RALSTON

country which shall be as adequately prepared as it can possibly be to take care of its own responsibilities in respect to defence.

Speaking generally, the method to be continued and intensified is the mass development of all our resources in respect to weapons in equipment and in training facilities. The objective is that Canada should have an increasing military power into the scale in the most effective manner, and in the minimum of time.

It was agreed regarding the general order of priority which should be considered in connection with the military preparations.

In the immediate category, I place the following: "First, the strengthening and the adequate organization of our fixed and mobile defences against air attack in the area of our eastern seaboard and of the approaches to the coast. These will be immediately recognized, this is our most vulnerable area."

Command Hqs., for Maritimes. Measures have been taken according to the plan announced that Command headquarters in the Maritimes, to organize, control and co-ordinate for general purposes the forces in this area.

These will include the Canadian army and the non-permanent militia force or will be located there. The object is to use them to the best advantage in conjunction with the coast defence forces, wherever an attack may threaten. Included in this command will be the Canadian force in Newfoundland and Ireland, the West Indies or elsewhere. The command would provide for defence against possible invasion.

He also announced a large, modern rifle factory would be started in Canada and that 80 per cent of the machinery required for it had been obtained. This was only one of many measures being taken to increase the production of the military of the Bren gun plant was being stepped up.

Even machine gun production in Canada was a complete success, Col. Ralston said. The Overseas Division, originally equipped with Lewis guns in place of Bren guns, had now been re-equipped with the latest weapon and the productive capacity of the Bren gun plant was being stepped up.

New Recruiting Policy. Recruiting for the non-permanent active militia will be suspended on Aug. 15, the Minister announced. Thereafter, men called under the militia who are drafted under the National Resources Mobilization Act.

Men called for training under the Act will have exactly the same status as men who enlist voluntarily on Aug. 15. They will receive the same pay as military rates for 30 days for training, but will not receive the same training as those who enlist voluntarily.

The call, he said, would probably go first to men of the ages of 21 and 22. Training for these classes will be in the field for a period of 30 days and thereafter 30,000 men would be called up each month.

30 Training Centres. They will be trained in 30 training centres, accommodating about 1,000 men each, and the training period will be 30 days. While the time of the call for individuals may be arranged to suit their occupations, it is intended to send further troops to the front.

The total strength of the Canadian active militia force at present is 133,000 men. The present strength of the non-permanent active militia force is 133,000 men. The present strength of the non-permanent active militia force is 133,000 men.

Mr. Justice John S. Smiley of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia sentenced the 23-year-old man to hang. He was convicted of murdering Eldon S. Millett, a Pembroke, N. S. merchant who died in hospital after being beaten over the head with a hammer in his store Dec. 28. Conley's 18-year-old brother, Talbert, was acquitted of a similar charge.

Conley, who had drawn crude pictures and sung obscene songs while the scaffold was being erected, had been described as being "very happy" but calm when he received the news.

China Turns Down Jap Peace Plan

HONG KONG, July 29—(AP)—China was reported today to have turned down unconditional Japanese peace overtures which involved giving Japan five northern Chinese provinces outright, plus indirect hegemony over the Japanese possessions of France and Britain.

Foreign quarters close to the Chungking Government of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek listed the Japanese proposals: 1. Outright cession by China to Japan of five provinces, Hopeh which includes Peking and Tientsin and Jehol, Chihai, Shantung, Shanxi and Suiyuan.

2. Recognition of Wang Ching-wel, Japan's puppet in Nanking, as president of a Chinese republic, and his many friends wish him every success in his chosen work.

3. The status of Manchoukuo would be left in abeyance indefinitely. Manchoukuo is dominated by the Japanese army, but is nominally independent. It was carved out of China's former Manchurian provinces.

Chain Letters Make Rounds

The following telegram was received Standard from Mr. F. G. Spencer, referring to the picture now showing in the Prince Edward Theatre: Saint John, July 26, 1940.

A. R. Cooper, chairman of the War Savings Certificate committee, said yesterday that he had seen two war savings "chain letters" which were being circulated on the Island.

These letters are headed "Help Win the War" and attempt to help the recipient by suggesting he can help the "War Savings Certificate" campaign by mailing a 25 cent War Savings Stamp to the same name on the chain letter and adding his own name to a series of four letters.

Mr. Higgs has written to Ottawa for an opinion regarding these letters. He has heard of similar chain letters being distributed in other provinces.

Davis and Boyer Bring "All This, Heaven Too" To Glowing Life On Screen

There's a never-to-be-forgotten experience waiting for you at the Prince Edward Theatre, where Betie Davis and Charles Boyer have combined their dynamic talents in bringing Rachel Field's novel, "All This and Heaven Too" to glowing life on the screen.

Directed by the incomparable artist, Anatole Litvak, "All This and Heaven Too" emerges as the most superb love story of modern times. One of the leading best sellers of the past few years, Miss Field's novel comes to the screen with its dramatic essence immeasurably heightened by the brilliant performances of the two great dramatic stars, added by an outstandingly fine supporting cast.

