FREE OF TERRIBLE KIDNEY TROUBLE

After Three Years of Suffering, "FRUIT-A-TIVES" Brought Relief

MADAME HORMIDAS FOISY

624 Champlain St., Montreal.

"For three years, I was ill and exhausted and I suffered constantly from Kidney Trouble and Liver Disease. My health was miserable and nothing in the way of medicine did me any good. Then I started to use 'Fruit-a-tives' and the effect was remarkable.

I began to improve immediately and this wonderful fruit medicine entirely restored me to health. All the old pains, headaches, indigestion and constipation were relieved and oncemore I was well.

To all who suffer from Indigestion, Constipation, Rheumatic Pains or great Fatigue, I advise the use of 'Fruit-a-tives'."

Sunday School Lesson

(Topic for Dec. 14.) (John 18:15-27; 19:25-27; 20:1; 21, 25.)

"God so loved the world that He Gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have eternal life."—John 3:16.—Golden Text.

Although all the disciples forsook Jesus at the moment of his arrest, Peter and John recovered from their fright sufficiently to follow him to the palace of the high priest. There it was that Peter three times denied his Master. Whether John stayed with Jesus to the last or not we are not told, but we find him at the foot of the cross when Jesus was crucified, ready to receive the trust given by his dying Saviour—the care of Mary, the mother of Jesus. The last chapter of John tells how Peter was restored to the confidence and fellowship of Jesus.

Peter had a friend, the best friend he ever had, one who had given him love and confidence, for years making his life bright and happy. The time came when Peter found himself among those who were speaking against his friend, running him down—and Peter never had a word to say for his friend. Indeed, when they turned to Peter, and said, "Surely you know him, you are one of his friends," Peter said, "I? I never saw him till to-night, he is nothing to me." And then when Christ met Peter, he forgave him. There was not a word of angry reproach. He put his arm about Peter's neck and said, "This is to be forgotten; you are my friend still; you will be my chief friend." Oh, think of it! Is it wonderful that Peter afterwards said, "He is precious?"—James Rutherford.

The disciples had had a disappointing night; they had been fishing with no success. How overjoyed they must have been to see Christ waiting there on the shore!

It would have been no surprise if Jesus had said to Peter: "Are you sorry and ashamed? Will you serve me faithfully in the future? Are you prepared to do something to atone for the past?" But all Jesus asked was "Do you love me?" He wanted to be sure of Peter's devotion to himself, and he wanted Peter to be sure of it, too. He had work for him to do, but first of all he must be convinced of his erring disciple's love.

That is what Jesus says to all who want to be his servants. Rather than "Have you the brains?" or "Have you the education?" the question is "Have you the heart?" Why? Because love makes us willing and eager, love kindles and inspires, love gives winsomeness and skill, love is the true motive of service. Work that has not love behind it and in it, is never of much use to man or God.

Three times Jesus asked that question of Peter. And each time Peter answered it. Jesus said, "Feed my sheep—Feed my lambs." If you love me, and do something for me, look after the people that belong to me, some of them are young and weak and therefore I call them my lambs; some of them are grown up and I call them my sheep; and all of them have their faults. Guard them, help them, water to the court, Peter also followed Jesus did not paint a glowing picture of success and reward for Peter. He gave him a hint of what awaited him. He told him he would become a prisoner, be fettered, and come to a violent end. But he did not expect Peter to decline the service because there was suffering and death ahead. On the contrary, he expected him to serve no matter what the service cost.

When Jesus was led away bound to Annas, the high priest, John followed, and being known there, was allowed to enter the court. Peter also followed, but "Alas!" when he reached the door the maid was about to refuse him entrance when John bade her admit

my Dad wears 'em

From Peter's denial I would learn the peril of the first cowardly surrender to sin. Surely Peter must have "trimmed" many times in the day which preceded his actual discipleship. Great crises do not make men; they reveal them. The men have been made in the smaller issues which go before. We march to our crises by a gradual, every step of which is a moral decision. The interior of the tree is secretly eaten away by white ants; the tempest reveals and completes the destruction.—John Henry Jewett.

