CAR CAUGHT FIRE—A car, which had caught fire just after being put into the garage, caused a good deal of excitement in Summerside on Saturday evening during the severe electric storm, which was pretty general throughout the Province. The fire siren blew for some time and many of the citizens thought some one's house had been struck, fortunately, however, it turned out to be only a car, which had caught fire from a short circuit. Only the hood was damaged as the firemen quickly extinguished the blaze. Quite a crowd had gathered on the scene.—S.

POTATO

Mr. McLure elicited further applause when he suggested that in another four years, if the King Government should happen to be returned, we should again be hearing of the subsidy matter—on the eve of the next election.

Mr. McLure then dealt with the King Government's attitude towards unemployment, citing the Nova Scotia coal strike and also the turning down of the Maritime Provinces' tender for the new Prince Edward Island car ferry. He dealt also with the financial situation and with Old Age Pensions.

MR. JENKINS ON DEFENSIVE

Mr. R. H. Jenkins said he read in the Toronto Globe that the Conservative promises would cost a billion dollars a year to fulfil. He denied emphatically that the Liberal policy was one of free trade.

MUCH DAMAGE TO PROPERTY CAUSED BY ELECTRIC STORM

The severe electric storm, which occurred on Saturday evening caused a very considerable amount of damage throughout the country. Reports have come to Summerside of barns and houses being struck. Mr. Colin Hutchinson's house at Ellerslie was struck, the bricks from the chimney going through the house and causing a very considerable amount of damage. Two boys, who were in the house were rendered unconscious but otherwise not hurt.

LIBERALISM "AT ITS BEST"

Hon. Cyrus Macmillan declared that he proposed to talk on "Liberalism at its best as interpreted by Mr. Mackenzie King for the past eight years."

"With every phase of life changing, surely the policy of a country must change," he urged.

"The New Zealand treaty no longer exists," he declared. "When a new treaty is drawn greater care will be taken to safeguard the dairy industry and every other industry."

If the King Government had had the Conservative policy which was stable and not subject to change, the New Zealand treaty would have remained on the Statute books, Mr. Macmillan argued.

Pisquid River Trestle Burned

A large amount of damage was sustained by the new wooden trestle, built across Pisquid River, when the new constructed bridge caught fire yesterday morning. The trestle was constructed of creosoted piling by Contractor Price, and burned very rapidly, as little could be done to fight the fire. Most satisfactory progress had been made in the building of the railway by the new rush crew which began work a short time ago, and the damage of yesterday may cause considerable delay in opening of the new branch.

IN MEMORIAM

Mr. King Waxes Abusive

(Montreal Gazette)

As Mr. William Lyon Mackenzie King reaches the sphere of influence of Premier Ferguson the edges of his temper, already somewhat worn, become more frayed, and his judgment less exact.

The Prime Minister is in Ontario for the purpose of securing votes for his party and his Government—especially his Government. It might have been thought that the least useful means to this end would be a violent and undignified attack when the head of an administration which enjoys the confidence and support of the people of the province to a degree which is without precedent in the history of Ontario. Yet Mr. King does that very thing.

Mr. King does not get into Ontario after his western tour than he mounts the platform at Kenora and indulges in an ebullient personal abuse directed against Premier Ferguson. The tone of his Kenora address—if address it can be called—is strongly reminiscent of his famous five-cent declaration in the House of Commons. Indeed, he had the five-cent incident in mind. Mr. Ferguson had entered the campaign, it will be remembered, in protest against the affront put by Mr. King upon the Conservative provinces. Mr. King, at that time, endeavored to explain his unfortunate utterance as having some meaning different from that which it conveyed to the House of Commons and to the public. Mr. Ferguson, in order that there might be no mistake about it, and no possibility of confusion, published the official parliamentary record. What does Mr. William King do about it at Kenora? He does not quarrel with Hansard, but he quarrels with Mr. Ferguson. "Of all the humbugs in public life," he says, "exceeding the delicate restraint which so becomes a Prime Minister, I think he is the greatest." "I say this in view of the excuses which he has offered for entering this campaign." This is an interesting statement, having regard to Mr. King's peculiar fitness to speak with knowledge upon the subject of humbugs in public life. What, exactly, is a humbug? Webster says he is "One who deceives or misleads; a deceitful or tricky fellow; an impostor." A very good definition, this; both clear and comprehensive. And reading it, one is inclined to admit the magnanimity of Mr. King in so freely bestowing these familiar characteristics upon another man.

