"WATCH THAT YOUNG MAN"

Georges Pelletier, writing in Le Devoir, recalls a prediction made by Sir Wilfrid Laurier about the new Prime Minister. Mr. Meighen had just made his maiden speech in 1909, at the age of 32, and had discussed the Grand Trunk Pacific measure. Meeting Mr. Pelletier shortly afterwards, Sir Wilfrid said to him: "Watch that young man. He will go far or I am mistaken." In this connection it is recalled that at the close of Mr. Meighen's speech Sir Wilfrid turned to a gentleman at his right and said "Borden has got the man he wants now."

This estimate of Mr. Meighen's strength has been and is being amply verified. He has been a success from the outset of his political career and his progress to the front has been phenomenal.

Elected in 1908 and re-elected in 1911 he was appointed Solicitor-General in June, 1913; Secretary of State and Minister of Mines in August, 1917; Minister of the Interior and Superintendent-General of Indian Affairs in October, 1917; Premier of Canada, July, 1920.

Such continued progress as this is not due to accident or favoritism although these factors are not unknown in the careers of many public men. Mr. Meighen's re-election by acclamation on occasions which necessitated an appeal to the people is one of the strongest credentials as to his popularity in his own constituency, the general approval with which his appointment to the Premiership has been received by those of his own party throughout the Dominion, and the perhaps begrudged admission of his outstanding ability on the part of his political opponents, afford good ground for the belief that he is the man of the hour for the responsible position to which he has been called and for the general hope that he will worthily wear the mantle handed down to him by the galaxy of statesmen who have successfully piloted the Liberal-Conservative party since Confederation and Canada through the most trying period in its history.

It is not too much to cherish the belief that Canada is again fortunate in having at the helm of state, at this critical juncture, one of its ablest premiers and one whose record in the past gives promise of sane, moderate and patriotic leadership. "Watch that young man" and we shall find that not only Sir Robert Borden but Canada "has got the man that is wanted."

THE LATE SENATOR DENNIS

News of the death of Senator Dennis, of Halifax, briefly announced in our telegrams yesterday, came as a shock to those who knew him and will be received with general regret throughout the newspaper press of Canada. The late Senator Dennis was an outstanding figure in the political life of Nova Scotia and especially of Halifax. He was another of the splendid examples of self made men. Born in Cornwall, England in 1856 he came to Canada when only seventeen years of age and began his Canadian career as a reporter on the Halifax Herald in 1875 when that paper was started. So successful was he in his chosen vocation that he, within a comparatively few years, purchased the paper and owned and conducted it till the time of his death. He was summoned to the Senate in 1912 and was for seven years a councillor for the city of Halifax. Throughout his almost lifelong residence in Halifax he was identified with the civic and philanthropic life of the city and there were few movements indeed for the betterment of the city or province that he was not a foremost figure in.

His death is a loss to Halifax and the province and will be sincerely mourned by all who enjoyed personal acquaintance with him. On two occasions he represented Canada in England, first at the Coronation of His Majesty King George and again shortly after the outbreak of war when representatives of the different provinces were sent to England to obtain a personal insight into the conduct of the war. His elder son Eric, was killed in the war and as a memorial to him the Senator donated $50,000 to Dalhousie University. Mrs. Dennis has always taken a prominent part in religious and philanthropic work and had the honor of being made a Lady of Grace of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem by Her Majesty Queen Mary, head of the Order. Sincere sympathy will be extended to her, her surviving son and two daughters, the elder Miss Dennis having been honored by Dalhousie University just the other day in being made Doctor of Literature and Law.

"THE GLORIOUS TWELFTH"

Yesterday the "Glorious Twelfth" was duly observed by the Orange fraternity of this province by a grand gathering in Charlottetown. In this peaceful and happy province of ours no bitter feelings divide our various fraternal organizations; although under different names, although each prides itself on its nationality, on its religious, charitable or philanthropic aspirations, there is practical unanimity as to their respective rights and privileges and every organization observes its own special day in its own special way without jealousy or antagonism.

The Orange organization is a charitable institution and the different lodges are jointly supporting the Protestant Orphanage near this city, a most worthy institution and one which, unfortunately, is needed in this well off province. The proceeds of yesterday's celebration will go towards the erection of a larger building and it is gratifying to note that it was so splendidly patronized.

