IN MEMORIAM

MR. STEPHEN MELLICK

Stephen Mellick, an aged and highly respected citizen passed away at his home in Elmira, P. E. Island, on May 2nd in his eighty-second year.

For the past twelve months he had been in failing health, but the end came sooner than was expected.

He was of a quiet, unassuming disposition, a faithful and loving father, and a devoted brother.

He was the son of the late John M. and Mrs. Mellick and is survived by one son and three daughters, Stephen and Hilda at home, Mrs. Peter McIntyre, B.C.; Mrs. Earl McLaren, North Lake. Three brothers, John F. Franklin, Mass.; Dr. H. G. Mellick, Hantsport, N. S., and Joseph, Lakeville, P. E. I.

Services were conducted at his late home and grave by H. R. Bell, taking Job 5-26 as his theme, "Thou shalt come to thy grave in a full age." The pall bearers were J. E. Dingwell, C. C. Dingwell, L. Rose, Wm. Fraser, Dominic Harris and J. F. Mossey. Interment was made in Kingsboro Cemetery.

WILLIAM DAVID MCLURE

Seldom have the residents of Murray Harbor North and surrounding districts been so grieved as when they heard that William David McLure had been suddenly called from time to eternity.

He was a son of the late Cartney D. and Mrs. McLure and was born on the old McLure homestead May 24th, 1890, as a lad he was a favorite with old and young and held this enviable reputation throughout his life.

After receiving a common school education he entered Prince of Wales College, graduating from there with a teacher's license in 1908. He taught school until the summer of 1911, when he decided to try his fortunes in Western Canada, going to Carman, Manitoba, he entered the store of his uncle Gavin McLure as bookkeeper, where he was until the outbreak of the Great War in August 1914, when he enlisted and went overseas in the first contingent from Valcartier, serving there for the entire duration of the war. He had a long and distinguished career being decorated four times and raised to the rank of Lieutenant. While attached to the Strathcona Horse (Royal Canadians) he received the military medal for on the night of July 8th, 1917, he in the face of grave danger led a bombing party with great courage and skill clearing out several dugouts and capturing a large number of the enemies' officers and men. While on duty he suffered from poison gas and no doubt this with hardships endured was the cause of his sudden death on April 14th. He gave his life for his King and country just as truly as though he had died on Flanders field.

In the spring of 1919 he came home for a short visit before returning to Carman. For several years he was located in Russell, Man., in the employ of Smellie Bros. While there he was a member of the Russell United Church also secretary-treasurer of their Sunday School. He was also a member of the Masonic Order, about two and one half years ago he returned home and for the two past seasons he was a valued employee of the Island Fertilizer Co.

Mr. McLure was a young man of sterling qualities, kind and considerate to all, he studied not his own comfort but was ever thinking of some plan to make others happy. A dutiful son and a beloved brother his going has left an aching void in the home that never can be filled. That he was loved and respected by people in all walks of life was evidenced by the large attendance at his funeral, despite the almost impassable condition of the roads. Services conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. L. Douglas, who brought a comforting message to the bereaved and exhorted his hearers to be prepared for we know not the day nor the hour when the "Son of Man cometh." The choir feelingly rendered "The Lord's My Shepherd," "My Hope is Built on Nothing Less," "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," "The Man Who Once Hath Found Abode."

His remains were tenderly laid to rest in the new cemetery at M. H. North, the casket was borne by Willard McLure, W. Laurier McLure, William Johnston, Fred'k Johnston, Edward Millar and Newton Hicken.

He leaves to mourn a sorrowing mother, Mrs. C. D. McLure, one sister and seven brothers, Miss L. B. McLure, Lexington, Mass., Adam, Charles, Cameron and Benjamin, Montague, Chester, Howard and George, M. H. North.

THE LATE JOHN CAMERON

Cox, Souris, thence by train to Charlottetown, interment being in the People's Cemetery. On Sunday evening, Rev. John Hockin, Souris, officiated at a short service for the deceased at his late home.

The acting pall bearers for the removal of the remains from the home to the station at Souris were: Messrs. H. H. Acorn, E. L. Stewart, J. B. Matthew, Hon. H. D. MacLean, Dr. A. H. Smallwood and J. F. Sterns. The acting pallbearers at Charlottetown were: Messrs. A. E. Morrison, Col. D. A. MacKinnon, W. A. Stewart, M. P. P., Halsey Hooper, W. C. Stewart and D. A. MacKinnon. Rev. R. Moorhead Legate, D. D., officiated at the service at the grave.

