The Mutual Life Assurance Company's Annual Report

The largest net earnings in its history is the proud record of The Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada for 1926, as shown by its Fifty-seventh Annual Statement, published today.

The year was also rendered distinctive by the writing of the largest volume of new business in the Company's history, totalling slightly over fifty million dollars, and by the reduction in the ratio of expense to income to the lowest point in the Company's history, namely, 15.11 per cent.

The net earnings of the Company in 1926 amounted to $4,141,375.70, an increase over the preceding year of $34,393.29. This amount is the most important item in the entire statement, inasmuch as in it all the transactions of the year are involved.

Although the Mutual Life of Canada has long had a reputation as an economically-managed Company, the management succeeded in bettering all previous records in this respect in 1926, when the ratio of expense to income decreased from 15.23 per cent to 15.11 per cent. This showing is all the more remarkable when it is considered in conjunction with the fact that no less than $50,039,348 of new assurance was issued during 1926, an increase of $4,495,774 over the preceding year and constituting the largest volume of new business written in the Company's history.

The net increase in business in 1926 was $31,540,437, leaving the total of policies in force at $354,698,722, after allowing for terminations amounting to $24,334,256.

Altogether, the Policyholders of the Mutual Life of Canada have reason to look back upon 1926 as a roving year and may reasonably look forward to 1927 as likely to equal, if not surpass, its predecessor, as all signs point to marked prosperity during the year of Canada's Diamond Jubilee, in which the Company completes its fifty-seventh year.