CURRENT COMMENT

There is nothing alive in the world that is harder to please, than the average Liberal newspapers. Babyish in their demands, and childish in expectation to all outward appearance, yet when given the plaything they clamor after, they still sulk and grumble in their petulance. For six months back their plaint has been the need of an active Premier, present in his office and on the job. Almost before the ink is dry installing a new Prime Minister, to remove this obstacle to their happiness, their discontent assumes another form, or rather many other forms, varied to meet the peculiar local conditions of each particular low-spirited fault finder. Their worry for the moment, is over the attitude of Toronto Conservatives towards the re-organized Government. Their fear of a clash between these two elements has arisen on the political thermometer, to fever heat. What if Hon. Robert Rogers should get his gun to work and blow up the whole thing? Isn't the bare thought of such a calamity enough to shock the heart out of the whole Liberal party? The only real trouble about the thing is, that a Government ultra-Conservative in character is the very thing that Hon. Mr. Rogers has been striving for, and this is what he has got, under the leadership of his old time friend and colleague, Hon. Arthur Meighen.

A further worry is over the method of selection adopted by the party to provide this new Premier. It is not exactly after the Liberal newspaper remarks, that "members at Ottawa, whether orthodox Liberal method. One Conservative or Unionist, have not been authorized by their constituencies to choose a leader." This is quite true, but it is also a truth that there is nothing in the party to prevent the masses of the party from stepping in at any time, by a convention or in any other representative way that pleases them, and nominating a leader or leaders to suit their taste and convenience. They might have spent months preparing for a big Ottawa conference, after the Liberal mode; if they could find a similar piece of useless timber in their ranks, they might possibly make just as unfortunate a selection.

Choosing a leader for an irresponsible political combination is one thing, and in the hands of a class or faction of the people. Nominating a Prime Minister to direct the formation of a Ministry for the conduct of the government of the country, is an entirely different matter and in entirely different hands. His Excellency the Governor-General and he alone, representing the Crown, has the right of selection in this case. It is his custom to select such from the elected representatives of the people, unless good cause is shown otherwise. While not bound to accept the advice of any one, it is the law of custom for the retiring Premier, presumably representing a majority of Parliament, to recommend a successor, who is usually appointed. The Government of the country must go on, and when the Premier's seat becomes vacant there is no time for national gatherings of political clubs, and the safer method is followed, as in this instance. This has also been the practice of the Conservative party since its formation. Sir John Thompson, Sir J. C. Abbott, Hon. McKenzie Bowell, Sir Charles Tupper, Sir Robert Borden and Hon. Arthur Meighen, all Conservative Premiers were selected in this time honored way, and it would be as well for our Grit friends to cease from worrying over the matter.

The innocent simplicity with which Liberals often put their foot in it, when preparing some artificial concoction of dope for their readers, will compel you to smile in spite of yourself. One of their canned articles, sent out from Ottawa, describes the "new platform for nationals" as "Toryism incarnate." It then goes on to point out that it was the same old party, that their policy was the same "old dry bones," and that there was "a distinction without a difference." The funny part of their story is that the only change made in this "old dry bones" Conservative policy was the "introduction of a few Liberal planks," after which it became "Toryism incarnate." If this bit of information is true then the sooner these planks are removed the better for the National party. And if a few select Liberal planks would so seriously change the character of so great a party, what a demoralizing effect the whole thing would have if it were loose upon the country.

The Lusk committee which has been investigating the sugar situation in New York, has disclosed some remarkably facts, leading to the conclusion that the "American housewife" has been "robbed," by "broker speculators" and "toll operators." Amongst its findings are, that "more sugar than ever has come into the country, and more than ever has been held back from the trade." Nearly a million tons of Cuban sugar is being held from the American market for obvious reasons, and that sugars for which the planters were paid 61-2 cents, are being exploited at from 25 to 28 cents per pound. They claim that sugar should be sold at from 13 to 19 cents, according to location and cost of handling conditions, and they recommend that a decree is needed from the President to get the Sugar Equalization Board at work again. Information from many other sources impress upon us these facts; that more sugar is being consumed today than ever before in the world's history; that the supply in proportion to demand retains the same ratio as in other years, and that the supply is ample for the world's needs, and that we are indebted to the holding up of supplies, speculation and profiteering, for the present tension of the markets. The enormous dividends returned by sugar corporations is an indisputable evidence of this.