We say of a river that it flows south; if that is its main direction—enough for a little it may bend some other way. Peter turned shamefully north in his course for a while, but the river of his love was, after all, southwards and Christwards for all that. And Christ knew it. He always knows it. Even from the legitimate disciple of conscience and the sneers of his friends, a man feels that there is an appeal to Christ himself, who knows. We have wandered and turned aside, but Christ knows whether we love him or not, whether we are really trying to follow him or not.

After his resurrection Christ appeared ten times to his disciples, as recorded in the Gospels and in Acts. By these appearances they were made sure of his resurrection and of his divinity, and their intuitive faith in their own immortality was ratified. Why did Christ remain on earth so long? Was it not forty days instead of four because the disciples needed time in which to learn the last lesson in their training-course with the Great Teacher? Until his death actually occurred they had not been able to grasp the fact that his death was coming and they were to be left alone. While he lived with them, they had his guidance. Now they were to be left to "carry on" to be teachers themselves instead of pupils, under shepherds instead of sheep. During the forty days they must become used to his absence during long intervals, must learn to trust him unseen as they had trusted him seen. This hard lesson they learned, and when he gave them his blessing and left them to return no more to them, they went back to Jerusalem with great joy, for they believed his promise that he would be with them unto the end of the world.

DUST FOR CHICKENS

Many people are not aware of the fact that dust acts as an insecticide to rid poultry of lice and mites. Have you ever noticed how a hen enjoys a dust bath? If no dust can be found she will wallow out a hole in the ash or cinder pile and dust herself from head to foot. It is a well-known fact that lice and mites are more troublesome in damp weather, simply because no dust can be found. When the hen takes a dust bath she is following nature's law to fight insect pests. If your chickens cannot enjoy a dust bath on account of wet weather a box should be placed in a dry place where it will always be in the dry. If no dust can be found use clean wood shavings, or coal ashes with the cinders sieved out. You can improve this by adding a small amount of insect powder to the ashes. It is needless to say that poultry will not do well when infested by lice or mites. Many young chickens die each year from the effects of these parasites. While the above method will help to free the chickens from insects it will not act as a cure-all for the houses and coops must be disinfected as well. By keeping a dust box before the chickens all of the time one will be surprised to find that lice and mites will give but very little trouble.

Badly Spoilt Child

The shadow of the arch-enemy next door appeared in the doorway of the humble kitchen.

"Mrs. Jones!" she exclaimed, with folded arms, "let me tell you that that child of yours is badly spoilt."

"Oh! Get away with you!" snapped Mrs. Jones, testily, scenting another complaint as to her young hopeful's conduct.

"Well," rejoined the aggrieved neighbor, "if you don't believe me, just come out and see for yourself what the steamroller's done to him."

"You claim there are microbes in kisses?" she asked the young doctor.

"There are," he said.

"What disease do they bring?" she asked.

"Palpitation of the heart."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Card To The Electors

Ladies and Gentlemen, Electors of the City of Charlottetown;—

Not wishing to seem premature but being convinced that there is no time like the present, I take advantage of this opportunity of making known my position, re Civic Politics.

I have been interviewed by many prominent citizens and believing them to be good judges of the Civic pulse, after due consideration I have decided to nominate as a Candidate for Mayoralty honours at the forth-coming Civic Election.

My record for the past two years is an open book. I have endeavoured to give to the City my best and have tried to uphold the dignity of the office. Having had a most strenuous two years, I am of the opinion that a second term may be in order.

If I have the honour to be re-elected, I can assure you Ladies and Gentlemen, I shall as before have the best interests of our City and Citizens at heart, ever endeavouring to promote any and every feasible measure that may arise, whereby our City may be benefited.

I thank you most heartily for your support in the past and the many honours shown me.

It is almost impossible for me to interview you all personally. I therefore take this opportunity of soliciting a continuance of your confidence and your votes.

I remain Yours respectfully G. D. WRIGHT
