AMAZING CONFESSION AT CHURCH SERVICE

Young Man Confesses Having Murdered His Mother Seven Years Ago, a Crime for Which His Father was Hanged.

(United Press.)
FLESHERTON, Ont., July 24.—"Arise and confess your sins," shouted Rev. G.N. Sharpe, evangelist, in appealing to a revival meeting at Salem, Grey County, Arnold Love, 21, an industrious and respected farmer, arose from his seat and confessed to murdering his mother seven years ago, a crime for which his father was hanged on circumstantial evidence.

Love in a slow and hesitating voice told the story of his struggle of seven years to still the voice of a guilty conscience. The murder of Mrs. Henry Love was of the most brutal character. Her body was found in the cellar of their farm, her head battered and her throat cut. Circumstantial evidence was all that could be produced against her husband in the trial, but a verdict of guilty was returned and he paid the penalty on the scaffold. Arnold 14 years of age at the time, was never suspected. "I was just eating breakfast," Love said, in describing the murder, "when my mother warned me to avoid keeping bad company. I grabbed a stick of wood and hit her over the head. I dragged the body to the cellar and covered it with earth and then went to school. Love was held by the authorities of Owen Sound and will be charged with murder.

ITALIAN PREMIER CAUSES SENSATION

Accuses War Plutocrats of Financing Recent Rioting. Newspapers Demand Explanation.

(United Press.)
ROME, July 24.—Premier Giolitti's assertion before the chamber of deputies that war plutocrats were financing the recent disorders throughout Italy, has caused a national sensation. Newspapers today demanded that he tell all he knows submitting proofs so that the guilty may be punished. The Epoca said "Giolitti must tell all he knows." The Tribuna declared the country wanted to know all about the millionaire black hands and insisted that the matter be thoroughly investigated. The King's prosecutor today opened an investigation of the slump in Italian consols. It was explained that important documents had been found revealing a stock conspiracy to engender another world conflict.

PEERLESS BEVERAGES MANUFACTURED IN P. E. I. WIN CONTINENTAL FAME

The Demand for these Refreshing and Delicious Temperate Drinks Manufactured by J. & T. Morris in Charlottetown Continues to Grow. A Visit to the Plant and Some Description of the Process of Manufacture.

A representative of The Guardian had the privilege and pleasure last week of being shown through the premises of Messrs J. & T. Morris, Water Street, manufacturers of the famous Peerless Dry Ginger Ale and other temperate beverages bearing the Peerless label.

Few citizens have any idea of the wonderful industry which is being carried on here or its marvelous growth since it was started in Charlottetown but a little more than a year ago. Already the demand for the Peerless brand drinks has so increased that the output now amounts up to a car load per day.

Here indeed, is ample demonstration that a manufacturing industry can be made as successful in any other place in the Dominion if started in the right way, the promoters having the courage to prove their faith in it by the necessary expenditure for a costly plant and accessories.

The industry so well established is going ahead by leaps and bounds and it is only a question of a comparatively short time before an extension of the present quarters will be necessary for the requirements of this up-to-date and growing concern.

The great feature which impresses one upon making a visit through the Peerless plant is the purity and cleanliness of everything about the place and which immaculate pertains to the minutest detail of everything connected with the manufacture of the Peerless aerated product.

Messrs Morris were singularly fortunate in securing the services of a gentleman, who like the producer of their establishment is "peerless" in his line of business, as probably no greater expert in the manufacture of aerated waters is to be found in America, he having been previously engaged in the largest concern of the kind this side of the Atlantic. His brother, another highly qualified expert has also recently arrived here to assist in the successful carrying out of the new P. E. Island industry.

Already the Peerless goods have gained a reputation that may be termed continental. Carloads are shipped from Charlottetown daily to the various big cities of Canada and the United States and even from the far-off West Indian Islands and Cuba there is an insistent and growing demand for these goods.

No better idea can be formed of the reputation in which they are held than is furnished by the fact that Mr. Webb, the purchasing agent for the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railway has made an offer to the Messrs Morris to take the entire output of their plant every year and have it placed on sale all over this great railway system. Mr. Webb who has been buying the Peerless drinks for many years is the best evidence of the quality of the island manufactured article. Although the manufacturers are not yet in a position to supply an order of such magnitude it must be an inspiration and a source of great encouragement to the firm to receive such a tribute.

