Creditable Record Of Service

The Knights of Pythias is the first fraternal organization in the Maritimes to undertake the ambitious project of providing ambulances for war purposes and are to be heartily commended for this patriotic action.

During the world war '14 to '18 the Knights provided one ambulance that carried five thousand bed patients and fifteen hundred chair patients, surely a very creditable record of service.

Official Pose—By Majority Vote

When President Roosevelt in his first official act since his election to a third term, dedicated the new postoffice in his home town of Hyde Park, N.Y., news photographers argued about the pose they wanted him to assume. "I'll put this to a majority vote," said the President. Here's the result. He's pictured putting mortar on the cornerstone. Looking on is his son, John.

After a week of feints and reconnaissances against Italian positions in East Africa the British army in that region has begun the offensive operations against the enemy in Ethiopia. No report has come yet from the British about the operations, but judging from the latest Rome official communique the attack is on a formidable scale, and is making headway. The British attack was launched at Gallabat, a town in the Anglo-Egyptian Soudan that was captured by the Italians some months ago. The place is located some 300 miles southeast of Khartoum, the base of the attacking forces. The British attacked in that quarter because of the importance of taking control of Lake Tana, the source of the Blue Nile; and, also, possibly because the Galla tribe, that inhabits the Ethiopian region across the border at that point, is composed of first-class fighting men who may be ready to co-operate with the British.

TRINITY UNITED CHURCH

At the morning service of Trinity United Church, Rev. Hugh Miller delivered his address on the text; "He who winneth souls is wise." The minister pointed out the Bible is direct in its admonitions, not using our modern-day diplomacy. He said that he should try to win souls for Christ (1) for the ones we help; (2) for ourselves; and (3) for the good of the world. If each person tries to be an evangelist for the Master, this world will be a fitter and a finer place.

The morning music was under the direction of Mr. A. R. Kendall. The choir rendered the selection "Come to My Heart, Lord Jesus," Paul Ambrose.

In the evening, Rev. Mr. Miller delivered the second sermon of his series on "God and the War." He took as his subject, "The war and the judgment of God." Many people ask the question, "Is the war a judgment of God upon us?" The answer is "yes" and "no."

God does not sit upon a throne and pronounce judgment upon men but the universe has a moral basis and moral judgments for evil-doing are continually going on. If people break God's laws of love, justice and truth, judgment will descend upon them. The choir admirably rendered the anthem "Immortal, Invisible" —Eric Thiman.

Soldiers' Parcels Still Go Astray

LONDON, Nov. 16 — (CP) — Many Canadian soldiers in Britain have complained that parcels from home have not arrived so Canadian postal authorities in England have decided to use photographs to show the folks back home how to address and pack parcels correctly.

It has been found that many of the missing parcels have fallen to pieces in transit because of bad packing. Others have been insufficiently addressed.

Canadian postal authorities here have arranged for photographs to be taken of every stage in the handling of parcels from the time they arrive in this country until they are delivered to the soldiers.

These photographs will be sent to Canada to help soldiers' relatives to address and pack the parcels properly.

Carry On Canada Corps

Car window stickers advertising the Second Mammoth Dance to be held on November 27th are now available. These stickers bear the date, November 27th, and the slogan, "Swing and Sway at Eastern Hay." All Corps members and others interested are asked to affix these to their cars and to urge their friends to do likewise. The stickers may be obtained at the Fire Marshal's office, Roops Limited, Imperial Oil Service Station and Eastern Hay & Feed. These stickers will only prove of value if they have wide distribution and display, so do your bit.

Plans for the dance are proceeding smoothly and we can assure all those who attend a very interesting evening. A number of special features are being arranged, details of which will be given in forthcoming issues of this paper.

It is generally admitted that the First Mammoth Dance sponsored by the Carry on Canada Corps was a great success, something unique in the history of Charlottetown. There is no doubt that the second dance will be an even greater success. So don't miss it.

In Memoriam

MRS. HANNIBAL MURRAY

On Sunday morning, Oct. 6, 1940 there passed away at her home in Pleasant Valley, a highly respected resident in the person of Mrs. Hannibal Murray.

