THEIR HEROISM CHANTED ABROAD

The following is clipped from the Boston Post of a recent date: Duncan J. Campbell, 448 High St., Holyoke, is given a bronze medal and will be allowed five hundred dollars with which to liquidate his indebtedness. Campbell with John A. Grady, on Nov. 8th, 1906, saved the lives of three sailors named Nystrom, Peterson and Kumlander, from the four-masted bark Sorinto which was wrecked in a storm on the Gulf of St. Lawrence north of Prince Edward Island. Of the crew of twenty men seven were drowned and three remained on one part of the broken vessel after the other ten had been rescued. Campbell and Grady went out at a great risk and managed to get two of the three off, but were too much exhausted to go after the third who, later in the day, swam to safety on a plank. John A. Grady, East Baitie, who assisted Campbell in the work of rescue, is also given a bronze medal and five hundred dollars.

THREE KILLED AND THREE BADLY INJURED

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 25.—Three persons were killed and three badly injured when a motor became unmanageable and plunged over an embankment forty feet.

DISCOVERY OF ATROCIOUS CRIME

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—Triple murder was revealed in an obscure flat in the heart of New York's East side at dusk yesterday. Two women and a man are the victims, and the manner of their death was horrible. They had been gagged with silk handkerchiefs and their heads crushed with a hammer or an axe. The bodies were left fully dressed, lying on the floor. A whimpering bull terrier was the only life in the flat. Robbery was the motive or else it is another case of the Blackhand.

Salvatore Scalpone, a well-to-do young Italian barber, his wife and a middle-aged woman, believed to have been Mrs. Scalpone's mother, are the victims. Scalpone's failure to appear at his shop today started an investigation which resulted in the discovery of the crime. Policemen, summoned by the janitor of the tenement, entered the locked flat by way of a fire escape.

In the kitchen, the first room of the fire escape, lay Scalpone's body. It was tied to the door. The face was battered beyond recognition. Near his head master stood the whining terrier, cowering and blood-spattered. The animal had paced from body to body, sniffing one and then the other, staining the floors crimson with his foot-prints and waiting for human aid.

In the next room were the bodies of the women, gagged as was the man, the handkerchiefs similarly directed

SOLDIERS HELPING AGAINST THE FLOODS

Special to The Guardian.

PARIS, Jan. 25.—Fifty thousand soldiers comprising the garrison of Paris were placed at the disposition of the municipal authorities to fight the flood, whose ravages are spreading ruin and consternation throughout the city.

The damage already is incalculable. The industrial life of the city is rapidly becoming paralyzed. Only two sections of the subway are in operation, while three-fourths rents in the surface lines are tied up.

The weather grows worse rather than better and bitterly cold rain and sleet are falling throughout the flooded regions, adding intensely to the suffering of the poor and homeless.

The price of food has greatly increased and the depleted supply of drinking water causes the greatest alarm.

With the rising of the flood a few inches higher the pumping stations still in operation must stop and Paris, in the midst of a miniature ocean will be without water fit to drink.

Thirty suburban towns about the city are worse off than the capital itself.

At Alfortville a cemetery has been washed out and the caskets lifted from their resting places have floated down the stream.

BURN'S CONCERT LAST EVENING

Last night in the Opera House was celebrated the 151st anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns, Scotland's Poet, under the auspices of the Caledonian Club of P. E. Island.

The house, as is usual with each recurrence of this yearly performance was filled to overflowing, and the program, as rendered, proved to be equal, if not superior, to any yet presented.

The opening number was an Overture by the Orchestra, followed by Peter Ferguson with Scotch selections on the bagpipes. William Young pleasingly rendered the song "There Was a Lad Born in Kyle" and was warmly applauded. The male quartet, consisting of Frank T. Watkins, Elmer Ritchie, Parker Hooper and Roland Kay, delightfully rendered that ever popular song "Annie Laurie." The vocal solo "Scottish Bluebell" by Miss Isabella McKenzie, was a treat. Miss Luffie F. Nicholson's recitation "The Bride of Jennie McNeill" was splendidly done and received much applause. Mr. Kay's solo "The Wedding of Sandy McNab," took the house by storm and the singer was recalled. Prof. Vinnicomb gave an excellent rendition of the "Blue Bells of Scotland" on the violin and Miss Lucy Blanchard, who was in splendid voice, sang "The Highlander's Toast." This was followed by a grand gathering of the Clans, Drills and exercises by sixteen Highland lasses and the Ghillie Callum by little Miss Amy Burns and Reels by Highland lasses, during which the Orchestra played Caledonian airs and Master Robert Messervey sang "O, Where, Tell Me Where." This concluded Part I.

Rev. G. E. Ross, City delivered the oration and paid high tribute to the life, work and memory of the patron poet of "Auld Scotia." His address was a splendid one and was highly appreciated. Elmer Ritchie, who has sung himself into favor so often recently, gave the "Wedding of Sandy McNab" and gave it well.

