U.S. LABOR CHIEF SEEKS RE-ELECTION

William Green Practically Assured of Office As Head of Federated Labor.

(By James P. Selvaige Associated Press Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—Virtually certain of re-election as American Labor's chief spokesman for another year, William Green tonight was drawing his lines together to stand off challenges from the less conservative elements of the American Federation of Labor.

While Green was opening the National Convention of the Federation with a demand for a 30-hour week to take up the unemployment slack and an appeal to delegates to have faith in the new deal, a "rank-and-file" convention was being organized a few blocks away.

Independent Group

The independent group claimed to hold paid up memberships in the Federation and was considering demanding official recognition from Green.

Another section under the leadership of John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers of America, was ready to demand an enlargement of the executive committee to break up the present dominance of one faction, while still a third bloc was reported to be at odds with the Federation's stand sufficiently.

Lewis, who virtually assured Green's retention of the Federation Presidency by declining to be a candidate against him, was prepared to seek enlargement of the Control Board from 11 to 25 members. Lewis was beaten at Cincinnati in a similar attempt to force new blood into the Control Board.

Despite these latent controversies general opposition to Green was not apparent as he opened the convention. Applause rung through the hall as he demanded higher minimum wages and shorter maximum hours in codes approved by the N. R. A., asserting only a 30-hour week could take up the unemployment slack. The high mark of the reception came, however, when he referred to President Roosevelt.

"We must have faith," Green said. "Faith in the new deal, faith in the principles of this act; faith in those who are honestly and liberally administering it; and, most important of all, faith in that great fearless leader, the President of the United States."

WITHDRAWALS FROM TARIFF TRUCE PROBED

(By Claude A. Jagger Associated Press Financial Editor)

NEW YORK, Oct. 2—Withdrawals from the Tariff Truce reached at the London Economic Conference are regarded in international banking quarters as due as much to fears of German competition as to any other cause.

While there has been much talk in gold standard countries of the danger to their trade of United States dollar depreciation, the decline in the dollar has not as yet spurred American exports.

Germany, on the other hand, while maintaining an official gold parity for the Reichsmark, is accomplishing the effects of a depreciated currency in making available to foreign purchasers of her goods blocked marks at substantial discounts.

The supply of blocked marks will shortly be increased when Germany begins to pay half of the interest on all issues of foreign bonds save the Young and Dawes plan issues with script. It has been expected that this script might sell at a discount of as much as 50 percent.

It may be used to acquire marks in Germany for the purchase of German goods, which may be exported, although the marks acquired will not be transferable into foreign currencies. The various supplies of block marks already available for the purchase of goods in Germany are selling at discounts of around 20 percent.

After falling to the low levels of 28,000,000 and 25,000,000 reichsmarks in June and July, Germany's favorable balance of trade jumped 66,000,000 reichsmarks in August. During the first five months of the year, the favorable balance grew steadily, reaching the large figure of 89,000,000 reichsmarks in May.

The Biter Bitten

The old rhyme "big fleas have little fleas upon their backs to bite them, and little fleas have lesser fleas, and so on ad infinitum, is brought to mind by an interesting contribution in the August number of Scientific Agriculture, the official organ of the Canadian Society of Technical Agriculturists. During 1931, writes Mr. W. E. Whitehead, lecturer in Entomology at Macdonald College, while examining some fleas taken from Richardson's gopher (ground squirrel) Dr. L. G. Saunders of the University of Saskatchewan, discovered that some were harbouring mites, which had the appearance of being within the body cavities of the fleas. Knowing that the author was interested in the Acarina (mites), Dr. Saunders forwarded the material to him. These mites attach themselves to their hosts by means of ventral suckers, and being also wedged beneath the tergites (the covering of the back) are very securely attached. The association between mites and fleas is not unique, although the separation of the species is very difficult, due to the fact that it is the immature mite that forms this association. Very few adults of such mites are known; they are believed to be free living.

Castle Is Found After 700 Years

LONDON, Oct. 3—(C.P.)—Remains of an Early Norman structure, believed to be the lost castle of the de Mandevilles, have been discovered at Warrigate Farm, South Mimms in Middlesex, on the road to Barnet and near the Barnet by-pass road, on land belonging to Viscount Cranborne. Excavations to uncover the building, which lies beneath extensive earthworks are to begin immediately.

The history of the castle is not definitely known, but the earthworks show it to be larger than the famous Richard's Castle in Herefordshire, which it closely resembles. It is supposed that the building at South Mimms is the de Mandeville castle of which all trace has been lost for 700 years.