Bette Davis is at her superb best at Heartbreaking, surpassing anything she has ever done before, and Charles Boyer interprets the Duo in a brilliantly sensitive performance with deeply tragic undertones. The screen love team of Miss Davis and Boyer is literally little more than two months before the start of the National Resources Mobilization Act. Consequently, the N.P.A.M. will consist of:

1. Men between the ages of 18 to 30, both inclusive, who are enlisted for a three-year period. These men may in time of war be required to serve continuously in the field for a period of not more than 18 months. These enlisted men could under the Military Act be sent on service outside of Canada, but desirably by the government have made it clear that men will not be required to serve outside Canada unless they re-attest voluntarily for such service.

2. Men between the ages of 21 to 46 who may be called for training from time to time under the National Resources Mobilization Act. These men may be required to serve during the continuation of the war, but by the terms of the National Resources Mobilization Act they will not be required to serve outside Canada without being re-attested voluntarily for such service.

3. Men between the ages of 18 to 46 who may be called for training at local quarters, or in camp, or in both. Men will be paid at N.P.A.M. rates for the training period—30 days in each year. For men who are not in Canada, two nights or afternoon periods of two hours each, are regarded as constituting a day.

Registration August 19. Registration under the National Resources Mobilization Act commences August 19, 1940, and will continue until 1941. It has been decided that recruiting for the non-permanent active militia will be suspended on Aug. 15. It will be understood, however, that even though recruiting is suspended on that date, men who have enlisted previously will be allowed to finish their training for the year by attending camp or drills at local headquarters, provided such training is completed within reasonable prospect.

As I have indicated, the plan is that after Aug. 15th additional personnel for the non-permanent active militia will be made up of those called for training in time training will, probably commence about Oct. 1.

Those called for training will be just as much a part of the militia as far as service in Canada is concerned, as those who enlisted before Aug. 15. They will be taken on the strength of a non-permanent active militia unit, will do exactly the same amount of training. They will be paid the non-permanent active militia rates for the period of training and will receive free transportation from their residence to the training centre and return.

I should like the House to note that we are anxious to encourage men to keep on with training, even though the 30 days may have been completed. We have, therefore, decided that all members of the non-permanent active militia units (whether they have enlisted or been called for training) may elect to take training as may be authorized at local headquarters, in addition to their regular 30 days. They will receive pay for this extra training.

Two Departments. As the House has already been told, the training to be carried on this winter will be the result of the activities of two departments, namely, the Department of National War Services under my colleague, the Hon. Mr. Gardiner, and the Department of National Defence.

To express the relative duties of each department in a word, Mr. Gardiner's department does everything necessary to have the men on hand at the training centre for training, and when they get there the Department of National Defence takes them over, provides them with food, accoutrements, clothing and equipment, and pays and trains them for the 30 day period.

The registration to be conducted by the Department of National War Services begins Aug. 19. My

Room for 15,000 More

This did not mean there would be no further recruiting for the C.A.S.F. There was room for about 15,000 more men to be trained, and the recruitment of additional men would be taken care of as required.

The trend of events, said Colonel Ralston, would determine the ultimate employment of Canadian troops. Eventually, he was confident, the force of the empire would take the offensive and then Canadians could demonstrate again the fighting qualities they displayed in the famed battles of the first great war.

The foundation of a soldier's military training is discipline, and ability to work on their own. If the emergency arises, is a characteristic of Canadians, and our system of training, service and discipline is being so worked out as to use to the full these native resources of our people. Discipline, physical training, drill, the fundamentals of a soldier's life and musketry are the foundations, and given those foundations, special training for the various branches of the service can be readily super-imposed.

Let me refer to the organizations in which the Canadian soldier is carrying out the duties I have spoken of.

Canadian Active Service Force. First, there is the Canadian Active Service Force. This is a force in which men of the age from 19 to 45 years, both inclusive, may enlist for full-time service and receive pay and allowances at C.A.S.F. rates. They serve in Canada or outside of Canada, as required. The enlistment is for the duration of the war and the demobilization period.

This force includes four divisions: ancillary divisional units, corps ancillary units, depot units, and reinforcements, and depots, veterans home guards and a number of unattached infantry battalions. There are over 138,000 men in all. The members of this force serve overseas; they are serving in the overseas of the continent; they may on our coast defend guard posts and other points of vulnerability.

Non-Permanent Active Militia. Secondly, we have the non-permanent active militia. We want to keep the non-permanent active militia with its splendid associations; but more than that, we want to extend its usefulness by having it take in and make part of it the men who will in probably 6000 ENEMIES A compelling drama of prison life expertly enacted by Walter Pidgeon, Ray Johnson, Paul Kelly and a vast selection among others, brings exceptional entertainment to the Capitol screen for the next few days. The picture is "6000 ENEMIES" and not since the memorable "Big House" has the screen offered so thrilling and powerful a story as that unfolded in the current offering. The story is that of a young district attorney whose two-isted prosecution of the underworld leads him to being framed into a prison term himself on a trumped up charge of bribery. Facing six thousand enemies, he fights his way into their respect and eventually falls in love with a girl prisoner, played by Miss Johnson whom he has convicted, but who convinces him that she, too, was framed. "6000 Enemies" is vigorous entertainment, with prison breaks, fights, murder and riots, all having an important part in the story. George B. Seitz, who directed all of the "Hardy Family" series, veers from his homespun background to two-isted entertainment with equally outstanding results.