Charlottetown water is probably as pure as can be found anywhere. And yet when the reporter visited the Peerless plant last Saturday a strange sight was to find that pure water was being made still purer by being passed through a germ-proof filtering process. From the filters it passes over ice to a block tin reservoir that before going to the carbonator. In this last named device the water becomes saturated with carbonic acid gas under great pressure, a process without which any kind of beverage would prove flat, stale and insipid. The gas becomes liquified under the heavy pressure having a temperature of 97 degrees below zero in the cylinders and is heated by an electrical attachment as it enters the carbonators. The gas-charged water then goes to the three-filling machines, where the required amount of syrup is put in the bottles, the charged water added and the crown cap bearing the initials J. & T. M. put on, the whole process being carried out automatically.

Before the bottles are filled they are twice passed through a hydro washing machine so that there is no chance in the world of anything unclean adhering to them inside or out. At one stage of this process they receive ten minutes treatment from jets of a strong caustic solution heated to 145 degrees F. After receiving a double spraying of clean warm water and a final rinse of fresh water they are then filled and carried automatically on a circular carrier to the labelling machine where the Peerless label is attached, which is also an interesting sight to behold. This machine has a capacity of 60 labels a minute. The only work done by hand is the attaching of the gold foil around the necks of the dry ginger ale bottles. So far no satisfactory foiling machine has been invented. Every precaution is taken in the handling of the bottles so that no damaged ones can get out.

RUSSIA ACCEPTS ARMISTICE PROPOSAL

The Tense Situation in Europe Greatly Relieved by Russia's Acquiescence in Allied Proposal.

(United Press.)
LONDON, July 24.—The Russian Soviet government has accepted Poland's proposal for an armistice, and has ordered all Bolshevik commanders in the field to arrange for negotiations to that end immediately, a wireless dispatch from Moscow today stated.

Receipt of the official wireless dispatch has relieved a tense situation, as it was believed the Allies would be forced to intervene if the war between Poland and Soviet Russia continued. There was also fear that the Red Army would cross the German border and effect connection with either a Spartacist or Monarchist group in East Prussia, and thus precipitate another world conflict.

Russian Trade Mission to England Called Off.

(COPENHAGEN, July 24.—The Russian trade mission to England was not able to proceed today because the British destroyer on which it was expected to embark received orders not to permit the Bolshevik emissaries to come aboard in view of the reply of Moscow to Great Britain regarding the proposed Polish armistice.

THE YACHT RACE POSTPONED TILL TODAY

Owing to 25 Knot Breeze and Rough Seas. Both Yachts Overhauled for Today's Race.

(United Press.)
ADOBE U. S. S. GOLDSBOROUGH, (via wireless to United Press.) July 24.—The fifth and deciding contest of the International Yachting series scheduled for today, was postponed because of heavy weather. Both yachts were at the starting point when the regatta committee hoisted the signal postponing the contest.

The next race will be sailed on Monday. Due to the 25 knot wind, the yachts came to the starting point under small canvas. Resolute did not hoist an upper sail, and had no foresail set. Shamrock had two working top-sails. Immediately after the postponement signal was hoisted a large fleet of excursion vessels and private yachts of every description which went to the starting point in hope of seeing the deciding race.

The regatta committee decided the high wind would be too much for the frail racing craft, which had not stood the 15 knot breeze of yesterday any too well.

Sudden Death of Mrs. Wm. Stewart

Supreme Court At Georgetown

A very sudden death took place Friday night at the residence of Mrs. Flora MacLeod, 7 Bayfield Street, City when Mrs. Wm. Stewart, who was boarding there died of heart failure. The deceased was a widow, living formerly in Boston. She rented a room with Mrs. McLeod about three months ago. The latter stated that she (the deceased) had been complaining for two weeks of severe headaches, and that night Mrs. MacLeod heard a noise in her room—a moan followed by the sound of something falling. She immediately tried to get into the deceased's room, but was unable, as the door was barred. She sent for a policeman, who succeeded in getting in and found Mrs. Stewart dead. The deceased was a woman of about 76 years. An inquest was held Saturday morning when a verdict of heart failure was given.

