What the Fashionable are Wearing Illustrated Dressmaking Lesson Furnished With Every Pattern By Anabelle Worthington

The straight panel in the front of this model, creates a hint of princess, but the sash merging from it, blouses the rest just slightly, and gives us what we need before knotting prettily at the back.

Modishly cut in three sections, so that there is a point centre front and side of hem is this model. Incidentally of course, the style is slimming with all its points to suggest long fluid lines.

This pattern may be obtained for 15 cents in sizes 14 to 20 and 34 to 40. It is ready for immediate delivery. It is hand cut.

SEMI PRINCESS LINES All Tingey models are created and sketched in Paris and the patterns are made in New York.

Q. Is the fashion of "cutting in" at a dance correct? A. Yes.

Woman's Fortitude

Forces Herself to Smile Through Pain

"I never seem to find time to rest," says many an overworked housewife. Under smiles and forced cheerfulness she conceals weariness and nervous depression; headaches and back-aches. Often she is in real pain, but still refuses to give up.

A noted doctor has stated that nine-tenths of the ills of womanhood are due to poor blood. That anaemia is the cause of the low spirits, the poor appetite and palpitation that make life a burden for so many.

REGULAR PAINS?

SOME women suffer more than others. Often, when they aren't any need! The pains peculiar to women may be relieved as readily as other pains for which Aspirin is intended.

OVER 1/2 MILLION JARS USED YEARLY

THE MOON

Long I sit gazing Up at the sky, Watching a moonbeam Elusive and shy.

Come, little moonbeam, Brighten the night, Dark are the shadows Without your light.

"Why are you hiding Reluctant to shine, Have I been naughty, Have I been unkind?"

That you should keep Hidden away, Behind those clouds Your silver ray.

Fairies are waiting Out there to play, Why don't you turn Night into day?

Deep in the shadows They cannot see, Make haste to come To them and me.

Turning to you now, Bright silver moon, Make those dark clouds Break away soon.

Darkness dispelling, Again I see Welcoming moonbeams Shining for me.

Guard The Children From Autumn Colds

The Fall is the most severe season of the year for colds—one day is warm, the next cold and wet, and unless the mother is on her guard, the little ones are seized with colds that may hang on all winter.

DEPARTURE REGRETTED

Mrs. Elliot Bell, Albany, P. E. I. Dear Sister Member:—A short time ago it was rumored that you were about to leave us. At first we hoped it was just a rumor, but alas! it is too true.

By your going we are losing one of our faithful members, and we could not let you go from us without showing in some small way our appreciation of your friendship.

During the years you have been with us we have always found you ever willing to do your share to assist in all the work of our Institute. We shall miss your merry smile as we meet from month to month.

We trust as you make new friends in your new Community you will not forget your old ones for: "The golden threads of friendship true,

Time fleeting may not sever And memories sweet of by-gone days Bring joys that live forever."

And as you use this little gift may it ever be a pleasant reminder of "Jubilee Women's Institute."

We are not going to say "Good-bye" but "Farewell," and we trust both you, Mr. Bell, Wilda and Seaman, may enjoy many years of health and happiness in your new home.

Signed on behalf of Jubilee Women's Institute.

MRS. W. P. CAMERON, President. MRS. HAM GAMBLE, Secretary-Treas.

Does Mere Fact of Being a Man Make a Husband Superior to His Wife?—Why it is a Dangerous Thing for a Middle-Aged Man to Marry Young Girl

Dear Miss Dix—My husband and I are always quarreling, and his contention is that he is always right because he is a man. Now I shall let you decide whether he is right or not.

He doesn't want me to read any books because he says that a woman should spend her time in taking care of her husband and home. He thinks he should be allowed to flirt with women because he is a man and that I should not resent it.

Answer: Well, I think you would feel that you could live mighty comfortably without that kind of husband.

The code of conduct that he has drawn up for you and to which he expects you to subscribe belongs to the Dark Ages, when wives were slaves. It has no place in this enlightened age, when women are free and husbands and wives are equal partners.

I should say that your husband was wrong in every single solitary particular. In the first place, the mere fact of his having been born a man didn't endow him with supernatural wisdom.

