ARNOTT-TRAINOR WEDDING

The marriage took place at St. Mary's Cathedral, Halifax, on Friday, Sept. 22 of Miss Florence Arnott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Arnott, of Montreal, to Joseph Trainor, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Austin Trainor, of Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island. The bride and groom are shown here in pictures taken after their marriage. The ceremony was performed by Father Frecker and in attendance were the groom's brother and sister, Harold and Leona, and his mother.

WAYS AND MEANS

A clerk had stolen a sum of money, and his employer was asking advice from his friends as to how he should be dealt with. "Get rid of him at once," said an Englishman. "Keep him and deduct a sum from his wages," advised a Scot. "But," said the employer, "the amount he has embezzled is far greater than his wages." "Then raise his wages," quoth an Irishman.

BROWN ON RESOLUTION

Little Brown sat up trembling in bed as the burglar quietly filled his sack with valuables. Having exhausted the resources of one bedroom the burglar moved into the next and completely forgot his gun on the dressing-table. Jumping out of bed, Brown quickly seized the weapon, took out the bullets, replaced it again and scrambled between the sheets. "There!" he grinned to himself. "That'll teach him not to be so absent-minded the next time he comes!"

Dorothy Dix

Be Yourself, Be All Girl, Don't Smear on Powder and Paint and Don't Dress Too Well—Be a Good Listener and You'll Have Lots of Boy Friends

An old man of the world gives this advice to girls about how to please the boys. He says: "Be feminine. When a girl throws away her femininity she has discarded her trump card. The thing that attracts men to women is the difference that sex makes in them, and this goes for looks and clothes as well as for manners and morals. Men want women to be pretty and wear frilly clothes, be gentle and sweet, and to believe in God and to say their prayers. Mighty few men fall in love with a girl who looks like a tramp and who talks like a hooligan."

"Don't try to be sophisticated. Don't pretend that you have been everywhere and seen everything and done everything. Don't tell smutty stories and laugh at obscene ones. Don't boast of how much liquor you can drink. Don't sneer at your parent. There is nothing more repulsive to a man, no matter how bad he is himself, than a hard-boiled young girl."

"Innocence and purity to a girl are like dew on a rosebud. Charms to conjure with. Keep them as long as you can. Don't be ashamed when men call you old-fashioned. They are paying you the highest compliment in their power and hoping that some day they will be lucky enough to find a girl like you when they come to marry."

Don't try to dress like a man. Nature didn't build you that way. Stick to skirts. They are like the emblem of charity and cover a multitude of sins in your architecture. Anyway, men are susceptible to drapery. They have always been skirt-chasers, but you never heard of one who was a britches-chaser. Besides, we men unconsciously resent women swiping our clothes. You have taken away our jobs. Leave us our pants.

"Learn how to dress. Study your style and your lines so that you can make the best of yourself, instead of emphasizing every defect you have. No woman need be so homely as to monologue about herself and that make her look like a figure of fun. No man ever distinguishes between a woman and her clothes, and many a girl has the reputation of being a beauty because she has a swisky pink chiffon dress."

"Above all, learn how to put on your make-up artistically. Instead of daubing it on like paint on a barn. And go lightly on the lipstick. It takes a man with a strong stomach to want to kiss a girl whose mouth looks like a cut of raw butcher's meat."

"Adapt your conversation to your company. Some men want you to lend them your ears. Others want you to give them your tongue. If the current boy friend is one who likes to monologue about himself and how many miles he makes on a gallon of gas in his car, your cue is to register absorbed interest and exclaim at intervals 'How wonderful!' But if the lad is of the shy and silent sort who chokes on his adam's apple when he tries to speak, you must babble on like the brook that went on and on forever if you ever expect to see him again. But no matter whether your escort is a spellbinder or one of the great, strong, silent men of the movie breed, never tell one man about how many other men you could have married, or compare him with the present one man giving you with what another man did for you. It scares a man off to think that you may be dangling his scalp some day before other men's eyes."

"In your manner to men be cordial but not effusive. The ideal attitude of a girl toward a man should be that of being able to take him or leave him. Unless she is a hopelessly dumb Dora she can let a man know that she likes him; that she finds him an interesting and agreeable companion; that she is proud to dance with him. And when he takes her out she can make him feel that she is having the time of her life. But it is fatal for her to gush over a man and act grateful when he asks her to step out with him. That is a giveaway that lets him know that she has no other beaux. And men who have other women are concerned. They follow the leader and want to date the girl that all the other men are dating."

"Don't dress too well. Don't look too expensive. Many a girl sits at home of an evening with Mother because she is always dolled out that a poor lad thinks that her clothes rate a swanky night club, and so he doesn't offer her the modest entertainment he could afford."

"And finally, girls, don't be too possessive. Don't make a boy feel that you think he belongs to you because he has taken you out a bit and made a little love-toe to you. Don't resent his attentions to other girls. Don't telephone and ask what's the matter when he fails to come to see you. Drive with a loose rein with him. And when he takes you out, please the boys by following these few simple rules."