Miss Blanchard and Mr. Hooper in their duet "How Can Ye Gang," sang beautifully. Miss Kathleen Moore's solo "Jessie's Dream" was well received. Parker Hooper followed, singing "O, for a Breath of Moorland" and the Orchestra with their rendition of Scotch Melodies, pleased all. The performance "Bairn at the Boustie" by sixteen lads and lasses, was splendid. Roland Kay gave the concluding number in a Vocal Solo—"Maggie's Prue Dundee." Mr. Kay's numbers were among the most popular on the program and in each instance were received with rounds of applause.

A special train from Vernon brought quite a large number of excursionists to this city. They left on return at eleven thirty.

NEW LONDON LITERARY SOCIETY

The first regular meeting of the lately organized New London Literary Society was held recently in French River Hall, with a good attendance. There is a good library in connection to which over twenty dollars worth of new books, including some of the latest publications will shortly be added. The society meets on Wednesday evening of every week during the winter. The following are the officers for the ensuing year: John Stewart, President; M. P. Gibson, Vice-President; Frank MacKenzie, Secretary; Geo. Ferguson, Treasurer; Myrtle MacLeod, Librarian.

THE PARIS FLOODS INCREASE

PARIS, Jan. 25.—At two o'clock this morning, the water which was rushing through the tunnel under the station burst through the roadway, and flooded the streets on which were many aristocratic residences. The sidewalks are likely to cave in, in any minute. Those who occupied the houses, were hastily hurried to a place of safety. The situation resulting from the floods is fast becoming desperate. All conditions indicate a further rise of several inches of the River Seine, and the cold rain continues to cause intense suffering among the homeless with little prospects of relief.

NEW HOPE FOR ALBERT T. PATRICK

NEW ORLEANS, La., January 24.—Relatives of Albert T. Patrick, the New York lawyer, now confined in Sing Sing Prison for the murder of the millinaire, Wm. Marsh Rice, have secured a promise from Chas. F. Jones, Rice's former valet, that he will go back to New York and give evidence that, it is believed, may open up a way for Patrick's release.

Though missing three years and several times reported dead, Jones appeared here a few days ago, and instead of going to the home of his parents, went to the house of a friend, whom he told he was tired of being chased around the world. He declared that he had returned for the purpose of making a clear breast of it, and settling the whole affair.

The testimony of Jones at the trial went a long way towards securing Patrick's conviction.

AN EXPERT IN ADVERTISING

D. J. Bonnell, Retiring Mechanical Superintendent of The Guardian, Will Undertake This Work.

Duncan J. Bonnell, who for several years past has held the position and conscientiously discharged the duties of Mechanical Superintendent of the Guardian has resigned that position to enter upon another line of useful activity. The Guardian Publishing Company parts with him with regret. He was a capable, diligent and trustworthy head of the mechanical staff, very popular with those working under his direction, and highly respected by a very one connected with the paper.

Mr. Bonnell is taking up the work of an advertisement writer and designer, a line of activity for which he has very high qualifications, as a practical printer and as a graduate of one of the best advertising schools in America. He has had extensive mechanical experience, and has valuable technical knowledge of printing materials and how to apply them to the best possible advantage. Coupled with this he possesses the faculty for analyzing the selling points of merchandise, even to the illustrations, which make up the attractiveness of an advertisement. He has the capacity to select the proper printing matter to harmonize it with the article advertised.

Artistic advertisements are designed by pencil and mechanical drawing, according to the limitations of type design, the exact kinds and sizes of type named. This gives the printer just the information he desires, and is what only a practical printer can comprehensively give. It can easily be seen from this that advertising space, like a piece of ground, can be made to yield greater returns by being skillfully laid out and cultivated with the co-operation of an expert, specializing in advertising men.

Mr. Bonnell, as an advertising expert, will take care of advertisers' needs, and thus wholly relieve his patrons of all care and worry on that account. Distance will be no obstacle in that regard, with his perfected system for attending to mail customers. Advertisers will be able to secure the benefit of his practical knowledge and special studies in regard to their advertisements and printed matter, placing them in the same position as the departmental stores and other high-salaried advertising experts, and this at a comparatively insignificant charge. A very extensive service will enable him to do this.

Mr. Bonnell has handled the advertising of several leading city merchants for about a year past and his work has been very favorably commented upon by business men and by the great New York journals specially devoted to advertising. He will

BENICIA'S CONVENT BELL

By Rev. Brother Valerius (Ronald McDonald), Born in Glenwood, P.E.I., April 15, 1855. Died in California, December 12, 1909.

Across the water pealing,
At even's gentle dose,
From Benicia's convent stealing,
Rings the convent bell pealing.

Sweet silver bell, that ever
Its joyful message rings,
To call to high endeavor
Man's heart on fervor's wings.

Ring on, thou sweet-toned chimer;
Mayest thou my soul praise;
And fill with love's sweet rhyme,
To sing God's song of praise.

And when no more thy tears I hear,
When life's short journey's o'er,
May bells eternal welcome me
To Heaven's golden shore.

