely get the wonderful relief I did."—Mrs. Onesime Godin, Paquetville, N.B. By toning up the stomach, kidneys and bowels, "Fruit-a-tives" is a great help to women at this trying stage of life. "Fruit-a-tives" is a sane medicine. It acts in a natural way because it is made of interest-free fresh fruit juices combined with tonics. Let "Fruit-a-tives" help you, too. Start today. 25c and 50c a box, everywhere.

Grapefruit and oranges can be judged by their weight. A light-weight fruit isn't much good. Get the heavy, thin-skinned ones.

INSIDIOUS EYE STRAIN

We use this adjective advisedly.

Sufferers from Eye-strain may have perfect vision and therefore do not suspect the presence of any eye defect.

The motive power of the entire human organism is Nerve Energy.

Normal eyes, it is computed utilize about 20% of this Nerve Energy, but when Eye-strain is present, a much larger proportion is required. Hence defective eyes, through their consumption of an excessive amount of Nerve Energy may seriously affect the functioning of other organs of the body and produce ill health.

Advise Women

to adopt new hygienic method and retain freshness this way: true protection; discards like tissue

By ELLEN J. BUCKLAND Registered Nurse

LARGELY on medical advice, women are abandoning the old-time "sanitary pad" for a new way that supplants uncertainty with positive protection.

Sheer frocks and ill-timed social engagements no longer remain in memories. Last days are fewer, and health better. It is called "KOTEX." Ends the insecurity of old-time sanitary pads; 5 times as absorbent! And deodorizes—ends all fear of offending.

As easily disposed of as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

You get it at any drug or department store simply by saying "KOTEX." Buy without hesitancy, and be sure to get the genuine. Only Kotex itself is "like" Kotex.

Eight in 10 better-class women employ it. Proves the risk of old ways.

DANGEROUS INNOCENCE

By HAZEL DEYO BATCHELOR

Myra Warren and Sally Bates, two sisters of widely different temperaments, decide to take a long trip. Tom Bates hates to give up Sally and she dreads leaving him. Myra Warren doesn't care very much what her husband thinks, but he loves her. The ship sails.

First Days

Sally often thought afterward how terrified she would have been to enter the dining salon alone.

Myra had done it on several occasions when she had crossed alone, but that Myra was different.

That night, she wore a very simple black dinner dress. Sally was in yellow. They descended most reserved and had very little to say. There were three other people at the table. A Mr. and Mrs. Dunsdale and a Scotchman named Macdonald.

Conversation was of course not very general, but Sally was very willing to be friendly. She sat on one side of the purser and Myra on the other. She did wish that Myra wouldn't be quite so formal, and that she could really be herself and say the things she wanted to say.

But inasmuch as Myra didn't wish to talk, she herself said very little. Later Myra told her that it was no more advisable to make friends with one's table companions than it was to talk to people on deck.

"Not for the first two or three days. Just trust me, and you'll see what I mean later."

And Sally did.

Three days later, Myra knew just exactly what she wanted to do. Not only that, but she was the most popular woman on the ship and the most sought after. Sally never really knew how it had been accomplished, excepting for the fact that she had always known

Sally, feeling rather forlorn, was sitting out, when one of the junior officers came up to her after the orchestra had started its first number, and Myra's manner was very reserved and haughty. The steward was deferential, and with a more money, but Myra was the center of attraction. Sally always felt that she followed her like a shadow, and Myra and Sally followed him to their table.

Sally sat where she could see the captain's table. Myra had told her that it was always exciting to see who was invited to sit there and she had evinced a certain interest in what the captain was like. "The bridge is really the most romantic place on the ship," she had told Sally; "that is, if the captain is jolly and a good scout."

Sally stared unreservedly at the captain, resplendent in dark blue and a great deal of gold braid. But then the purser took had plenty of gold braid and was very jolly. Sally liked him, but as usual she took her cue from Myra who was how wonderful Myra was. There were other women on board much prettier and with far more money, but Myra was the center of attraction. Sally always felt that she followed her like a shadow, and Myra and Sally followed him to their table.

For one thing, in the matter of dancing, men always asked Myra first. If she happened to have a partner, they turned to her. Sally would always comfort herself with the thought of Tom. In Tom's eyes she was far more attractive than Myra. But it had told Sally; "that is, if the captain is jolly and a good scout."

Sally, feeling rather forlorn was sitting out, when one of the junior officers came up to her. "May I have this dance?" She rose eagerly.

It was so easy to be friendly when Myra wasn't there to censure her. Her self-confidence was returning to her. She was Sally and not a copy of Myra.

The sea was a trifle rough, but it was rather fun to dance with the ship rolling over so slightly. The junior officer who explained that he had charge of the radio was very nice, too. He was blond and very English. He held her tightly and looked down into her eyes with his lids slightly narrowed when he talked. After the dance he asked her if she would like to go up on the top deck, and she assented. She felt excited, stimulated. The sea air went to one's head. It was like nothing she had ever experienced.

Up on the boat deck the skies were spangled with stars overhead. The sea was like a lake under the moon. Sally drew a long breath. (To Be Continued.)