Second Wife Has Trouble About First One

Dear Dorothy Dix—I married a widower and have done my best to make him a good wife, but he makes me utterly miserable by continually comparing me with his former wife. This would be hard enough to stand if he were the silent type, but when he is so talkative and takes me so much by making her the subject of his conversation that I had got so I prefer to stay at home. What shall I do? Shall I tell him how I resent what he does, or carry on as I have been doing? E. H.

Answer: You should imitate another second wife of whom I knew, whose husband also made the "dear departed" his theme song. According to him he desecrated his grave by a paragon without a single fault or defect. He desecrated it by the silent way, but she was so talkative that she would have run a house on air without making any bills; how she never had to have new clothes; how she never got angry or tired or nervous; how she waited on him hand and foot and never demanded anything of him, and so on and so on.

The second wife listened to these encomiums as long as she could and finally at one of the recitals she burst into tears. "What are you crying about now?" asked the husband. "Oh," replied Mrs. No. 2, "I am weeping because if I do, because if she had lived she would save me all that I am suffering."

And that, according to the story, shut up the husband. Any man who consensually throws his first wife in his second wife's teeth and tells No. 2 how superior he was in all her ways has either a feeble-minded, or else he is so cruel that he enjoys torturing the helpless female who is in his power.

Any man who makes a mark of intelligence must know that if his second wife loves him at all that there is no living siren of whom she is so proud as she is of the poor lady out at the cemetery. For she had all the freshness, the youth and romance of their mutual husband, and all that wife No. 2 gets in his warm embrace is affection. And furthermore, with a live woman she could compete, but before the memories of a dead one she is helpless.

No second wife wants her husband to forget his first wife, but she feels that in common humanity to her he might keep silent about her.

WHAT IS HOME WITHOUT A GARDEN?

MANY ANNUAL FLOWERS MAY BE SOWN IN AUTUMN

Every time that nature produces annual flowers in our gardens from self-sown seed, she demonstrates that annuals can be grown from seed sown in the fall.

The list of annuals which can self-seed may vary in different sections of the country, but it is probable that annual larkspur and cornflowers are the most common. The list of annuals which will be on the list almost anywhere.

A seed bed surrounded by a wooden curb is an excellent place to sow fall annuals. A cold frame will do as well, as many sow seeds in the open garden, where experience has shown drainage is good. If seeds are sown in rows, which can be marked, it is easily to check results and protect the seedlings when they appear.

Sow the seed thinly, mixing small seed with dry sand to help scatter it, and do not sow much deeper than you would in the spring. Many gardeners cover the row with a shallow layer of sand after sowing. In a seed bed, or cold frame, after the ground has frozen a light mulch of leaves may be placed over the bed to keep the frost in. This much should be removed before the seeds sprout in the spring.

Annuals which are usually successful from fall sowing include alyssum, snapdragons, cecilia, calendula, calliopsis, candytuft, centaurea cyanus, clarkia, cosmos, eschscholzia, euphorbia, gypsophylla, larkspur, luine, nicotiana, petunia, annual phlox, annual poppies and sweet peas.

THE COOK'S CORNER

1,000 Island Relish

6 quarts small cucumbers
1-2 cup salt
2 red peppers
2 green peppers
12 onions
6 cups chopped carrots
1 tin pimientos
6 cups sugar
1 teaspoon mustard
1 teaspoon turmeric
1/2 cup vinegar
Method: Chop the cucumbers without peeling and sprinkle with 1/2 cup salt. Let them stand for several hours, then drain and rinse. Peel the onions and take the seeds and membranes from the peppers. Put all of the vegetables through the food chopper... that's where it gets its name, because it is a finely chopped pickle.
Dissolve the mustard and turmeric in the vinegar and add to the pickle with the sugar and enough mild vinegar to barely cover. Boil for just 10 minutes, then seal in hot, sterile jars.

India Relish

6 lbs. ripe tomatoes
3 lbs. onions
6 large apples
1 lb. seeded raisins
1 sweet red pepper
1 lb. brown sugar
1-4 cup mixed whole spices
1 tablespoon mustard
3 tablespoons salt
Dash cayenne pepper
4 cups vinegar
Method: Prepare the fruit and vegetables and chop them fine, removing the seeds from the pepper. The whole mixed spice in a bag and add the sugar, vinegar and other seasonings. Simmer slowly until thick, then remove the spice bag and seal while hot.

Stunning Place Mats Simple to Weave

Use Colorful Bias Binding
Striking on your luncheon table—a set of hand-woven place mats like the one in our picture!

Easy to weave, too, using your breadboard as a "loom" and 3/4-inch cotton bias binding for your material. For a mat 10 by 15 inches with stripes and edging in a contrasting color, you need about 30 yards of the principal color, 3 1/2 yards of the contrasting hue.

First cut strips a little longer than the finished length will be and thumbtack to board to top and bottom to form a warp.

For the weaving cut strips similarly, a little over the width, then thread a strip through a tapestry needle or bobby pin and weave over and under the warp strips as in diagram. Tack at ends. Soon your weaving's done, you trim edges, bind your mat!

