"Four Jacks And Jill"
Sparkling Musicoedy Of Singer's Lucky Star

How a pretty little songstress brings good luck to a struggling swing band and romance to its ambitious leader, makes for the lively basis of "Four Jacks and Jill" which is being staged at the Capitol Theatre. Sparkling with gay tunes and spectacular routines, the sparkling offering depicts the vicissitudes of a little four-man band which depends upon the popularity of its jocular vocalist for its scanty success. When she deserts the group to run off with a snip-happy gunman, the boys lose their jobs in a cinch and the band is disbanded. But an equally impoverished girl singer attaches herself to the band, their immediate success at another club when the shrewd lead singer's stress pretends to be a favorite of a now refugee king builds up to the hilarious, tenuous conclusion. Desi Arnaz, Jack Durant, June HAVOC, Jack Briggs, Eddie Foy Jr., William Brees and Fritz Feld all appear in prominent supporting roles. Jack Hively directed. John Twist produced the film for RKO Radio.

A., S.T.M., conducted both services at the church and the church parade service at the R.A.F. Station at 9:30 a.m. Concluding his morning sermon Mr. Somers said: "He lives and the aching heart knows its sorrow blessed and sanctified. He lives and the weary find their rest, the lonely a friend that sticks closer than a brother and the sick and most darkened life a love that wipes its tears away. He lives, and life and death are ours, and we are His and He is God's now, henceforth and forever."

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

How many problems we meet in life which become so simple when we face this great fact of our risen Lord. The women who went to the sepulchre with spices and ointments to anoint the body of Jesus were heavy in heart and perplexed, not knowing how they could roll away the stone, set all their doubts and fears were changed to joy and exultation when the angels said unto them: "Why seek ye the living among the dead? He is not here, for he is risen."