No woman is under any obligation to obey her husband. Husbands and wives should talk things over and agree together on what is the best thing to do.

A woman who loves her husband will naturally want to do the thing he wants her to do whenever he is reasonable, but a wife is under no more obligation to obey her husband arbitrarily than he is to obey her.

Probably every wife does make more sacrifices of her tastes and inclinations and gives to her husband more personal service than he does to her. She takes more trouble to amuse him and go with him to the places he wants to go to and she nurses him with her own hands when he is sick, while he sends a nurse in to take care of her.

But this is a matter of convenience because a man's business occupies his time and because women like to pet and cuddle their husbands. However, wives do it of their grace and not because of its being their duty.

As for your husband not wanting you to read or to have any friends, that shows how unintelligent he is. He should know that the woman who never reads grows dull and stupid and narrow and prejudiced and nagging and that the woman who has no human contacts but who lives shut up within the walls of her own house, becomes morbid and fault-finding and an impossible person to live with.

As for your husband demanding that you turn over all your money to him, that is a sure sign that you need to hang on to it with a death grip, for a good husband wants his wife to have the sense of freedom that the possession of her own little bank account gives her.

Dear Miss Dix—Do you think that a man who is only old in calendar years should be relegated to the fireside class and not permitted to marry a young girl? Don't you think that differences in calendar years is a bygone issue in these times of ours? Which makes the better husband, the older or the younger man, with everything else equal except age?

Answer: In a way, it is foolish to measure age by the number of birthdays one has celebrated. Age is largely a matter of temperament, and there are men and women who are born old and others whose birthright is perpetual youth.

But, speaking by and large, the passing of the years brings certain changes to most of us; changes of the spirit as well as of the body. We may delude ourselves into thinking that we have not altered, that we are just as strong as we were at 20, that we see things in the same light, that our appetites are as keen and our enjoyment of everything brings us the same thrills, but this is not true.

This is why it is a dangerous thing for a middle-aged man to marry a very young girl. And the danger is one that increases with every year. For the man who is in his prime at 45 or 50 may not be such an unsuitable mate for the girl of 20, but what sort of husband will he be for her when she is in her prime and he has reached a state of doddering senility?

If we could eliminate these awful calendar years the older man would make a far better husband than the younger man, because the man of 45 or 50 has acquired tact and wisdom and patience. He has learned about women from many women and would know far better how to manage a wife and get along with her in peace and comfort than a boy would.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a girl of 20 engaged to a young doctor who is in his first year as a practicing physician and is working hard to make good. He wants to wait until he has established himself before we marry, but my opinion is that now is the time when he needs me most. Please advise me.

Answer: I think that you can help your sweetheart far more by waiting than you can by rushing him into matrimony before he can afford it.

A young doctor starting out to build up a practice needs to be free of all entanglements and to have nothing on his mind but his patients. And if you really love him and want to be of assistance to him, leave him free. Don't burden him down with a family and debts.

And if you think you have it in you to inspire him, just remember that your ability to do that is not lessened by your not being married to him. On the contrary, it is strengthened, for marrying you will be the shining goal to which he will work forward.

Happenings of the Week

With water brought from the River Jordan, little Princess Margaret Rose second daughter of the Duke and Duchess of York, was christened in the private chapel of Buckingham Palace by the Archbishop of Canterbury on Thursday, October 30th.

The little Princess, who was ten weeks old, wore a robe of cream satin and old Brussels lace which was made for Queen Victoria and has been used for nearly every royal christening since, including that of the baby's sister, Princess Elizabeth.

The King and Queen, the Duke and Duchess of York, Prince George, Princess Elizabeth and Princess Victoria were the members of the royal family who attended.

Princess Victoria, Lady Patricia Ramsay, Lady Rose Levenson-Gower, sister to the Duchess; Prince George and the Hon. David Bowes-Lyon, her brother, were sponsors for the infant.

A great crowd outside the palace cheered as the Duke and Duchess smiled a greeting as they arrived with their two children by motor from their Piccadilly home. Between them in the car sat the Princess Elizabeth, bareheaded, wearing a white dress. Opposite them the new Princess lay in the arms of her nurse covered with a long white veil with her white satin robes draped gracefully about her.