"PRIMEVAL GODS" STATUE CREATES SENSATION

LONDON, May 22.—(C.P.)—Jacob Epstein's "Primeval Gods," the five-ton sculpture, seven feet by six feet is creating something of a sensation in London and shocking the "phillistines." The artist has been working on it intermitently since 1910. It is on view at the Leicester Galleries, where Epstein's "Genesis" drew shocked thousands at the last show. "Primeval Gods" is a centrepiece, in two vast cemented slabs of Hopwood stone, is carved in deep relief on two sides—one with a male and two infant figures, and the other with the spread-eagled male figure known as the Sun God. It could be better judged in a park or on a building.

Epstein, master of plastic sculpture, was born in New York, of Russian-Polish parents, and is 53 years of age. He resides in London.

Royal William Spanned Ocean 100 Years Ago

PICTOU, N. S., May 21—(C.P.)—This year will mark the 100th anniversary of the spanning of the Atlantic by the Royal William, a Canadian built vessel, the first to make a crossing from mainland to mainland entirely under her own steam.

A previous crossing had been made by a steamer using both sail and steam, and another using machinery only had made the voyage from Europe to the West Indies, but to the Royal William is conceded the honor of the first complete crossing by steam power only.

The Royal William was constructed by the Oumards at Quebec for operations in the coastwise trade between that city and Halifax. According to one record a trade depression and an epidemic of cholera made this trade unprofitable and her owners decided to sell. Thinking that a better price could be obtained in Europe than in Canada, they sent her across the Atlantic in 1833, sailing from Pictou, N. S., on August 18. She took 25 days for the passage and consumed 330 tons of coal. Later she was sold for $10,000 and after a short period as a commercial carrier, she was used as a transport in the Portuguese Navy, ending her career as a warship in the Spanish fleet. She was condemned and scrapped in 1847.

It was in 1818-15 years before the Royal William's feat—that steam was first used on a trans-Atlantic voyage. The sailing packet Savannah, equipped with auxiliary engines, crossed the ocean from New York to Cork in May and June, but the engines were operated for only 80 hours of the trip, consuming her entire store of coal in that period. In 1826 the steamer Curaco, later renamed the Calpe, was built in Dover for the cross channel service and was purchased by the Dutch government as a man-of-war. She was, however, employed on the mail service to the Dutch colonies in the West Indies and made her initial trans-oceanic voyage from Rotterdam in 1827, taking one month to do the trip.

This it is claimed that the first complete steam navigation of the Atlantic belongs to the Royal William of a century ago. To mark the anniversary, the Canadian Philately Society petitioned the Federal government to issue a commemorative postage stamp, but was informed by the deputy postmaster

"Tess" Is Gaynor—Farrell At Best

Popular Co-Stars Reveal Unknown Qualities In New Picture.

Departing widely from their customary type of roles, Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell prove to be more romantic in "Tess of the Storm Country," which opened a three days engagement at the Prince Edward Theatre.

In the colorful role of a sea captain's daughter, who comes to live ashore for the first time in her life, and who finds both her bravery and her tempestuous disposition severely tried by the various obstacles she meets, Miss Gaynor gave one of the best performances of her entire career. Farrell, as the missionary's son, who is disowned by his irascible father because of his interest in the heroine, likewise comes through with a flawless portrayal.

Most of the action takes place aboard a big schooner and around the rocky cove on the New England coast, providing a thoroughly massive atmosphere and one very fitting to its swift action and dramatic moments. Don't miss this treat furnished by these two popular stars.

To Wed Toronto Girl

LONDON, May 21.—The engagement is announced today of Captain Sir Michael W. S. Bruce, engineer, cow-puncher, sailor-before-the-mast and policeman, to Miss Elizabeth Constance Plummer, of Toronto.

Sir Michael's life has been most colorful. Born in Lower California in 1864, the son of Sir William Walker Bruce, he was educated in England. A lieutenant in the Eighth Middlesex Regiment in 1912, he was seconded to the British South African Police Force and served against the natives in Portuguese East Africa. In action against Transvaal rebels in 1914 he was wounded, but a year later saw him in action with the New Zealand Artillery at Dardanelles, and again he was wounded. In France, during 1917, he was wounded. In France, during 1917, he was wounded again but went to German East Africa for service in 1918.

He has published several works, including songs from the saddle and hunters' yarns.

In 1925 he married Doreen Dalziel Greenwell, but obtained a divorce from her in 1928. He has one son, Michael Ian, born in 1926.

er general that "owing to the urgent need for economy, this expenditure cannot be undertaken this year."

Red Rash Turned to Watery Blisters. Healed by Cuticura.

"About two years ago I had a red rash break out on my neck and shoulders. It turned to watery blisters which were very itchy and painful. I could hardly get any rest at night and I was really ashamed to have any one see the condition my neck was in. I tried several remedies and got no relief whatever until a neighbor told me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used two cakes of Cuticura Soap and nearly two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and the rash disappeared entirely. I was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Stanley Cameron, 997 2nd Ave., East, Owen Sound, Ont.