Mr. King's anxiety over his five-cent speech, and over the unemployment issue generally, and his extraordinary bitterness toward the Premier of Ontario, were revealed repeatedly in the course of his speech at Kenora, a speech as barren of argument and as rich in vituperation as any that has been heard in this or any other campaign from the lips of a party leader. The Prime Minister invited his audience to ask Mr. Ferguson what he has been doing in the provincial field for labor. In the same breath he found grievous fault with Mr. Ferguson because the provincial Government had been finding employment for a number of men on the provincial road system. Saskatchewan also had its road-building programme. "That is an effort to buy up constituencies," Mr. King declares, "and yet Mr. Ferguson said I wouldn't give him a five-cent piece. I wonder what Mr. Ferguson would have done if I had given him millions. Would he have used them for the good of the people of Canada or would he have used them to advance the interests of the Tory party?" This is a typical example of what, in any other speaker, Mr. King would describe as humbug, although the term seems mild in the circumstances. Mr. King demands to know what Premier Ferguson has done for labor, and upon finding that practical steps have been taken for the relief of unemployment, he is righteously indignant, scents an attempt to purchase constituencies, and he says to the electors of Kenora: "Take all the work they will give you, but remember the ballot was made secret; in order that you could register your views."

The lofty ethical standard expressed, service government in Canada. In this advice will commend itself to the public conscience of Ontario as Conservatives are endeavoring to readily as the other features of his speech commend themselves to the intelligence of the province.

As to these other features, each brings its own surprise. For example, it is difficult to understand how Mr. King expects to attract Conservative support in an overwhelmingly Conservative province by pouring contempt upon the Tory party, as a party, and by shedding saurian tears over the possibility of too much Conservatism.

Mr. King's Kenora address, service government in Canada. In this advice will commend itself to the public conscience of Ontario as Conservatives are endeavoring to deduce the statement of Mr. King has been challenged and disproved many times by Sir Thomas White in the House of Commons.

Mr. King declared at Brantford that the Conservatives left subsequent Governments to liquidate "every cent of the great debts which they had incurred during the war."

Yet the Bankers Trust Company which has no political bias, in dealing with international finance and obligations, said in a book which has been widely circulated:

"Canada collected more by taxation during the war and applied it to the war debts than any other country in this world did at the same time."

Moreover the statement of Mr. King has been challenged and disproved many times by Sir Thomas White in the House of Commons.

TRUTH ABOUT DEBT AND TAXATION

Premier King is hailed in his party press as the "architect of Canadian prosperity."

He quotes the figures of Mr. Dunning that the national debt has been decreased by $237,000,000 during the last six years and that taxation to the amount of $118,000,000 has been remitted during this period.

On these two grounds he bases his claims of Canada's prosperity. Record unemployment, decreased exports and an unfavorable trade balance are passed over as unworthy of comment.

It is worth while to examine the two claims. Towards the sum of $237,000,000 by which the public debt has been reduced.

$45,437,000 came from the repayment of loans due Canada, $93,270,000 came from interest on investments, $8,629,000 came from banking operations.

These sums made a total of $147,000,000 which came to the Government without effort and without taxation. It was extraordinary revenue—a treasury windfall.

Deduct this amount of $147,000,000 from the total debt reduction and the net debt reduction raised by taxation was $110,000,000.

What then has the Government raised in taxation during the six years in which it has paid $110,000,000 of the national debt compared with the amount raised by taxation during the six years of Conservative administration previous to 1921 when Premier King assumed office.

The following figures are furnished by the assistant Deputy Minister of Finance from the official records of his department:

Year	Conservative	Liberal
1916	$124,666,969	1925	$293,574,518
1917	$174,758,428	1926	$327,575,013
1918	$196,720,976	1927	$346,649,272
1919	$233,688,730	1928	$364,705,503
1920	$293,374,707	1929	$394,674,747
1921	$368,770,498	1930	$378,321,000

So that in order to pay off the $110,000,000 of the national debt apart from the sum which came without taxation the Liberals have collected $713,000,000 more in taxes in six normal peace years of boasted prosperity than the Conservatives collected in six abnormal war and post war years.

Yet in the face of these official figures the Government boasts that under the direction of the "architect of prosperity" they have remitted taxation to the amount of $118,000,000 during the last six years.

The "architect of prosperity" redeemed his promise to the electors of lifting the burden of taxation especially from the shoulders of the poor by increasing taxation to an amount of $100,000,000 a year.

It is not denied that some taxes have been remitted, although the gross amount collected has been tremendously increased. The poor man no longer pays a war tax when he cables to Madagascar or Budapest.

The poor man no longer pays a war tax on his Pullman chair or sleeping berth. The poor man no longer pays three cents on his voluminous correspondence; the extra cent has been remitted by the "architect of prosperity."

