"DO YE NO' KEN ME?"

A recent copy of The Wislaw (Lancashire) Herald had the following: "The war is responsible for many strange happenings, and one incident worth recording is reported from the district. Recently while a woman was making preparations to retire for the night she heard footsteps on the stair leading to her house and a voice remarked, 'It's the right hand door.' Her door was locked and the house was in darkness. However, when the knock came, she questioned, 'Who's there?' The person on the outside explained that he was a stranded soldier, and had been sent to this house for lodgings. The woman had the gas lighted, and invited the soldier to enter. In answer to her question, the man in khaki informed the wife that he was from Canada. The woman then offered, if he had any relatives in the place, to help him find them when the soldier looking intently at her, asked: 'Do ye no' ken me, mother?' It transpired that when a lad of seventeen the soldier had left Kilsyth, where his family then resided, and emigrated to the Dominion. Twelve years passed and during the time he had become an indifferent correspondent. On war breaking out, he joined the Canadian forces, and when given leave he visited Kilsyth, only to find that his family had removed to Motherwell. Here he found them as stated, and it was far avoynt the sma' oors before the family retired to rest.

OTTAWA, January 21.—Why the Lee-Enfield rifle is being supplied to the 17th Nova Scotia battalion instead of the Ross rifle is a question which could not be answered at the Militia Department this morning. It was officially stated that the Department has no word or intimation about it. Such changes really do not have to be reported here. The department, however, is disposed to accept as a fact the report that the Nova Scotia regiment is going to reinforce the Patricia's and for this reason is being equipped with the Lee-Enfield arm. It is regarded as a distinct compliment to the efficiency of Nova Scotians that of the regular division they should be the first to be sent to the trenches. A number of Toronto men are here with them. Regarding the charge that unnecessary supplies of over shoes, harness and other equipment has been sent to England, it was admitted at the Department today that over shoes have been sent over in the belief that the weather conditions might be somewhat similar to those in Canada. Instead of that there is mud and rain so the shoes are largely being returned. It was declared to be false that too many harness had been sent over. If not needed for the forces now on Salisbury Plain it will be required shortly. No more Oliver equipment will be issued. The Department instead is adopting the Web equipment.

LOST BRITISHER TO SKETCH GERMAN TRENCHES

By P. M. Sarle, United Press Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, Dec. 24.—(By mail.)—How a Britisher went to his way, yet finding himself in the German lines, stayed to make a sketch of the trenches, is told in the regimental orders of the Northamptonshire Regiment, one of the corps especially praised by Sir John French.

Private Lammett was on outpost duty one dark night when he lost touch with his fellow sentries. After tramping about for awhile he made out a trench in the distance which he imagined was held by the Highlanders. He went up to the outposts, and not having been quite close did he discover that they were German. Lammett speaks: German fluently and realizing that boldness alone could save him, he challenged and spoke to the Germans in their own language. The darkness prevented the Kaiser's soldiers from detecting his khaki uniform, but he had intended pretending that he was a German spy returning from a reconnaissance.

His trick, however, was successful, and he was allowed to stay talking to the enemy for several minutes without arousing suspicion. Seizing a favorable opportunity, he dropped flat on the ground and crawled away, but at a safe distance he stopped to make a sketch of the position of the German trenches, which he took back to his colonel. The sketch was handed to the commander of the artillery, who found that Lammett had made no misallocation of any important details. It helped the guns were able to shell a line of trenches, the location of which till then had not been fixed. Lammett was promoted sergeant.

How Tammy Atkins tries to keep himself warm in a trench is, after all, the inner world. The thing that happens outside are chiefly of consequence to us as they affect their inner existence—whether they bring it joy or fear, throw it into whirlwinds of passion, or comfort it with peace.

And while we are often powerless to change outward circumstances, it is within our province so to strengthen and protect the inner dwelling that it shall be unshaken by most of life's storms.

There is one Guest, who, if He abide with us, will make a place of unshaking sanctuary.

THE LEE-ENFIELD RIFLE FOR THE BOYS.

we load ourselves as much as possible with grub inside and clothes outside," he says. "To show you how one tries unsuccessfully to keep warm. Just as I was about to fall in to move into the advanced trenches for our spell, I found that I had forgotten my identity disc, which goes round one's neck, next to the skin. Well, in order to get it there I had to open eight things.

"Mackintosh, dressing gown (a great tip this, for the trenches, although in case of an advance one would have to leave it behind—I am afraid Napoleon would turn in his grave at the idea of dressing gowns on the battlefield—next one's uniform coat, two woolly waist coats, one shirt, (would have been two but mislaid the second), and lastly two vests—and I live in a small dugout, 6 feet by 4 feet by 5 feet high. Unluckily we are both biggish, so we have to squeeze in jolly adjacent. Our roof consists of a few planks with earth on top. Except for being turned out two or three times a night by firing, I sleep up to my eyes in makers of warm dressing owns, see I."

"Oh yes, we are have a lively time, waking up in the middle of the night and wondering who has 'pinched' your feet, and to find that they are still there, only used with cold," writes Private Bishop, of the Middlesex Regiment. "About two nights ago we had to get out in the wind and rain, (and it was cold, too), to bang the tent pegs down as far as we could, for the wind was so carried the tent away, the pegs could not stand the strain in the soft mud."

The Post Office London Directory for 1915 has lost two ounces in weight as the result of the war. Last year this ever growing tome weighed 15 ounces, but owing to the war, two ounces of German and Austrian names have dropped out, through their owners having gone out of business or returned to their own countries to fight.
