Vancouver Boxer Takes Decision From Ray Miller

Jimmy McLarnin, Hard Hitting Young Celt Gets Revenge For Previous Knockout—Little Action Throughout The Bout.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, March 23—Two vaunted punchers Jimmy McLarnin, the Celt from Vancouver, and Ray Miller, blond left hook artist from Chicago, met in what should have been a furious combat last night and turned into a battle as tame and featureless as their first meeting was bloody and spectacular.

Where there might have been smashing punches, furious rallies, knockdowns and finally a knockout such as McLarnin suffered in their first engagement in Detroit, there was nothing but clinches, frantic scurrying around to evade the lightning that never struck, and the cagey sparring of over-cautious young business men. What heavy hitting there was, McLarnin did for the most part, and he won the decision amid a steady rising storm of boos from 21,000 fans who paid over $111,000 to see the action.

Irish Jimmy, who had turned in such spectacular performances in other appearances, also won whatever honor there was in the fray. He mastered Miller thoroughly, but not damagingly, was slugged rarely by the blond youngster's left hook, and beat a tattoo on Ray's head and body when he could get out of clinches that had Miller weak and weary at the close.

As frequently happens with punchers of reputations, both laid back from the very start, waiting openings for the heavy artillery. Since both are counter punchers and battle best when the fighting is brought to them, there were few openings and even less action. It seemed a relief to both to lean in close and slug at close quarters out of harm's way in the matter of long shots.

Miller boxed prettily at times, jumping in with the same type of left hook that ripped McLarnin's right eye in their first meeting and ended the fray at the end of the seventh round. Jimmy had his defence ready this time, however, carrying his right hand high and devoting most of his offensive until the closing rounds to a left hook of his own.

As the highly touted youngsters fought their way through six rounds the chorus of boos and hisses that started down from the galleries in the first round grew to a steady roar. The boxers struggled from one clinch to another, doing little damage, but apparently trying hard.

Whatever break there was in the match came for McLarnin in the seventh session. He landed a short left, plugging Miller's eye. Miller's ribs. Then when Ray's guard had been lowered caught Miller squarely, dazed him for a moment, and started him steadily down hill.

GLENNA PLANS TO SAIL APRIL 20 TO PLAY IN THE WOMEN'S BRITISH CHAMPIONSHIP STARTING MAY 13

BY QUIN HALL

With the Ryder Cup matches scheduled to be played at Moortown, Leeds, April 26-27, and the women's British championship starting at St. Andrews on May 13, golf news of importance will soon switch to the other side of the pond.

Miss Glenna Collett, the Providence, R. I., golfer who has been three times national champion, plans to sail April 20 to compete in the event at St. Andrews. In 1928, she just missed a dazzling opportunity to gain the coveted title. This year she hopes to bring it back with her from England. She is preparing herself for the event at Pinehurst after shooting some brilliant golf on the Pacific Coast earlier this year. Her various scores in North Carolina indicate that she is likely to cause plenty of trouble in the British class.

Judged on past performances, Miss Collett is a golfer who often exhibits her most brilliant game when there is nothing in particular at stake. Yet she is a capable shot-maker at all times and has been playing consistent rounds at Pinehurst. It will be recalled that while she struggled into the third round at Hot Springs last fall like an average champion, she hit a remarkable stride from then on. The final round with Virginia Van Wie only reached the twenty-fourth green. Exhibitions such as that mark Glenna as a truly great champion.

Recently Miss Collett has become quite interested in archery. While by no means a dominant figure, Glenna was an enthusiastic competitor in the national championships which were staged at Pinehurst a short time ago. Her interest in the green-wood sport recalls the case of Mary Erwine, the former national tennis champion, who took up golf as a side line and reached the finals of both the golf and tennis championships, all within a few weeks.

Among the golfers who will represent the United States in the Ryder Cup matches this year, probably none has had such a brilliant winter season as the youthful Horton Smith, who still registers on the hotel blotters as from Joplin, Mo. This youth, who only a few months ago turned professional, has been more than successful in blazing his name across the country from coast to coast.

Starting in California earlier in the season as "just another professional," Horton Smith soon had the veteran campaigners exerting their best efforts. After being accorded much publicity on the far western coast, the Joplin kid followed through and proved that it wasn't a flash in the pan. He did some excellent shooting in the tournaments held along the southern borders of the country en route to Florida. Arriving at the Miami section, Smith continued his brilliant shotmaking, with the result that when the Ryder team sets sail for abroad Horton will be one of the outstanding members of the aggregation. Joplin will undoubtedly figure heavily in the headlines in case a victory is scored at Moortown by young Horton Smith!

When you figure that young Smith has beaten such seasoned golfers as Hagen, Melhorn, Armour, Sarazen, Espinosa and Dudley in tournaments since last November, he must be quite a star. He accomplished these feats in widely scattered sections of the country proving that new courses do not puzzle him much.

So if the plans of Miss Collett and Mr. Smith materialize, England is due to see two of our best young golfers this Spring.