Brother Valerius' mother, who died in 1893, was a daughter of Alexander McDonald, one of the twelve sons of the pioneer Scottish merchant who came from Arisaig, Scotland, about the end of the eighteenth century, and who brought Pannure Island and a large tract of land near Georgetown, P. E. I. Brother Valerius was one of eleven children, eight sons and three daughters, and all are dead but five.

The living are: Rev. Brother Willibald, Martinez, Cal.; Allan McDonald, merchant, Souris, East, P. E. I.; Archibald McDonald, of the old home, Glenwood; Mary, Mrs. John Kickham, Souris West, and Ellen, Mrs. M. Reardon, Boston.

In 1900 the deceased in company with Brother Willibald made a trip to the home of their youth. This was his only visit to this Province since he went to California in 1880.

SAD DEATH OF AGED CITIZEN

A particularly sad death was revealed yesterday when it became known that John McKenzie, Gerald street, had been found dead in the dining room of his own home.

Mr. McKenzie was a man about eighty years of age, feeble physically though in full possession of his mental faculties. He was at one time employed with William Heard as servant man. Death was caused by hanging. There is no apparent reason why the old man should commit suicide and the opinion is being expressed by members of his family that his death was the result of an accident while trying to fasten up his clothes line. It seems hardly possible that this could be the case yet it is not likely that the closing incidents of his death will ever become known.

The deceased lived with his son, William McKenzie, who is unmarried and employed with E. H. Haviland, and owned the house the two occupied, a neat little cottage with an adjoining plot of land.

Yesterday morning the son arose at the customary hour and got his breakfast, prepared one for his father and went to work. He does not return home to dinner at noon and hence his father was generally alone in the house all day.

About two o'clock in the afternoon Mrs. George Gorvette, daughter of the deceased, who lives on Gerald street a few doors south of the late John McKenzie's house, sent her seven year old son to see his grandfather. He returned shortly telling his mother that his grandfather was kneeling on a chair with a string around his neck. Mrs. Gorvette's husband was home at the time and he immediately started for the scene and on arriving there found Mr. McKenzie, as the child had stated, kneeling on a chair with a clothes line fastened around his neck while the other end was attached to two clothes hooks on the wall.

The coroner, Dr. H. D. Johnson, was summoned and on his arrival found that life had been extinct nearly two hours. After inquiries had been made in the case it was decided that it was not necessary to hold an inquest.

The deceased leaves one son, William, above mentioned, and two daughters, Mrs. John S. Martin, Kinross, and Mrs. George Gorvette, City.

Fireman Hinsel and Engineer Scanlan were killed.

EDWARD F. CAREY DEAD IN LYNN

The sad news was received by a telegram that The Guardian yesterday afternoon of the death of Edward F. Carey, Lynn, Mass., formerly of this Province. Death resulted from a hemorrhage in the head.

The deceased at one time owned the old Binns farm, Royalty, and removed from this Province about nineteen years ago since then residing in Lynn, where he was employed with an Electric Company.

He visited this province last year on the occasion of the death of a foster-sister, the burial taking place in this city.

The late Mr. Carey was about forty five years old and for the past five or six years has been in ill-health. About seven years ago he suffered a severe electric shock in an accident while at his work, the effects of which he felt till his death.

He leaves to mourn a mother, an aunt, three brothers: Daniel, William and John; and four sisters: Mrs. Rose, Helen, Celia and Emma, all residents in Lynn. The aunt is Mrs. John Berrigan, 179 Queen Street, City. The body will be brought home for burial and a funeral notice will appear later. To all the surviving relatives The Guardian extends sincere sympathy.

LADY BUYER TO CROSS THE OCEAN

Miss Angie Doiron to Represent Jas. Paton & Co. in London and Paris.

There is always something new in business and in many respects Charlottetown keeps right in the forefront.

The newest bit of enterprise is that of Messrs. Jas. Paton & Co., who, early in February, intend sending their Miss Angie Doiron to Paris and to London, the first lady buyer from Charlottetown to visit the old land markets.

In the past Miss Doiron has made a number of buying trips for the firm to New York, and has made personal purchases for many customers in this city.

Miss Doiron has just issued a nicely gotten up circular to the ladies of Charlottetown and throughout the Province telling them about her projected trip across the Ocean and offering to make for them personal selections of anything that they may desire in the world's greatest markets—London and Paris. She will take orders up till Saturday the 5th.

MY CREED

(Passed along by a Missionary in far-away India.)

Do not keep the alabaster boxes of your tenderness sealed up until your friends are dead. Fill their lives with sweetness. Speak approving, cheerful words while their ears can hear them, and while their hearts can be thrilled and made happier by them; the kind things you mean to say when they are gone, say before they are gone. The flowers you mean to send for their coffins, send to brighten and sweeten their homes before they leave them. If my friends have alabaster boxes laid away, full of fragrant perfumes of sympathy and affection, Comrade, do the kind act now I and look up Matt. xxv., 31-36.