The Canadian Legion are being warmly commended for the excellence of the play French Leave, so successfully staged for them by Mr. Stuart Dickson on Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

The Ladies' Aid of St. James Church pleasantly surprised Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Moorehead Legate Wednesday evening when they called in a body to bid them welcome to the Mansie. They left behind them many mysterious parcels as tangible evidence of their good wishes.

Mrs. Charles Williams is visiting in Westmount, P. Q., the guest of Mrs. Wm. Wright, Metcalf Avenue.

The annual Monday night Bridge Club resumed their game this week when Mrs. Harry Miller was hostess and a most enjoyable reunion took place.

The Thursday afternoon Bridge Club also met for the first time this season. Mrs. Mathieson, wife of Chief Justice Mathieson entertaining in their honor.

Mrs. (Dr.) Dewar has returned

Mrs. Egg entertained very delightfully for a number of her friends this week at two charming bridge parties at her home in Summerside.

The diamond tiara of Victorian glory may not have staged a comeback, but it has its counterpart in the gorgeously jeweled ornaments now making their appearance at the opera and other very formal occasions in New York. Delicately jeweled side pins, shaped like the popular clips or even like the barrettes of days gone by help in holding back the side locks of the long bob.

News received from Rev. John Pringle, D. D., Pastor emeritus of Saint Andrew's Church, Sydney, C. B., who is a patient in the Lowell General Hospital, Lowell, Mass., tells of his making a good recovery. He will, however, be in the hospital for some further period. Dr. Pringle who underwent a serious operation, reacted well to the treatment and will, it is hoped, soon be completely recovered.

Mrs. Clara I. Stevenson, New Glasgow has had for her visitors during the past week, her son, Mr. Olaf E. Stevenson and bride. This was Mrs. Stevenson's first visit to the Garden of the Gulf and she was charmed by the many beauties of our province. The happy young couple left by motor yesterday morning for New Bedford, Mass., where Mr. Stevenson holds a lucrative position.

Mrs. Leo T. Trainor, West eighth Avenue, Vancouver, was an afternoon tea hostess recently in honor of Mrs. John Trainor of Charlottetown. Yellow snapdragons centered the tea table while yellow tapers burned in silver scones. Mrs. B. C. Holmes presided at the urns. Invited guests were Mrs. Philip White, Miss Eva White, Mrs. A. Farrell, Mrs. W. M. Gow, Miss Dorothy Gow, Miss Leila Gow, Mrs. F. E. McBride, Mrs. E. W. Simmons, Mrs. J. A. Turner, Miss Ann McMaster, Miss Lina McMaster and Miss Rose McMaster. Mrs. Trainor also entertained at dinner in honor of Mr. and Mrs. John Trainor before their departure for the south, where they expect to spend some time.

Miss Elaine Beales left this morning for Montreal, on a visit to her sister Miss Eleanor Beales, R. N.

Congratulations are being extended to Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Bourke on the arrival of twin daughters at their home yesterday.

The many friends of Mrs. Arthur G. Bruce will be glad to know she is convalescing nicely after an operation on Tuesday in the P. E. I. Hospital.

Mrs. H. P. Found, New London, who has been visiting in Boston and other American cities for the past five weeks has arrived home. She stopped over a week in Amherst with Mrs. A. I. McLean who accompanied her on her delightful holiday among relatives and friends.

Soft, lovely hair!

The modern artist hair-dresser can do wonderful things with your hair. But all your hair needs can not be supplied in the beauty shop. You must help at home. And that's where Danderine comes in.

Danderine is so simple and easy to use. Each time you arrange your hair just put a little of this delicately fragrant liquid on your brush. As you draw it through the hair, Danderine removes excess oil, cleanses, brings out the natural color, gives your hair an amazing new lustre.

Used consistently, Danderine dissolves the dandruff, keeps the scalp comfortable and healthy; stops falling hair; helps make your hair grow long, silky and abundant.

Your hair is so much easier to arrange and stays in place when Danderine is used. Waves "set" with it look nicer; stay in longer. Five million bottles used a year!
