What Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets did for A. D. Miller, of Pussey.

Now that the public are becoming alive to the dangers of letting Dyspepsia take its course and are looking around for some means of ending once and for all its discomforts, its pains, its accompaniments of "blazes" and its constant threats of more serious results, the story of A. D. Miller, of Pussey, Haliburton County, is of more than ordinary interest.

For years previous to the summer of 1900," says Mr. Miller, "I had been troubled with dyspepsia and indigestion and during the summer of 1900 the doctor treated me for liver complaint, but instead of getting better I gradually grew worse. My appetite was very irregular and I would blot very much after eating. I also had palpitation of the heart and sometimes I could not sleep at all at night on account of my heart beating so hard. I was hardly able to get around when I commenced to use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. After using them for a short time I was well and felt like a new man.

"Since then I had occasion to take two more boxes of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets for heart trouble brought on by indigestion and the results were entirely satisfactory. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets digest the food themselves. One or two of them taken after each meal is a health insurance policy.

DEAR SIRS,—I was for seven years sufferer from Bronchial trouble, and would be so hoarse at times that I could scarcely speak above a whisper. I got no relief from anything till I tried your MINARD'S HONEY BALM. Two bottles gave relief and six bottles made a complete cure. I could heartily recommend it to anyone suffering from throat or lung trouble.

THE ALASKA BOUNDARY TRIBUNAL

To Be Appointed On the Ratification of the Treaty

WILL MEET IN LONDON

Main Provisions of the Treaty and What Proceedings Will be Taken to Effect a Settlement

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—There was some discussion today in the executive session of the senate with reference to making public the treaty recently negotiated by Secretary Hay and Sir Michael Herbert for a settlement of the Alaska boundary dispute.

Article I of the new treaty provides that the boundary line tribunal shall be immediately appointed and shall consist of six impartial jurors, three to be named by the president of the United States and three by his Britannic Majesty. All questions must receive a majority vote of the tribunal. Provision is made for the appointments of other jurists to fill vacancies and four officers of the tribunal, including scientific experts and agents.

Article II provides that a written or printed case of the two parties and other documents, correspondence and evidence shall be submitted to the two parties within two months of the exchange of the ratification of this treaty. Two months afterwards the counter case may be submitted, but the tribunal may extend the time if it so desires. Provisions also are made by the presentation of copies of evidence and arguments.

Article III provides that the tribunal shall consider in the settlement of the questions submitted to its decision, the treaty between Great Britain and Russia of 1825 and the treaty between the United States and Russia of March 30, 1867.

It is provided that the first meeting of the boundary tribunal shall be in London. The decision is to be made as soon as possible after the arguments are concluded and within three months unless the President or the British King by combined accord extends the time. Provision is also made as to how the decision shall be prepared and handed to the agents of the respective governments.

As soon as a decision has been sent to the contracting parties, each shall send one or more scientific experts to lay down the boundary line in accordance with the decision. Should there be a failure of the majority to agree on any of the points submitted, the respective governments are to be notified through the agents. The exchange or ratifications as soon as the same may be effective is provided for.
