MRS. SIMON A. MURCHISON

Mrs. Mary Murchison, widow of the late Simon A. Murchison, in the early morning of Feb. 14, 1948, fell asleep in Jesus at the home of her daughter, Mrs. George McKinley, Charlottetown. Mrs. Murchison was born in Mt. Buchanan in 1870, the daughter of Malcolm Peter Murchison and Catherine MacPherson, Orwell. Her husband predeceased her seventeen years ago. She leaves to mourn their loss the following sons: Angus, Point Prim; Hector, on homestead and Donald, Needham, Mass., and six daughters, Christina, Mrs. Arnold Burleigh, Ellerslie; Mrs. Isobel Probert, Waltham, Mass.; Alice, Mrs. George McKinley, Charlottetown; Effie, Mrs. Ernest Pellitier, Natlex, Mass.; Marion, Mrs. Paul Nickerson, Needham, Mass. and Mrs. Ewena Taylor, Waltham, Mass. all of whom attended the funeral but one. Left also to mourn are fourteen grandchildren and two great-grandchildren and two brothers, Daniel of Mt. Buchanan and Archie of Charlottetown, and four sisters, Mrs. William MacDonald, Point Prim; Miss Christina; Mrs. Alice Stewart and Mrs. Flora MacDonald all of Oakland, California. Mrs. Murchison spent the greater part of last year with her children in U.S.A. Shortly after returning to her home in Pinette for the summer, she was taken ill. During her long wearing illness she was tenderly cared for by her daughter Alice.

Her funeral was held at her home in Pinette on Thursday, February 19th, where a large number gathered to show their last tribute of love and esteem. Rev. Dr. Galtiey of St. John's Presbyterian Church, Belfast, officiated. The Hymns sung were: "The Lord is My Shepherd," "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," and "Oh, Safe to the Rocks That is Higher Than I." The pall-bearers were: John A. MacDonald, Finlay MacDonald, Roderick MacKenzie, Angus Stewart, Sinclair MacRae and Fredrick Hubley. Interment, Folly Cemetery, Mt. Buchanan. There were a number of beautiful floral tributes. The memory of Mrs. Murchison's devoted Christian life, cheerful disposition and her hospitality at home will ever be an inspiration to her children and grandchildren.

NAVY WANTED ANCHOR BUT MUSEUM GOT IT

LOUISBURG, N.S. (CP) — When the transport department ice-breaker Saurer dragged up an old French anchor off this former French fortress it precipitated a tussle between the Royal Canadian Navy and the National Museum here.

The navy claimed the anchor to commemorate the battle between the French and British fleets in 1788 while the National Museum thought it should be preserved in Louisbourg.

The transport department ordered the Saurer to deliver the anchor to the museum.

Air Refuelling Brings Argument To Airways

By FORBES RHUDE (Canadian Press Business Editor)

Refuelling of airplanes while in flight is being tested over the North Atlantic and is causing a lively argument. Proponents say it is just what is needed to make long-distance aviation pay; that it enables planes to start with light gasoline loads and heavier payload; that particularly right now it would enable Britain to use present-type planes until she develops the craft she is aiming at five or 10 years hence. They say it is safe and reduces some present dangers. But many critics don't like it — they don't think it is in the interests of pacetime flying to have another aircraft hovering about 100 feet from you high over the ocean; that it adds an unnecessary hazard to a business which is not without hazards already; they term it variously "Operation Hangover" and "Operation Trapeze."

An important point is whether the average passenger will accept it as he has accepted other phases of flying.

Whether or not flight refuelling comes into use in trans-ocean runs now, much research has gone into it which should be of future value. There seems a chance it will find early use on some routes, such as Africa, even if only temporarily. Its long-range place may fluctuate with the direction of airplane design. There is considerable doubt that this is the time to use it on the North Atlantic.

Questions which occur are: Is it an undue strain to put on crews responsible for many lives? Will widespread use add up too many human and mechanical factors which may break down at some point? Is it a performance of skill which calls for greater consistency than can be humanly expected? Flight refuelling proponents say "No" to these questions and point out that there has not yet been an accident.

Tested For Years

Refuelling in the air as such is not new, but its application to passenger lines, and widespread use, would be. Sir Alan Cobham, famous for his world flights in the 1920s, became interested in 1931, and by 1939 it was used as a method of assisted take-off for heavily-laden flying boats of Imperial Airways operating non-stop between Ireland and Newfoundland. Wartime development was continued in 1946 and 1947 and, last summer, with 11 round-trip tests between London and Bermuda refuelling was done by a receiving plane which came out from the Azores. Now it is receiving tests on the North Atlantic.

The tests are being made by Flight Refuelling Ltd., of which Sir Alan is managing director, under auspices of the British Ministry of Civil Aviation, British Overseas Airways Corporation have lent a four-engined Liberator, with crew, which flies between Montreal and London.

Tanker planes — four-engined Lancastrians — are based at Gander, Nfld., Goose, Labrador, and Shannon, Eire, and come out 200 to 600 miles over the Atlantic to meet the ship to be refuelled. No passengers are carried on

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Mrs. Russell Graham, New London, who passed away April 2nd, 1940.

Peacefully sleeping, resting at last Her weary trials and troubles are past; In silence she suffered, in patience she bore; Till God called her home to suffer no more.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Mrs. James H. Grady, who died April 2nd, 1947.

When the evening shades are falling, And my thoughts are wandering home, In my heart there comes a longing, If only she could come home. More and more each day I miss her Friends may think the wound has healed, But they little know the sorrow That lies in my heart concealed. Oft and oft my thoughts do wander To a grave so far away, Where they laid my darling Mother Just a year ago today. So quiet and so quickly came the call Her sudden death surprised us all, A sudden change in a moment fell Without a chance to say farewell. But the wound is just as fresh today As in the hour she passed away It is not at the time the tears are shed, That tells of the hearts that are torn. But the lonely tears of the after years Of remembrance silently borne. Lovingly Remembered by Daughter Mae Grady.
