MCLEOD LOSES TO M'NAUGHTON

MONTON, N. B., July 10—(C.P.)—Ralph McNaughton, former Quebec boxer, who has made his headquarters in Monton, opened his campaign against Maritime Province lightweights here tonight with a four round technical knockout victory over Earl McLeod, of Kentville, N. S. McLeod outboxed his rival in the early stages of the abbreviated battle but fell victim to a hall of leather in the fourth that floored him twice before the bell saved him from a knockout. His seconds threw the towel into the ring in answer to the bell sounding the fifth round.

Ted Miller, Monton, scored a one round knockout over Joseph Sanipas, Shediac Indian, in the semi-final.

INTERNATIONAL YACHT RACES BEGIN TODAY

YARMOUTH, N. S., July 10—(C.P.)—Junior yachtsmen of Canada and the United States prepared tonight for tomorrow's resumption of the annual International Yacht Races for the Prince of Wales Cup. Young sailors, 22 of them, representing two Nova Scotian and nine United States clubs, will face the starter's run during the series. And this time the Canadians will be the under dogs.

This is the third year of competition, and the Americans, winners in 1931 and 1932, are again looking forward to victory. Not only are they the favorites because of numerical advantage but their longer experience in class racing has given them an edge over their rivals from this side of the Border.

The races are run in yachts of the Acadian class, fast little craft that need an expert hand at the tiller. Two yachts owned by the Acadian Yacht Club of Yarmouth have been designated as the competition ships and the competition will be run off in heats, loser being eliminated.

Racing will open tomorrow afternoon. The heats are to be conducted under the rules of the Royal Nova Scotia Yacht Squadron. Competition is open to junior yachtsmen between the ages of 12 and 18 years.

The four Nova Scotians in the contest will represent the Acadian Yachts Club and the Royal Nova Scotia Yacht Squadron. American clubs which have filed entry are the Eastern, Corinthian and Pleon Clubs, all of Marblehead; Vineyard Haven Yacht Club, Manchester Yacht Club, Beverly Yacht Club, of Marion, Mass.; Babylon Yacht Club, of Long Island; Nantuxet Bay Yacht Club; and the Larchmont Yacht Club of New York.

FALCONS AND ROVERS

With the leadership of the City League hanging in the balance, Rovers and Falcons meet tonight in what promises to be the baseball battle of the season. Both teams, deadlocked for first place at the present time are rarin' to go and to the victor goes the spoils—in this case the leadership of the loop. The same officials will be in charge.

TROPHY ON DISPLAY

The magnificent trophy donated by Chester A. Campbell for the winners of the City Ball League is now on display in the donor's window on Queen Street and is attracting much favorable attention. The cup stands fifteen and a half inches high with a fully equipped ball player on top in the act of throwing the sphere. Now that the members of the teams have seen the trophy no doubt it will serve as an added incentive to get in there and fight till the last strike is called.

lization soon, perhaps by the end of the month. Georges Bonnet, French Finance Minister and gold bloc leader, informally expressed the view the inflationary policy in the United States had gone forward so fast the country might be anxious to stabilize before the end of July. French quarters were impressed with reports in the London press today that consumption now was lagging behind production in the American recovery.

P. R. A.

The Annual Prize Meeting of the Prince Edward Island Provincial Rifle Association will be held on Charlottetown Rifle Range July 17th and 18th, commencing at 8.30 a.m. Make your entries early. CHARLES LEIGH, Lieut.-Col. Secretary Treasurer.

CHAMBERLAIN

Roosevelt was going to change his mind and refuse to consider currency stabilization, it might have decided not to call the Conference at this time.

Nevertheless, when he spoke again tonight winding up the debate, the Chancellor evoked cheers from the House when he stated "there is no doubt the avowed policy of this country and the United States are closely parallel to one another."

After President Roosevelt's message the United Kingdom, "not for the first time," he said, consulted the Dominion representatives. It was known the fate of the conference was in the balance. Gold-standard delegates were ready to walk out. But the United Kingdom as a consequence of the talks with the Dominions had reached the decision the conference should continue.

(It was widely understood that during the impasse last week Prime Minister Bennett had been the leading figure in inducing the British to cling to their former determination the conference should go on, being backed up in this by the American delegation and the representatives of smaller nations unwilling to leave London without seeing the conference accomplish something, no matter how black the outlook.)

Although the conference had not yet come to any agreement as between the gold countries and the non-gold nations, the Chancellor said, he was hopeful they would find means of bridging the difficulties.

U. S. Policy Endorsed

The Chancellor was very cautious in speaking of the price-raising thesis. "We must keep our heads," he warned the House. The subsequent debate however revealed a general and at times enthusiastic endorsement of the United States' price-raising policy.

