

"My Boy was Starving to Death"
"As He Was Getting No Nourishment He Was Gradually Wasting Away."

"Here's a story which will interest every mother. Before my boy was born, I was in such delicate health that the doctor didn't think I would survive the ordeal. For weeks after, he was born my life was despaired of, so I couldn't feed him and the poor little fellow was left to the care of his friends. He wasn't naturally strong. No care was taken in choosing his food and his poor little stomach became so weakened that he couldn't keep anything on it. As he was getting no nourishment from his food, he was gradually wasting away. Finally, in desperation, we sent for a child specialist and he said that my boy was starving to death. He gave him some medicine and it proved a certain diet. The child did improve but somehow couldn't seem to get strong. This went on for four or five years and the boy still continued weak and puny looking. He could not play like other children without having to lie down and rest. My sister who lives on a farm near the sea, said that she could fix him up if I would send him to her. While I hated being separated from him, I was ready to make any sacrifice to get him strong. He was away from me for a year and a half. When he came back, he was a different boy. He was strong, healthy and happy. He was a regular 'fan' for Carnol and never lost a chance to boost it. As I write I am looking out of the window and when I see that rosy, active, healthy child running round, I cannot believe that he was once a puny, delicate boy."

Carnol is sold by your druggist, and if you can conscientiously say, after you have tried it, that it hasn't done you any good, return the empty bottle to him and he will refund your money.

The Girl Who Had No Chance

By MARION RUBINCAM

A NEW TYPE

Chapter 41

The door opened and the most beautiful girl Ruth had ever seen came in. She was bundled to her ears in a magnificent opera cape of rose velvet, which set off her great black eyes and her glossy black hair as nothing else could have done. She had clear white skin and a flush of color too lovely to be anything but real. Her hair was pulled back to show her ears—beautiful little ears they were. When she turned her profile it was to show a nose with only enough arch to make it slightly patrician and a sofly rounded chin set off by an amazingly long line down the chin and throat. She dropped her cape, and stood there in the simplest serge dress. Myra laughed then introduced Ruth.

"Gabrielle Cortez," she said, pronouncing the last name Spanish fashion, as though it ended in 'eh.' "I've written about her. We're living in this hole while Emily's gone. Gaby what a rig! Your best cape and your shabbiest dress." "Yes, I am a mixture," the newcomer answered complacently. "But I was late getting off, and couldn't find my street coat and this was on the bed, so I grabbed it. Anyway people hanging around stage doors like to see actresses sail forth in evening gowns and ermine. Makes them believe all the lobster and champagne stories of the chorus girl."

So she was an actress! Of course, Myra had written so, but Ruth had also forgotten. "You're the first actress I ever met," the girl ventured, looking in admiration at this beauty. "Darrin, you flatter me! I'm not an actress, though if you'll convince a few managers of that, I'll be forever grateful."

Suddenly Ruth knew where Myra's new manner came from. It was from Gabrielle. But with Myra it sounded foreignly curious. "I'm a chorus girl," Gaby went on. "Once I got as far as a small part in a musical show, and I had a huge salary for such parts. A hundred a week. I spent it faster than I made it but thank heaven I got enough clothes to last me for another week. I'm only a chorus girl at $35 a week now. So I walk instead of taxi riding, and I live in this hole near Broadway in a two room flat. Myra's apartment is just a few blocks away."

"Myra's lovely here," Ruth protested. "All our good things are Emily's. She's a duck, she gave us the best of what she left to fix up here. The rest of our belongings came from the 10 cent store." "Myra," Gaby called suddenly, jumping up. "I brought home my new dress." She ran from the room and presently came back in a gown that fairly took away Ruth's breath. If Myra had been so impressed, the woman who came back to them put her quite in the shade. The gown was burnt orange color, spangled all over, and slightly veiled with ruffles of net. It was astonishingly low, amazingly becoming and the great black feather fan simply added to the gorgeous effect.

"How much?" Myra asked critically. "Three weeks' salary," Gaby answered. "But it was reduced a lot and I couldn't resist it. I'm to pay $15 a week on it." "I'll be worn out before it's paid for," Myra prophesied. "Probably, but that's life. Some day I'll be rich and pay up all my bills. That will be one new sensation, at least!" Ruth stared curiously at this new type. Here was a way of taking debts! She lay awake all night thinking of her bills—and this woman cheerfully ran up hundreds of dollars without a thought. Gaby dined with her, fan and sang a snatch of a popular song, experimenting before a mirror to get the best effect as she sang.