The deceased, who was born at South Rustico, on Sept. 10, 1850, was a daughter of the late Henry and Mrs. Craswell.

Over 30 years ago she was stricken with blindness, but was able to perform many household duties until a year ago when her strength gradually began to decline. Medical aid, kind and tender nursing seemed unavailing and she passed calmly and peacefully to the great beyond on the above date.

She was a steadfast and consistant member of the United Church, and endured her infirmities with Christian fortitude to the end.

There are left to mourn their loss a grief-stricken husband, one daughter, Lucy, Mrs. W. K. Nesbit, of Guildford, Maine, and one son, James H., at home, also three brothers, Lemuel of Charlottetown; Robert of Cardigan, and Ethan of New Glasgow, who have the sincere sympathy of the community in their sad bereavement.

The funeral was held on Oct. 7, and was largely attended. The services at the house and grave were conducted by the pastor, Rev. E. Milley, who brought a message of comfort and assurance to the bereaved family.

The pall-bearers were Hon. D. N. McKay, Messrs. James McSwain, Nelson Murray, John Weeks, Golden Weeks and Horace Ling.

Interment was in Fredericton cemetery.

THE BAPTIST CHURCH

At the morning service, the Rev. I. Judson Levy took as his subject "The Church Advances." Mr. Levy explained that on this occasion he was dealing with the convention program in its plan for wider and more efficient work in the Centennial "Seven Year Program."

The year of 1846 marked the beginning of truly co-operative work among the Baptist churches of the Maritimes, through associations and general convention. The real function of the celebration of this Centennial in 1940 is two-fold. It commemorates the things that have been, paying tribute to those who led and served and sacrificed. It is to lay foundations for a greater future, in the words of Hebrews XI. "They, without us, should not be perfect."

It is a critical hour in the history of the church of Jesus Christ, an hour in which many institutions crack and crumble, shall the Church of Christ, of all institutions the most important, endure?

In this "Seven Year Program" there are stressed Evangelism, the commitment of life to God, the enlistment of lives in the service of Jesus Christ; Stewardship, an acknowledgement of our trusteeship, that all we have is from God; The Church Budget, the imperative necessity of meeting our requirements in full. The world's one hope is in the message of Jesus Christ; the Son of God.

The anthem of the morning was Farrant's "Lord, for Thy Tender Mercies' Sake." Mr. Levy's eloquent evening sermon was "Jesus Meets a Needy Soul." The evening anthem "Hymn in the Night." The Church School met at 2.30 p.m. with an encouraging attendance.

STAFFS "SLEEP IN" IN LONDON STORE

LONDON, Nov. 14 —(CP) —Provision for skeleton staffs to sleep in basements, earlier closing and special facilities for employees with long journeys to leave early are among arrangements made by big London stores to combat effects of shortening daylight hours and longer night raids.

At one large, fashionable Kensington store plans have been completed for a nucleus staff of 500—one-tenth of the whole personnel —to sleep in basements equipped like an hotel. A snack bar, restaurant, smoke room, games parlor and radio lounge will be among the amenities.

Another big store nearby closes at five o'clock but many clerks leave earlier in order to arrive home before the sirens sound.

"The ingenuity of our girls is amazing," the staff manager of a third store said. "Some of them have to use tram, train and bus on the homeward journey and others hitch-hike."

Canadians Fail Sufficient Use of Health Aids

OTTAWA, Nov. 16—(CP)—Maintenance of public health in Canada costs $193,000,000, or $19 a person, annually, according to latest official figures, his, say experts of the pensions and health department, is a higher figure than Canadians spend on education, and only just below the sum spent on clothing each year.

The National Committee for Mental Hygiene has just concluded a thorough survey of medical care and public health services in Canada, and concludes that full advantage of what science has made available for use in prevention and treatment of disease, is not being taken.

Death rates for first-year infants, varies greatly in different parts of Canada where conditions are comparable, the committee report said, adding that 2,500 more beds are needed in Quebec and the Maritimes for tuberculosis cases alone, and 500 for other provinces. An additional 8,500 beds are needed for treatment of mental illness in Canada.