Winston Churchill, leader of the high-Tory wing of the Conservative party, pleaded the British Government should follow the United States' policy "even at a prudent distance." Sir Herbert Samuel, Liberal leader, argued Britain should produce a definite programme. George Lansbury, the veteran Labour leader, declared rightly or wrongly, President Roosevelt had a definite programme and was carrying it out. He demanded a definite British programme.

Rarely moved by taunts or praise from the private members' benches, Mr. Chamberlain smiled quietly. In his opening speech he went at some length into the developments which led up to the conference crisis last week, the rupture between gold and non-gold countries precipitated by the American refusal to consider stabilization.

Mr. Chamberlain recalled the central banks of France, the United States and Great Britain had reached agreement to maintain some approximate stability in exchange rates, at least for the period of the conference. This of course was subject to confirmation by the respective Government. President Roosevelt rejected that agreement. A joint declaration was drafted and again it was rejected by Roosevelt. The Chancellor said he did not think it would serve any useful purpose for him to comment either upon the matter or the manner of Mr. Roosevelt's statement.

He agreed this joint declaration was "pretty weak stuff," it laid down general principles but was practically confined to a declaration by the Governments they would do what they could to check speculation in exchange. Nevertheless its rejection and Mr. Roosevelt's subsequent statement had a very profound and very disturbing effect not only upon delegates of the gold countries but on public opinion in their countries.

26 Years on one job... and a good job it was this dentist did... to protect your teeth against pyorrhea

Your own dentist will tell you about pyorrhea. It is one of his grave problems. It comes eventually to four out of five people. It is actually the cause of half the adult teeth which are lost. Nobody today believes that simple polishing is all that is needed to keep healthy teeth. There is much more to it than that. When teeth "come out" there is a deeper cause than mere cleanliness or non-cleanliness. As often as not this deeper cause is pyorrhea. Dr. R. J. Forhan specialized in this disease which starts in the gums and works downward to the tooth sockets. He spent twenty-six years in his chosen work and produced the toothpaste which bears his name—"Forhan's." Brush your teeth and massage your gums with Forhan's Trust Forhan's to keep your teeth white and glistening. Even for this purpose there is no finer toothpaste made. But that is only one duty of Forhan's—and Forhan's is a double-duty toothpaste. Its other duty is to protect your gums. Dentists all over the country are using the professional formula of Dr. Forhan in treating pyorrhea and Forhan's Toothpaste prepares the same scientific principle for preventive hygiene at home. Forhan's is a pleasant-tasting, agreeable toothpaste for general family use. It is pure and mild—liked by the children. But remember: "it's more than a toothpaste." It comes in a big brown tube, and owing to its individual character, it lasts surprisingly long.

The place of landing was one of the remotest sections, having but few inhabitants, but apparently hoping to find some aid, the aviator set out to walk to the river equipped with only a small supply of chocolate and biscuits.

In his laborous trek, Mattern required eight days to reach the river bank, his scanty food supply having given out after three days of wandering. What he did for food the remainder of the time was brought out by the correspondent but it was felt here that he probably put a rifle given him in Khabarovsk to good use, avoiding starvation by shooting small game.

Reaching the river he saw two small boats going downstream but the occupants of neither observed his frantic signals from the shore and passed him by, the dispatch said.

On the ninth day he moved a short distance downstream to a bend in the river where it was narrower but the days passed without sign of another boat. To protect himself from the cold and wind, he improvised a small hut of scrub growth in which he remained six more days, the Khabarovsk correspondent reported.

On the night of June 29, two more boats passed down the river. They were manned by native fishermen who this time saw his signal and took him to their camp about 11 miles from Anadyr, the dispatch said, and there they gave him food and he slept. Shortly afterward he was taken to the coast, a short distance away, where natives brought a Soviet frontier guard to his assistance.

The guard, which had been on the lookout for the missing aviator for some days in response to instructions from Moscow, took Mattern immediately to Anadyr village where everything was done to make him comfortable.

their work until perhaps mid-September, when the great conclave might re-assemble. It was generally conceded the monetary commission's drafting committee could achieve nothing more than selection of a programme on which quick agreements were possible. But if the conference as a whole is to be temporarily stopped from battling with the monetary problem, prospects of real accomplishment as regards silver and wheat seemed bright tonight. Senator Pittman of Nevada announced his silver committee expects to complete its work by the end of the week. Wheat agreements with the European exporters, demanded by Australia before the "big four" overseas exporters can agree to limit production and control exports, seemed to be making fine progress.
