BRILLIANT LITERARY LIGHT HAS GONE OUT

He was the son of the late Dr. James Murray former Colonial Editor of the London Times. Mr Murray was one of the literary lights of the Dominion. He has written in both prose and verse, but was more particularly known as a poet. In his "Songs of the Great Dominion," W. D. Lighthall pronounces his translations of the lyrics of Gauthier, Huho, De Musset and other French writers as the most delicate and precise in the English language. Since 1882, he has published notes and queries in the Montreal Star a feature highly prized by literary readers.

Minard's Liniment Relieves Neuralgia

During the past week or more The Guardian has been receiving numerous complaints from subscribers in various parts of the city that they were not receiving their Guardian's regularly. Many of the complaints came daily and on enquiring from carriers it was ascertained that the papers for the parties complaining had been left properly each morning. This gave rise to the idea that a systematic plan was being pursued by parties, presumably youths, who were taking the papers from the doors of subscribers and selling them. On Saturday last The Guardian employed a special detective and put him on the track of the offenders. Yesterday morning he reported at the office that he had discovered the identity of two of the culprits whom he saw in the act of stealing the delivered papers from the doors of subscribers—they having taken no less than eight papers in two blocks on lower Prince Street. An officer of The Guardian then proceeded to the Police Station where the necessary papers for the arrest of the young offenders—lads of twelve

No regulation is made regarding the hours of labor in factories, or mines, but shops and offices are legislated upon and electric railways are forbidden under heavy penalties, to ask their employees on the cars to work more than six days of ten hours per week. No assistant shall be employed in any shop or office more than sixty hours per week, including meal time, and they must not be employed more than six hours continuously without at least one hour for a meal. In the case of street taking or other special work these hours may be extended, but not more than three hours in any day, nor for more than thirty days in any one year. The penalty for causing assistants to work beyond these hours in shops and offices is a maximum of $50 for each offence, or three months' imprisonment, and the same penalty is imposed on employers of tramway conductors and motormen who work more than six days a week of ten hours per day.

The Mail is in receipt of the first number of the Imperial Review, the appearance of which is most creditable. Ten thousand copies were printed for the first issue. The King extended to Mrs. Twining his best wishes for the success of the new venture. The London Morning Post of February 22, had the following: "Mrs. Twining, Coombe Oak, Kingston-hill, has received the following words of appreciation from His Majesty the King, through his secretary Lord Knysna: 'I have placed before the King one of the copies of 'The Empire' which you gave me. and fourteen years of age respectively—could be secured. In conference with the Magistrate and other city officials it was decided to give the chaps another chance and the parents of the misdoers were seen and informed of the misconduct of their children. It is not anticipated that any further annoyance in this respect will be suffered by subscribers, but The Guardian can assure all that should there be a recurrence of the offence in any part of the city no pains will be spared to apprehend the guilty parties and bring them before the authorities where they will receive full punishment for their offence or offences. This can be construed as an assurance for subscribers that no efforts will be spared to give them a satisfactory delivery service and also to have in the past been in the habit of taking papers from the doors of subscribers, as one or more special detectives, in the dress of private citizens, will be on the watch for all those who steal Guardians.

BERLIN, March 13—According to the reports which are reaching the Jewish Relief Association of Germany, expulsions of Jews from Russia are taking place on an unprecedented scale. Coun. Riley thought it hardly necessary to consider this matter just now. The legislative committee can handle the matter next year. Coun. McKenna stated that the object was to give the Recorder an opportunity to prepare the draft of the bill. He was in favor of the Civic ballot vote. Coun. McDonald said there were several changes necessary in the act and among them being the qualification of candidates seeking election to the Council board. He thought when the draft was prepared it ought to include all the proposed changes in the one bill to be presented to the legislature at its next meeting. His Worship briefly expressed himself in hearty accord with the object of the resolution, viz: the ballot vote. Couns. Johnson and Taylor said they were in favor of the ballot vote. Coun. Campbell agreed with Coun. McDonald in reference to the other changes necessary in the act. Coun. Matthews said he also was in favor of the ballot vote and hoped he would see it in vogue before the next civic election. He would like to see the amendments to the act all embodied in one draft bill but he did not think the passing of the resolution would interfere with the later adoption of further amendments. He expressed it as his opinion that the building was not safe. He had been particularly observing the cracks in the masonry on the southern corner and said they were gradually widening. He spoke of the interior, which, he said needed cleaning. This of course could not be done properly until the exterior was repaired. Coun. Riley moved, seconded by Coun. Johnson, that the Market Committee be required to report to the Council re the condition of the building. The resolution was carried. The Council adjourned.

Mosley's head received a bad wound and it was some hours before he recovered consciousness. Two of them were arrested by D. A. R. DEADLOCK STILL IN PHILADELPHIA STRIKE

PHILADELPHIA, March 13—The demands or arbitration of the differences between the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company and its 4,000 or more striking employes, became insistent from within Philadelphia today, and outside of it. Everywhere it was recognized that the failure to arrive at an arbitral agreement was the only thing which stood in the way of a speedy calling off of the sympathetic strike in this city which has practically paralyzed the city's industrial life and which the labor leaders again threaten they will extend if the deadlock continues. These threats, perhaps, were the very things which stood in the way of an amicable adjustment. At a representative meeting of business men today, the call for arbitration was the keynote of a two and a half hours debate, which culminated in demands upon both local and national influences to set in motion forces to bring the traction dispute before mediatory tribunals for settlement. Local financial, commercial and official bodies and the federal authorities as well as the salutary influence of the National Civic Federation were appealed to step in and end the difficulty. Governor Stuart, at Harrisburg, was petitioned by labor men to take action, and the patriotic citizenship of the city and state was invoked in various resolutions, statements and petitions to exert its power to stop conditions which Philadelphia finds growing more intolerable daily. Each day, however, seemingly brings the situation nearer a crisis. Good order prevailed throughout the city today. Not until late tonight was there any sort of an outbreak in any quarter of the city. A meeting was held in Musical Fund hall at Eighth and Locust streets tonight, a crowd displayed a turbulent spirit and passing trolley cars were stoned. The police by a show for force and a display of revolvers subdued the demonstration before much mischief was done. Nobody was seriously injured and there were no arrests. The meeting itself, though enthusiastic, was orderly. It was featured by a declaration by C. O. Pratt, leader of the striking car men, that the sympathy strike would not stop in Pennsylvania if the fight were prolonged. "We will go through the United States," declared Pratt. Cars ran uninterruptedly today in greater number than since the strike began. The strikers did not claim many new accessions to their ranks, and such as there were, the employers claimed, were more than offset by desertions from the strikers' cause.

STEP BY STEP

A doctor was asked by his patient, "How long shall I have to lie here?" The answer, "Only a day at a time," taught a precious lesson. The same lesson God taught His people through the method of His provision for Israel during their journey in the wilderness. Day by day the manna fell, enough for the day, no more and no less. So God promises, not as thy weeks, or as thy months, but "As thy days, or shall thy strength be." And that means Monday's grace for Monday, Tuesday's grace for Tuesday, and so on. Why then borrow trouble for the future? We are told by the Lord to "Take no thought for the morrow." The law of Divine grace is, "Sufficient unto the day." The law of Divine deliverance is, "A very present help." The law of Divine guidance is, "Step by step." One who carries a lantern on a dark