On other types of "looms," too, you can weave lovely things. Make a bright rag rug on a child's play hoop. Weave a belt and bracelet set of crepe paper raffia—using a strip of cardboard for a loom.

From our 32-page booklet, get complete instructions, diagrams on how to weave these and other useful novelties for gifts, home and personal use. Pillow tops, coasters, scarves, purses, many.

The Housewife And Her Activities

MAKE SOME CAUSE YOUR OWN

"It is a piteous thing to be Enlisted in no cause at all." Then make some cause your own. Persuade yourself, defend. With heart and mind and bone Whatever flag you choose From out of the world's wide scope; Give it your faith, your hope; Persuade yourself, defend Yourself to some avail; Enlist your will and strength Unto whatever length. And even if you fail, You will not fail so ill As if you are content And dull, and indolent And never cared at all. —Sara Henderson Hay.

MACHINES SAVE MONEY IN CARVING FURNITURE

Machine carving of furniture although it lacks the individuality of hand carving, is much less expensive, since it is done by multiple carvers. The designs are not as cleanly or as sharply cut as by means of hand carving, but if the furniture is gone over by hand after machining, it gives an excellent appearance at a fraction of the cost of hand carving.

BOILING FOWL TASTES LIKE ROASTING CHICKEN

To make a boiling fowl taste like a roasted chicken, cook it as follows: Make a stuffing in the usual way, but use chopped bacon and a little dripping instead of suet. Mix with breadcrumbs, chopped parsley, a pinch of herbs, the liver of the fowl chopped, a little chopped onion pepper, and salt. Bind with milk or beaten egg. Stuff the bird in the usual way, then wrap it in a well-greased paper and put in a steamer. Let it steam for three hours, when it should be tender. Then put it in a roasting-pan and sprinkle with pepper and salt. Cover it all over with a good quantity of dripping, dredge with flour, and put in a hot oven until it is nicely browned. Baste it well while 'browning.' Perhaps one of these is just what you need. Anyhow, here are a few of the new gadgets manufacturers have brought out for convenience.

INTELLIGENCE IN ANIMALS

Dr. W. Reid Blair, director of the New York Zoological Park, holds that the ten most intelligent animals in terms of original thought, memory, reasoning power, and capacity for training are:

- (1) The chimpanzee; (2) the orang-utan; (3) the elephant; (4) the gorilla; (5) the domestic dog; (6) the beaver; (7) the domestic horse; (8) the sea lion; (9) the bear; (10) the domestic cat.

OF FURNITURE

Good glues are unseen values in good furniture. Some are almost indestructible and impervious to moisture and these are used in the manufacture of the best furniture.

Attractive cigarette holders, especially suitable in living room or dining room, have been fashioned on the lines of a wine-cooler, a garden basket and an umbrella. The basket may also be used for small flowers or for after-dinner mints and nuts.

New Fall Fashions And Winter Styles

Be smart in more ways than one and make yourself these two new as-the-news blouses. One has a pert pepum with a nineteenth century air—and a twentieth century over your hips, and may worn either inside or outside your skirt. Both have the soft shirring, so becoming, so sophisticated and so feminine, that has taken the fashion world by storm. Wear them over street length skirts for afternoon, floor length skirts for semi-formal evenings.

Style No. 2963 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 1 3/8 yards of 30-inch material for short-sleeved blouse; 2 yards 30-inch material for one with collar.

MR. GLINSHE REAPPEARS

A jig-saw puzzle, Ducros called it, but the pieces did fit. And, curiously enough, the result of his thinking left him feeling very sorry for that 'bad habit' the son in Paris. He stood about as much chance in the hands of the bunch of crooks Dollimore had just been discussing with Blaunberg as the present silent way, but he wouldn't keep it very long.

Although it was getting late the House of Commons was still in session, he noticed. He was tired, and turned into the little square where his flat was situated, with relief. Instinctively he glanced up at the window as he turned the corner and to his surprise, saw that the light in his own sitting room was on.

He was so surprised that he pulled up and stood contemplating the light from the silent square.

As he opened the door, Mrs. Ralley, the woman who looked after the three flats the house contained, came from her room in the basement.

"There's a gentleman waiting for you, sir," she said. "I hope I did right. His name is Glinshe."

"Quite right, Mrs. Ralley," Dollimore said and went up the stairs three at a time.

Ronny Glinshe had made himself comfortable and was sitting reading in Dollimore's armchair when he opened the door.

"Oh, hello, Dolly!" he greeted him.

"Hello! What brought you up?" "I turned my job in to-day and walked out on them. And there's something I want to tell you."

"Go ahead! Have a drink. I'll pour it out while you're talking."

"Thanks. I was in the dance-room when Rollier and Fernandez and the Pachmann woman returned from the inquest, feeling as you can imagine, jolly fed up. I had been in charge of the whole place all the afternoon and when the bunch returned they went at once to Fernandez's office. The whole thing was unmistakable; they're acting together.
