Assets

The Assets of The RAYNER INTERNATIONAL FUR COMPANY LIMITED, consists of an ideally located ranch property of about twenty three acres near Summerside, Prince Edward Island. Fifteen acres are covered with hardwood and fir trees, affording room and shelter for ranching a large number of foxes.

Improvements are, a new house and barn for the use of caretakers, guard fence inclosing nearly four acres of woods ten pens and houses for ten pairs of foxes, a watch house and a dog house for male foxes when separated from mates.

All improvements are of 1913 construction (except part of dwelling built in 1912) and embody of best ideas of successful ranchers. Provision is also made for ranch extension in 1914 sufficient to house and care for all of the company's foxes, without additional cost to the company.

Foxes

The largest asset of the company is the twenty pairs of carefully selected, pure bred, native Prince Edward Island Silver Black Foxes (see statement at back of prospectus) representing absolutely the best stock obtainable in the fox world today.

Most of these animals have been selected from hundreds of pups raised in Rayner and allied ranches in the last three years, by expert foxmen, who chose the BEST of the Best for their own breeding stock. Only the combining of the B. I. Rayner stock in his home ranch, with the E. H. Rayner Fur Company's, and the Rayner-Gaffney selected stock in the latter's ranch, has made possible the bringing together of such a uniform high grade aggregation of foxes that we challenge the world to surpass them.

Two pelts of pups of this strain that had died as result of accident one in early October, 1912, and the other in late October, 1911, have been sold in London in the last two years. Though the pelts were not nearly prime they brought over $1,000 and $2,000 respectively, and the pelts of some of their ancestors have established world records in prices realized.

Age

The female fox is usually fertile for from nine to eleven years, while the male is good for a longer period.

In considering any fox investment, the age of the animals is an important consideration. The Rayner International is not selling stock based upon foxes, whose usefulness in the breeding pens is practically ended. Only one fox of the forty will be over four years of age in the spring of 1914, and he is the sire of thirty pups.

Breeding Record

The breeding record of the RAYNER foxes is without equal in Foxdom and the figures below are of interest in this connection.

The 2 pairs of three year olds raised 31 pups in 3 years
The 4 pairs of two year olds raised 34 pups in 2 years
The 4 pairs of one year olds raised 16 pups last year an average per pair each year of 4, 4 1/2 and 5 1/6 pups for the one, two and three year olds respectively. This is the record of the ten pairs of proven breeders owned by the Rayner International Fur Company, Limited.

Young Foxes

All the 1913 foxes are large and well developed, and a high percentage of them will raise litters the first year. One hundred per cent of the 1912 pups in the ranches of President and the Managing Directors raised litters in 1913 and, while it is not to be expected that a large ranch can maintain so high an average, even among proven breeders, the performance of the four young pairs above mentioned is a good indication of the results to be expected of the Rayner International's young pairs in 1914.

The nine mothers of the ten young females owned by this company raised forty pups in 1913, indicating the productivity of the strain.

In addition to all the foregoing items, the cost of organization and promotion of the company, and all expenses of ranching and caring for the foxes until September first, 1914, is included in the capitalization; not one dollar will have to be paid to by the company until after that date.

When it is considered that expert ranchers get from 15 to 33 1/3 p. c. of the increase for ranching foxes, it will be seen that this item, based upon the average production and prices, is worth at least $50,000.00 to $75,000.00 to the company; and will have a material effect on the 1914 dividends.

Ten pairs of the foxes are being ranched this year by B. I. Rayner on his home ranch, and ten pairs are in the company's own ranch, under the care of the Managing Director and his efficient staff. The foxes are protected from night intruders by a complete burglar alarm system, and a night watchman, in the respective ranches, and every art known to the most experienced and successful ranchmen will be used to produce the desired increase.

The nine mothers of ten young females owned by this company raised forty pups in 1913, indicating the productivity of the strain. One Rayner pelt, from a fox died in October, sold for $2,000.00. In 1911-1912 the Peeling Company purchased a pair of B. I. Rayner foxes from The Bedeque Company. In 1913 the progeny of this pair sold for $2,000.00.