The poor man only pays a flat rate of two cents whether his cheque is for ten dollars or ten thousand. But the great boast of the Liberals is that they have "cut" the sales tax.

Speaking at Brantford, Mr. King said: "In 1923 the sales tax was a flat rate of six per cent. In 1924, however, the flat rate of six per cent. was reduced to five per cent; in 1927 it was reduced to four per cent." and so forth.

Mr. King forgot to say that the sales tax in 1923 was six per cent. because he had raised it during the first year he was in office from three to six per cent.

He forgot to say that if he had left it at three per cent. the figure at which it stood when the Conservatives left office, he would not have collected the $188,000,000 excess which his Government secured by his act of raising it from three to six cents.

Mr. King declared at Brantford that the Conservatives left subsequent Governments to liquidate "every cent of the great debts which they had incurred during the war."

Yet the Bankers Trust Company which has no political bias, in dealing with international finance and obligations, said in a book which has been widely circulated:

"Canada collected more by taxation during the war and applied it to the war debts than any other country in this world did at the same time."

Moreover the statement of Mr. King has been challenged and disproved many times by Sir Thomas White in the House of Commons.

THE MARKETS

(Canadian Press)

MONTREAL, July 21.—Cattle receipts were 1,088 with over 1,000 cattle on sale, following the fairly heavy run of the previous week. Buyers on the Montreal livestock markets today were offering prices which sellers claimed were 75 cents to $1 below their asking prices as a result. Trading was at a standstill and not enough early sales were made to form a basis for quotations. Calf receipts were 1322. Veal calves were in fair demand selling from $7 for common veals and good drinkers to $8 and $8.50 for fairly good veals and $9 for tops fresh. Calves were slow. Common grassers sold as low as $4; those of better quality old grass $5.50; common, $6.50 to $7; grass, $4 to $6. SHEEP RECEIPTS—1618 lambs were lower. Trading was done in a few lots to $12 for ewes and wethers with $2 per cwt. on bucks. Odd sales of mixed lots of good quality brought $11 to $12; common $9 to $11. Hog receipts 1388. Hogs were about steady. Bacon and butchers brought $12 to $13.25. Heavies and roughs around $12; extra heavies $10 to $11 and sows $8.50 to $9.25, with trim young sows a shade higher.

MONTREAL, Que., July 21.—(Produce)—Butter, cheese and eggs show an upward trend on the Montreal dairy and produce markets today. Potatoes in produce were unchanged. The first change in several weeks was made in egg prices to the retail trade. Special brands were advanced 2 cents per dozen and extras were marked up 1 cent per dozen with other lines unchanged. Receipts were 1201 cases. Cheese was substantially higher, owing to the material advances in country board prices at the week end. Asking prices for Ontario cheese ranged from 17 to 17 1/4 c per lb. while for Quebec cheese dealers were looking for 16 1/2 to 16 3/4 a per lb. Receipts were 3,334 boxes. The butter market again showed an upward trend. With prices from $11 1/4 to 28 1/2 c per lb for eastern townships No. 1 pasteurized. Prices to retailers were unchanged. Receipts amounted to 559 boxes. The potato market was steady at $1.60 per 80 pound bag of new locally grown produce.

Woman Walks From Operating Table

CHICAGO, July 21.—Magic of modern surgery turned a broken leg into a mere minor accident today at the Cook County Hospital. A few minutes after the new treatment had been administered to a woman with a badly fractured ankle, she got up from the operating table and walked around, none the worse for her experience.

More than 100 physicians witnessed the demonstration, a clinic in a new method of treating fractures, devised and administered by Dr. Lorenz Boehler, head of the Vienna Industrial Hospital.

Dr. Karl Meyer, Cook County Hospital superintendent, characterized the treatment as one of the present generations' major contributions to surgery.

The key to the new method of treating fractures is the use of a local instead of a general anaesthetic explained Dr. Meyer. The conventional method is to give the patient a general anaesthetic and put the arm or leg in a plaster cast. The patient must stay in bed for some time. By Dr. Boehler's method a local anaesthetic of less than an ounce of two percent novocaine is injected after the X-ray picture has been taken and the fracture charted.

Then the limb is put in the cast and in a short time the patient is invited to make use of it.

Not only is time saved and suffering eliminated but, by using the local anaesthetic, the fracture can be reduced two or three times, if necessary in order to get perfect results.

Mrs. Anna Veronica, office worker, was the patient able to walk two hours after Dr. Boehler started to work on her ankle. She smiled and talked to him while he manipulated his instruments and announced that she expected to be at her desk as usual today.