Deceased was the widow of the late William Stewart, of Sherwood and a daughter of the late Rev. Malcolm MacPhail of Pugwash, her maiden name being Sarah MacPhail. She was the step-mother of Mrs. Wesley Vessey and of the late Mrs. Jonathan West of this city. The funeral takes place this (Monday) morning at 11 o'clock from Wright's (undertaking rooms to Sherwood Cemetery.

ROME, July 24.—The steamer Carlo Raccchia leading a flotilla of vessels escorting three steamers loaded with Russian prisoners struck a mine near Odessa and foundered, according to official dispatches today. There was no casualties.

There is an announcement made in today's Contest Page that will be of particular interest to each and every candidate who has an ambition on to be one of the big prize winners.

75,000 EXTRA votes are offered for each and every $15 worth of subscriptions secured this week.

IRISH SITUATION NEARING A CRISIS

Pierce Fighting Occurred in Belfast Bringing Number of Dead for Week to 17 and Wounded 350. More Troops Ordered in.

(United Press.)
BELFAST, July 24.—Three more persons died in hospitals here today as a result of injuries received in last night's rioting, bringing the death list in the factional fighting between Orangemen and Sinn Feiners during the last week, to seventeen. It was believed other deaths occurred in homes which were not reported.

More than 350 have been wounded, many seriously. Unionists have posted notices declaring they were mobilizing all available forces, including former soldiers. In several cases, entire military bodies have joined the Orangemen. Nationalists also were gathering adherents. It was feared today would develop more serious fighting than has yet occurred. Some idea of the bitterness existing between the opposing groups can be gained from the fact that ambulances laden with wounded, were stoned as they dashed through the streets. Business in the troubled districts was at an absolute standstill and stores had closed.

In some instances proprietors removed all fixtures, taking them out of the city in furniture vans. All hospitals were crowded to capacity, and relief workers erected tents on the outskirts of the city to care for the wounded.

Sinn Feiners were discovered garbed as women, attempting to leave the city. Mobs raided saloons, removed the furniture to the streets, to which they set fire and then danced about drunkenly. Shopists did not attack those shops over which a Union Jack flew. There were frequent clashes of Unionists and Sinn Feiners and stones and iron rivets were hurled from windows and roof tops. Many were beaten into insensibility in rough and tumble fighting. Troops intervened only when shooting started, generally allowing the "hand to hand" encounters to proceed. A mob captured a Catholic Church and fired shots from the steeple. They held the church until driven out by troops. It was estimated the damage would run close to one million dollars. Cavalry were patrolling all streets, and further military reinforcements were arriving hourly.

CHARLOTTETOWN BOY DROWNED YESTERDAY

J. Walter Cairns Met Sad Fate While Bathing With Comrades at Fort Augustus. Got Beyond Depth and Drowned Despite Chum's Brave Efforts to Save Him.

A sad death occurred at Hickey's Wharf, Fort Augustus about 4.30 yesterday afternoon, the victim being J. Walter Cairns of Charlottetown.

Deceased in company with a number of other young companions left the marina wharf in his motor boat, the Plute, at 9 o'clock on Sunday morning for the East River to spend the day at Hickey's Wharf. The party consisted of three boys and three girls:—Colin J. McEachern, Fred Hale and the victim J. Walter Cairns; Miss Marjorie McEachern, cousin of the first-named, and another cousin, Marjorie, and Miss Sarah Head.

The day was fine after the rain of the preceding day and everything looked promising for a pleasant day's outing in the country.

The party remained in the vicinity of Hickey's wharf until nearly 4 p.m.

They were having a picnic about a quarter of a mile from the wharf when one of the boys looked at his watch and remarked that it was "about time to go for that swim," it being exactly 18 minutes to 4 by his time piece. The boys had been looking forward with anticipation to the time when the tide would be right to have this swim and they thereupon started off for the wharf.

McEachern, who was a good swimmer, dived from the end of the wharf, but Cairns who could only swim a few strokes waded in from the shore. Hales who was not a swimmer remained on the wharf where he was joined later.

Attempts at resuscitation by means of artificial respiration were immediately made, and after working on the body for about an hour
