LONGEVITY IN MEXICO

A Peon 135 Years Old Working in Field—Indian of 127

It is an interesting fact that the most remarkable instances of longevity among the inhabitants of the New World are chronicled of the aborigines. This holds good both of North and South America. Especially great are the ages attained by Indians dwelling in the highland tropics, a fact noted by the observant Baron von Humboldt and by scores of other travelers and explorers.

About two decades ago General William Palmer of the famous Palmer-Sullivan combination who built the national railroad from Laredo to this capital, discovered in the State of Vera Cruz an Indian peon working in the field, who gave his age as 135 years. Some years ago President Diaz during a visit to the State of Jalisco encountered a man of Indian War of Independence, a man of Indian blood, who fought under the patriot Morelos, and was at the time when General Diaz met him 127 years old. He had much to tell the President of those early campaigns.—Mexican Herald.

HAD TO STOP WORK FROM THE PAIN

Suffered Ten Years Until "Fruit-a-lives" Cured Him

ST. THOMAS, ONT., May 22nd, 1913.

"I was troubled for ten years with the most distressing Constipation and Indigestion of the worst form.

No one could have been worse with these troubles than I was for this long time.

The pain from Indigestion was so severe that many times, I have had to stop work and lie down until the acute spasms passed away.

I took a lot of medicine—in fact, I guess I took about everything that was advertised—and gave them all a fair test—but got no relief. About a year ago, however, I was advised to try "Fruit-a-lives". I am mighty glad I did so for they seem to be made exactly for my case.

They gave results in a very short time and I am now free from these diseases and enjoying perfect health.

My wife also used "Fruit-a-lives" and we both think they are the best medicine ever made."

FUN FOR LITTLE ONES

Some Little Tricks to Amuse the Children Indoors

Amongst all sorts of amusing experiments which can be made with tumblers, sticks, forks, and spoons, perhaps one of the most favorite ones with children is the penny and tumbler trick.

If you fill a tumbler with water—as full as it is possible without overflowing—and observe the line of the water you will find that in the middle of the tumbler the water is slightly concave—that is, forms a depressed line just as if it had been scooped out. This, which is caused by the natural weight of the water, is however, not apparent to the usual uninitiated, and although the water might, on the edge of the glass, be almost on the point of overflowing, any child can challenge a grown-up person to put in it many coppers without spilling a single drop of water.

To perform this little trick the coppers must be put exactly in the centre and dropped very gently, first inserting the edge in the water. Great will be the surprise of all concerned to see that, according to the size of the glass, five or six coppers can thus be put in until the water in the centre becomes level with the sides, when of course, the water will flow over.

A most amusing experiment might be tried with a lighted candle.

Take a tumbler half full of very cold water and, having lighted the candle, hold it sideways over the tumbler. The hot wax will pour in drops into the water, when the coldness of the latter will congeal the melted wax immediately it touches the surface of the water, thus creating a rough-edged little ball strangely like the flower known as the "lily of the valley." After a good many of these flowers are produced in this way they are threaded one at the time on a long thin piece of wire, a small knot preventing the flower from slipping through.

The wires are then twisted lightly over each other to form the spray of lilies, which, when mixed with strips of green paper cut and twisted to imitate the long pointed leaves, makes a most charming and interesting ornament.

A WARLIKE PRINCE

The Kaiser's Son Startled Berlin With His Book

Something like a sensation was caused in Berlin by the publication of a book called "Germany in Arms." The book, which is "most reverently dedicated to the German Emperor and the Prussian King," contains the following motto: "The world does not rest more safely on the shoulders of Atlas than does Germany on her army and navy."

The Imperial editor asserts that Germany, more than any other land, has to trust to its armaments, and that as its geographical position is unfavorable, and as all nations do not regard Germany with affection, the country has the sacred duty imposed on it always to maintain its army and navy in a state of readiness. "Only in this way, relying on our good sword, can we maintain that place in the sun which is ours, but which will not be voluntarily conceded to us."

The Crown Prince goes on to say that diplomacy may delay the conflict for a season, but those in responsible positions must know that once a gigantic conflagration is lighted it is not so easy to extinguish.

Speaking of the delight of riding to an attack, the Prince says there is one delight still greater—namely, that of meeting the enemy at the end of the gallop, and the fight for life and death.

TANNING BY ELECTRICITY

Better Leather is Produced in Much Shorter Time

A new electric tanning process, invented by the Swedish scientist, Dr. A. Groth, and applied on a practical scale in an English works, is attracting much attention, and one of the prominent electrical firms is to take it up for commercial use. With this method, the hides are put in special vats along with metal conductors, so as to carry out an electrolytic action, and this will tan the hides in much less time than usual, for instance, six weeks as compared to several months. Leather of better quality is produced in this way, and the method gives a perfect and solid tanning. Various electrical devices in the shape of regulators, also safety apparatus for over-current, make the process almost an automatic one.
