The headliner at New Wonderland tonight is entitled "If Love be True" and runs a whole reel. It is the story of a millionaire who falls in love with a factory girl. She repulses him, and he dons working clothes and secures a position in the factory with her. Being disguised she does not recognize him as the millionaire, but learns to love him. The mill takes fire. He mounts the ladder, breaks the windows and rescues her. His identity is proved by the hospital corps who discover the false wig and whiskers. All ends happily.

Rev. J. B. Ganong, field secretary of the N.E. Sunday School Association, in the city recently, said he had resigned from office to take up pastoral work. He had not determined where he would be stationed. Mr. Ganong had been very active in the work of the S. S. Association and has seen its scope considerably broadened and much good work done during his term of office. He feels that the work takes him too much away from his home and that is his reason for resigning. The Association will probably not deal with the resignation until April. —St. John Telegraph.

Buster, the Patriot's local correspondent, reminds one of Mrs. Rachel Lynde, in that interesting story, "Anne of Green Gables," as she inquisitively watches all who come and go. Displaying the same inquisitive nature, Buster appears to devote much of his time to gossiping about all who drive to and from the districts and endeavoring to learn whence and whither, but unlike Mrs. Lynde, he ends knowing about as much as when he starts. Then to the Patriot's lean columns he sends his disreputable fabric of fancies and the result is that journal pretends to give news from this district, Canoe Cove notes, and not one item of truth. Upon the reliability of its news is dependent, to a great extent, the success of any newspaper. Then how can the Patriot hope to hold the confidence of the people with such a correspondent, who does not give facts and who is quite incapable of writing items for any reputable journal.—Com.