CAMBRIDGE DEFEAT OXFORD

(Canadian Press) STAMFORD, Eng., March 24—Cambridge decisively defeated Oxford in the 61st annual meeting of the two Universities on track and field here Saturday. The score was 7 to 4, first places only counting. Cambridge completely outclassed Oxford on the track, allowing the dark blue only one race, but the Oxonians were better at jumping and throwing and scored firsts to make a good score. Times in the running events and heights and distances on field were comparatively poor.

STAMFORD BRIDGE, Eng., Mar. 23—With C. F. Gates scoring, Oxford's only first place in the first five events, Cambridge had rolled up a lead of four firsts to one in the annual inter-varsity track meet, this afternoon. Gates scored for the dark blues in the shot put, but the Can-

Canadians Out Of The Running In N. H. L. Race

(Canadian Press) MONTREAL, Mar. 24—The French Canadians will not resound throughout the Forum any more this season. The Boston Bruins brought a sudden end to the local hockey year and also an end to their Stanley Cup semi-final series with Canadians by scoring their third straight win over the Flying Frenchmen here last night. The score was 3 to 2, while the Bruins won the first two games on Boston ice. The "Hub" thus crossed the "easy money wagers" who figured Canadians good for victory; and at that it looked for a time as if the Canadians would get one victory and thus get back into the running, but the Bruins are fighters, and a two goal lead gained by the Canucks in the first period added as an incentive to the Bruins' whistling attack. Big Eddie Shore, Boston defenseman, was the high hero of the visitors rally in the second stanza. He assisted in one goal and scored the winning counter himself. In fact, Shore played well nigh perfect hockey throughout. When Canadians got their two goals Eddie was in the penalty box. The game was strenuously fought as was evidenced by the penalties meted out by the officials. Twenty-six infractions were called, but all were for minor offences. Canadians received 12 banishments and Boston 14. The Bruins will now meet the winners of the Toronto-New York Rangers series in the Stanley Cup finals.

Rangers Defeat Toronto Leafs 1-0

If a third game is necessary it will be played here Thursday. The same pair of fast skating young Rangers who tallied the win-

The Leafs were one man short on a penalty. Thompson took the puck down and made a perfect pass to Keelling who was waiting for it in the goal mouth. For the rest of the game the champions were hard pressed to hold off the speedy Toronto attack. The champions slowed down in the final period, but their defensive work was wonderful.

Pittsburgh Pirates Look For Much Success In 1929 Drive For National Pennant

PASO ROBLES, Cal., March 24—(G.P.)—The Waner brothers, Paul and Lloyd, are still on the absent list but the Pittsburgh Pirates are mustering for the National League pennant drive behind a pitching staff that gives early season promise of being second to none in the circuit.

In the hustle and bustle of training camp preparations here the fact that the star outfielders continue firm in their holdout roles has been sidetracked for the more serious business of molding available material into championship calibre. Besides the general opinion here is that the two Waners will have settled their salary difference and be in uniform by the time the season starts.

Manager Donie Bush plus his hopes on his hurlers and expects the rest of the squad to rise to the occasion. The mound corps has been greatly strengthened by the addition of Jess Petty, veteran left hander acquired from Brooklyn in the deal for Glenn Wright, shortstop. Ray Kremer and Burleigh Grimes, right handers, are in top form. The triumvirate of Petty, Kremer and Grimes will bear the burden and should do until another comes along. Two other oldtimers, Carmen Hill and Lee Meadows, the latter back from the voluntary retired list, are showing up well and may get into the running.

The rookie pitching field is unusually fertile and from it Bush looks for at least two youngsters to help the cause along. Steve Swinton, right hander, and Larry French, a southpaw, have the inside positions. Swinton pitched Indianapolis on the map last season and French did more than his bit for Portland of the Coast League. Ervin Erame, right hander, has a job because of his pinch hitting ability. handers, and Walter Taucher and Ralph Dawson, right handers, all holdovers, have not been counted out.

If the Waner boys pull the unexpected and remain out of baseball, the Pirates outfield will be guarded by George Gantman, Fred Brickell, and Adam Comorosky, the latter two youngsters but members of the squad in 1928. An outfield without the Waners is almost a calamity but Bush feels that the alternates are not the worst in the game by any means.

Added to the uncertainty of the euter garden, is an infield problem involving third base. Captain Pie Trainer has been shifted from first to short and at the latter position Bush believes he will be a star of the first water. Jim Stroner, a recruit who clouted out 42 home runs for Wichita in the Western League last season, is wanted for the third base station, but so far has been handicapped by a recent appendicitis operation. Sparky Adams has been holding down second base most of the time and third some of the time with Dick Barie relieving him at the keyhole berth. Harry Ricados, also from Brooklyn in the Wright deal, is another making a strong bid for third. Earl Sheely, ten-year veteran of the majors, is back after a season in the minors and bids to become as valuable as any man on the club. His work at first base is a delight to his bosses and his big bat should poke in several dozen timely runs.

The catching duties will be divided between Charley Lagreaves and Ralston Hemaley, with Claude Linton probably getting the call for the third string job.
