CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS HAS A PICTURESQUE EXHIBIT

VIVID PORTRAYAL OF BEAUTIES OF CANADIAN ROCKIES—WIRELESS TELEPHONE DEMONSTRATION WILL BE ANOTHER GREAT ATTRACTION TO VISITORS TO THE RAILWAY BUILDING.

The Canadian National-Grand Trunk Railways have this year combined to make one of the most striking displays of the history of the Canadian Exhibition. The exhibit, which occupies two of the three main sections of the railway building, gives a new vision to the extent and resources of the Dominion.

One of the sections is devoted to a vivid portrayal of the beauties of the Canadian Rockies at the point where the peaks reach their greatest heights. The grandeur of the Yohohead Pass and its surrounding peaks is shown on a scale commensurate with the magnitude of the great mountain chain. The visitor stands under the shadow of a giant cedar, the branches of which arch over the whole of the ceiling. At his feet are the Maligne Falls and the turbulent silver stream of the Maligne River, threading its way among the foothills. In the background is a panorama 100 feet in length, of the magnificent mountains in Jasper National Park and Mount Hobson Park, the two great scenic reserves through which the Canadian National and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railways make their way to the Pacific Coast. Mount Edith Cavell, the beautiful peak named by the Dominion government, is in the centre of the panorama, and is supported by Mounts Gekie, Fitzwilliam, Pyramid, Roche de Smet and Roche Miette, the monarch of the Canadian Rockies, looming up in the distance.

The atmosphere of Canada's mountain world has been retained in a wonderful way, and it is difficult for the observer to realize that he is not viewing the scene from some favorite vantage point in the Rocky Mountains. The system of lighting has been arranged to give, in various periods of the day, the effects seen among the mountains at sunrise, noonday and evening.

Canada's Merchant Marine

In the second section of the exhibit the working of the Canadian government marine is featured in connection with the great network of the railway lines—that is now known as the Canadian National system. Adding a graphic touch to this display are the ships of Canada's merchant marine as seen flashing actual wireless messages, and these are picked up in turn by no fewer than 43 wireless messages, waterways from Cape Race to the Pacific Ocean. In order to make this possible, the Marconi Company has installed an aerial system above the railway building, to receive messages from all points, these being handled by an operator housed in an exact replica of a steamship's wireless cabin. Simultaneously the messages are spelled out in miniature a wonderful system of miniature lamps spread over a gigantic map of the Dominion of Canada. In addition to the wireless telegraph apparatus there is kept working the new system of wireless telephony. Expert engineers are on hand to explain in full the working of the various forms of apparatus.

The Canadian government department of marine is also lending its assistance in making the Canadian National exhibit complete. It is showing a remarkable series of aids to navigation, including large revolving lighthouse lanterns and beacon lights, fog horns, etc.

Emphasis is also placed in the exhibit on the opportunities awaiting the settler along the lines of the Canadian National Railways, the whole display being excellently planned and carried out on a high scale of excellence.