Medical Service Army

The report said more than 55,000 Canadians, including 10,000 physicians and surgeons, 4,000 dentists and 20,000 graduate nurses earn their living by providing public health and medical services. Of the $193,000,000 spent annually, the committee's survey showed that 72 per cent is paid by private individuals, 21 per cent. by governments and seven per cent. comes from philanthropy and industry.

Of the annual expenditure roughly $90,000,000 goes to doctors and dentists and nurses; $50,000,000 represents hospital costs; less salaries of personnel; $12,000,000 is spent for physicians' prescriptions; $50,000,000 on drugs and $33,000,000 on patent medicines and drug sundries. Sanitation costs for a year run to $12,000,000.

The committee reported that organizations to secure medical care in groups are growing in the Dominion and through workmen's compensation several millions of dollars a year are being spent in this manner.

Schemes whereby employees each contribute a small sum a week to cover medical care are developing in the various provinces, most novel of these being the municipal physician system operating in western Canada.

This system has made the most progress in Saskatchewan, the committee said. Under the plan a physician is engaged at a salary to provide general practitioner care for approximately 2,000 people living in a certain area. Cost is met through a land tax, the average annual price per person in rural areas being $2.12. This plan, the committee found, is operating in approximately 100 rural municipalities and 50 towns in western Canada.

Robert Mandell Is Convicted Of Murder

SAN JOSE, Calif., Nov. 16—(AP) —Robert Mandell, 16, was convicted today of first degree murder of a 15-year-old school girl, Josephine Parsen, the night of July 1.

Since Mandell is not yet 18, he cannot be executed under California law. Sentencing was deferred pending outcome of a trial next week on the youth's separate plea of not guilty by reason of insanity.

As the verdict was read, the youth's mother, Mrs. Lorena Mandell, collapsed into the arms of her husband, Joseph O. Mandell.

Robert was pale, but dry-eyed and outwardly composed.

The girl's body, the head crushed, was found July 2 under a bridge. At the trial, Yolanda Ferrero, 13, testified she had seen Robert and Josephine walking across the bridge the evening before and a few minutes later had heard a scream.

Bomb Disposing's A Real Pleasure

LONDON, Nov. 16—(CP) — A London bank clerk who gave up his job to become a member of a bomb disposal squad of the Royal Engineers finds "much fun and real pleasure" in his new work of taking the sting from delayed action bombs.

"I'm surprised to find how much fun and real pleasure I get working with the parties," he said in a letter to a friend, in which he described the "biggest thrill of my life."

"About a fortnight ago," he wrote, "I was standing in a hole in about three feet of mud. Suddenly Jerry started dropping bombs around us and machine-gunning us. I amazed myself with the speed with which I covered so long a distance on so short a time. The blast of another bomb simply blew me down the steps of a shelter—and all I suffered was some lack of breath."

"But the spirit of our people," the sapper goes on. "The spirit of these Londoners. Our section was called to - - - the other day. There were houses smashed like—matchwood. Yet the people carried on, and were laughing too.

"One good soul said she was sorry she couldn't make me a cup of tea, but the milk was a little later than usual. And she had nothing, absolutely nothing, left of home!"

As an epilogue he added "we are all looking forward, you know, to our spring tour of Germany, visiting such interesting places as Berlin and Hamburg."

Streaking through the sky at Buffalo, this Curtiss Hawk 81-A pursuit plane (LEFT) was exhibited publicly for the first time at the ground-breaking ceremony for a new $12,000,000 warplane plant. Seven of these ships are being turned out daily for the Royal Air Force, and the rate of supply will probably be accelerated under the "50-50" plan announced by President Roosevelt. Figures on the plane's performance are withheld. At RIGHT, the first of seven long-range, four-motored Consolidated bombers, reportedly under order for Britain, prepares for a takeoff on one of its test flights at San Diego, Calif. The 20-ton ship, already bearing camouflage, is powered with four 1,200-horsepower, 18-cylinder radial engines which give it a top speed of more than 300 m.p.h. and a cruising range of more than 3,000 miles. Lloyd Child (CENTER), chief test pilot for Curtiss-Wright, made spectators gasp with his handling of the new Curtiss-Hawk at the ceremony in Buffalo.