The adage "Honesty is the best policy" can find no favor or acceptance with the Bell Government. Their whole attitude is repugnant to anything of the kind. If an unfortunate private individual, driven to it by stern necessity, obtained money under false pretences, the whole local machine would be at the command of the Attorney-General to punish the offender. It has leaked out that the robbing in of the innocent and unhappy, in the matter of the illegal income tax, was a deliberate action. Long ago the government

New York Sun: Was there ever such a chance to make provision for the old age of one's self and for the future of one's family. With such an opportunity, probably never again to occur in the history of the world could there be anything more foolish, more wicked, than for the worker and earner to spend his all when he might save part of it? Could there be anything more selfish than for him to waste a dollar bill today when he knows that some day perhaps only a year or two hence, his improvidence may cost the children he leaves behind him a two dollar bill?

Cadets

Sir,—I have read with deepest interest the articles which have appeared in your paper during the past few days concerning Cadets and Cadet Instructors for the Province. Let me say as an old pedagog—one who has taught Physical Training to the pupils entrusted to my guidance on Prince Edward Island over fifteen years ago—that I consider Physical Training and Cadet Drill two of the finest "man builders" ever known.

Since I have returned from overseas, even although I have retired from the teaching profession years ago my interest in school work has by no means been lessened.

Now Sir, the only way our system of Cadet or Physical Training can be successful or beneficial is by skilful organization, and in this connection might I suggest the following:

This summer we are sending to Halifax some of our finest young men for a 30 days course. Out of this number let us select one of the most promising to act as "Supervisor and organizer of Cadet Corps on Prince Edward Island. Should there be any returned men taking this course I would suggest that they, of course, be given the preference. Let this man be paid a fixed salary sufficient to make his work worth while.

His duties: 1 Organize and supervise all Cadet Corps on the Province. 2. Act as Physical Training and Cadet Instructor for the Normal School and City schools during the winter. 3 Let him be given a course of sufficient duration at Halifax or elsewhere to enable him to train the male teachers of the Province for a period of three weeks during the first part of the school vacation. Why? In order that they may, in turn, train the boys of the Province at a summer camp for the remainder of the vacation period. I would suggest that summer Camp be established at the following centres: Summerside, Charlottetown, Georgetown and Alberton.

In this way Sir, I think we shall have Cadet Camps of which every one in the Province will be justly proud and our boys will grow up with correct ideas of what is expected of them as citizens of the country and should the war dream ever heard around their crescent home they will nobly respond as the Boy Scouts of France and Belgium—yea the whole world—in the last titanic conflict.

Thanking you for your valuable space and trusting to hear of a better scheme from some of our noble sons—and parents too.

I am Sir etc.

D. F. B. S.

we were aware that no one had been assessed and no one owed any 1919 income tax to them. With the facts before them they decided to collect what they could and let the balance go. This meant that they would dip into the pockets of the innocent and confiding, and improperly take from them what money they could get, and use this in the public service. If the people were all of the class who delight in shady business, this move might be popular. But the mass of our citizens scorn dishonesty, and do not want to be accounted as parties to the receiving of ill-gotten wealth. The Hon. W. M. Lea, who as Provincial Secretary Treasurer is head of the tax collection department, has often talked honesty and fairness in the House. Here is an opportunity for him to demonstrate his character, to make amends to those who have been wrongfully induced to pay money into the department, and to protect the honor of the people, by returning these funds to which they have no right.

Sinn Fein Courts Superseding Crown

DUBLIN, July 10. — Evidence is piling up here which seemingly would indicate that the newly organized Sinn Fein courts rapidly are superseding in power the Crown Supreme Court because it is stated, that the litigants have little confidence in the power of that court. For the same reason it is alleged that Unionists are appealing to the Sinn Fein lower courts. One Unionist attorney is credited with saying that it was useless to take a case before the Crown court and that as his client desired "quick action he took the case to a Sinn Fein tribunal."

Railwaymen who have been dismissed for refusing to move trains carrying police or soldiers have put forward a new plan. They contend that they are acting within the Board of Trade regulations in refusing to work because of restrictions against carrying of "dangerous objects." They threaten action against the railroads for wrongful dismissal.

A letter recently received by the authorities was from a woman to the military officials. It requested that troops be sent to protect loyalists. The woman was held before a Sinn Fein court and fined 150 pounds. This she paid.