The Durability Of Wood

OTTAWA, Oct. 3—At the present time the cost of construction material is being analysed more closely than in the past, and for many purposes, timber, untreated or treated to resist decay, is receiving the consideration that is naturally granted to any material that will facilitate the erection of a structure having the lowest annual charge over the period of years estimated as the probable required life. In order to be certain that timber will remain in a serviceable condition for the required period, and also to estimate the annual charge for structures which it is probable will remain in service as long as the timber is in a serviceable condition, it is necessary to know something about the durability of timbers under different conditions of service. During the past eighteen years a large amount of timber treated to resist decay has been used in Canada for railway ties, telephones and telegraph poles, piling bridges, culverts, mining timbers, and similar purposes. The time has now arrived when it is possible to check up on the results of the work to date, and obtain information which will enable engineers to calculate, with some degree of accuracy, the annual cost of timber structures under Canadian conditions.

The Forest Products Laboratories, Forest Service, Department of the Interior, Ottawa, has prepared forms for distribution to public utility organizations, engineers, and others throughout the country, in order that definite information may be secured on the life of representative timber structures. The information thus obtained will in turn be made available by the Forest Service to those requiring it.

COMMUNIST LONGSHOREMEN STRIKE

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 3—(C.P.)—Communist longshoremen employed by Nafta, Soviet oil concern operating in Sweden, refused to unload petroleum from the German freighter Malkan when it arrived at Ledden flying the Nazi flag.

A full day was required to persuade the men to work and then consented only when the flag was "struck." Similar trouble has been experienced in the harbor at Copenhagen, Denmark.

DIG RADIO SHOW NOVEL FEATURES

LONDON, Oct. 3—(C. P.)—Wireless sets to the value of $15,000,000 were installed at Olympia for the National Radio Exhibition and the huge exhibition halls were transformed into a palace of radio. In connection with the radio exhibition the greatest feat was the erection of a concert hall, seating more than 2,000 people, where the British Broadcasting Corporation gave daily performances to enable listeners to see as well as hear their favorite wireless stars.

Half of the National Hall was taken up for this. The other half was used for the Post Office exhibits. A novel feature was a Post Office complaints bureau, where any listener suffering from electrical interference of other form of wireless trouble was able to obtain free advice. One of the Post Office exhibits was a coffee grinder which produced hideous crackles in a loud speaker until silenced by a special General Post Office device.

Two hundred of Britain's biggest radio manufacturing firms exhibited. Foreigners were barred.

DRAGON SCARE AT FAMOUS LAKE

Loch Ness, one of Scotland's most historic lakes, has had a dragon scare to add to its fame. Surrounded by ancient castles and the scenes of many desperate battles, it needed only a dragon to complete its glamour. But old fishermen believe all an excited bather saw before reporting the dragon was an old tree stump protruding from the water.

CONSERVATIVE WINDSOR N.S. CONVENTION TEACHERS IN QUEBEC OPPOSE CUT

(Canadian Press)

SHERBROOKE, Que., Oct. 2.—Flags and party banners were unfurled in Sherbrooke tonight as 500 delegates from every constituency in Quebec settled the last details of the Quebec Conservative Party Convention which opens here tomorrow and will close on Wednesday.

The question uppermost in all minds was the problem of selecting a leader and the most discussed question in Sherbrooke was the prospective fight for leadership between Maurice Duplessis, K.C., member of the Quebec Legislative Assembly for Three Rivers and temporary leader of the party, and Onesime Gagnon, K.C., member of Parliament for Dorchester.

Duplessis has guided the destinies of the party since Camilleten Houde, former leader, failed in his noted 1931 drive against the long standing Government of Premier L. A. Taschereau. After a whirlwind pre-election speaking tour and the most impressive marshalling of Conservative forces in 30 years, Houde failed to increase Conservative representation in the Quebec House and was defeated in both constituencies where he sought election.

Turn Down Cheques

However, when pay-day rolled around the teachers turned back the cheques, claiming they hadn't been "officially notified." And besides, they didn't think much of the whole idea, anyway. They pointed out that last year's contracts, automatically renewed for this year, call for the full salary.

But the Board is sticking by its decision. And now it's a question of the teachers suing for the original salary, or the Board firing them all and then re-hiring those agreeing to sign up for the reduction.

Meanwhile, the teachers go payless.

THINK FROGS BURIED FOR PAST 34 YEARS

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Oct. 2.—Five spotted frogs unearthed during the wrecking of a building at the General Electric plant have raised the question as to whether they could have been buried 34 years and still live.

The building, which is being razed to make way for a more modern structure, was built, 34 years ago. The clay surface on which it rested had been a swamp until the company drained it.

Yesterday Professor James W. Mavor of the Union College biology department, who has been studying one of the frogs, said there were indications that the amphibian had spent all of this century hibernating in the clay.