"Aren't you both starved," she asked presently, tossing the fan to the couch. "I am. I'm going to make some hot cakes." "I'm reducing, I can't eat them," Myra said, picking up the discarded fan and waving it lazily. "All right, I'll make you a salad. Ruth can stand hot cakes though." The girl was pleased at once. She liked Gabrielle enormously and wanted to know more about her. And she liked the way she was taken into the family, so to speak, and called by her first name. Gaby after five minutes was much more her friend than was Myra, her childhood chum! "Don't work. Let's go out and have a little supper somewhere." Myra rose from the couch, trailing her hand over her hair.

Elections in June Drury Heads Grits

BRANTFORD, March 6.—That the Provincial election would be held in June, and that when they came they would find Premier Drury leading the Liberal forces, as negotiations were now proceeding to that end, were now two startling items by Charles McCrea, M.L.A. of the South Brant Liberal-Conservative Association here this evening.

Will Abolish Old Legal Presumption

LONDON, March 6.—Second reading was given in the House of Lords today to the Criminal Justice Bill, which was drafted by the Lord Chancellor and is designed to abolish the ancient legal presumption that when a wife commits a crime in the presence of her husband she is acting under his coercion. The necessity for such a measure has been frequently stressed by judges. Recently there were several cases before the courts in which wives, charged jointly with their husbands, were in every case acquitted.

The Lord Chancellor today said the doctrine of coercion had no relation to present day realities. Presumption that every wife went in terror of her husband and would commit any crime under his influence, if ever true, was certainly not true today. Not every wife is a Lady Macbeth, he said, but generally speaking wives are free agents, and the question of their guilt or innocence should be considered on the facts.

Lord Buckmaster opposed the bill and held that human nature had not been changed by granting the vote to women, and there was no reason to alter a legal presumption which had existed for eleven hundred years. The memorandum of the bill, points out incidentally that no such presumption obtains in the laws of any of the British Dominions.

Alleged Assassin Is Under Arrest

STOCKHOLM, March 6.—The police are holding a German, Hans Henning Von Behr, on the allegation that he participated in the assassination of the German Foreign Minister, Dr. Walter Rathenau, last June, and in the attempt on the life of Phillip Schiedmann. According to the authorities, Von Behr, who arrived here by way of Kiel disguised as a sailor, confessed that he fired several shots at Dr. Rathenau under orders from a secret German society, and that some weeks later he participated in the assault on Herr Schiedmann.

"Can't spend the money!" Gaby had pulled aside a curtain, to disclose a kitchenette large enough for her to get in. "Your dress was more than a hundred, a supper won't be over a dollar." "Haven't the dollar to waste on suppers. Besides, I want to make cakes." And she did, the most delicious ones Ruth had ever tasted. It was a merry party of three after all. Ruth, under Gaby's direction, reached down dishes from the shelves of the kitchenette and set the table—the only available one to eat from. Myra kept her corner of the couch. And then when the meal was finished it was until after 1, and it was then long past midnight. "You can't go home alone at night, especially since you don't know the city, so we'll walk around with you," Gaby announced. And this time in her trim street coat, her evening gown changed for the little tailored dress she and Myra started out. Ruth's boarding house was not far away. And that night Ruth lay awake hours trying to clear her impressions. Gaby was adorable—Myra was changed. No word had been said about Tim. She wondered whether she would see him.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results. Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap, but it has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours and a very bad one in 48 hours. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time. It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic cough, hoarseness or bronchial asthma. Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its healing effect on the membranes. Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

State Management of Indian Railways

DELHI, India, March 6.—The Legislative Assembly yesterday adopted a resolution favoring full state management of the East Indian and Great Indian Peninsula Railways on the termination of their present contracts with the Government. This decision was taken after a motion had been moved by C.A. Innes, member of the Governor-General's Executive Council for Industries, for the taking over of the two railways as a temporary measure and Mr. Innes' explanation that the Government's policy of grouping the railways under state management was not to be adopted universally, and the Government did not intend to bolt the door against company management but indeed hoped in time to return to company management of these railways by real companies domiciled in India. Mr. Innes' motion was rejected by 65 votes to 42, and the Assembly on the same vote declared for state management.

When a mother detects from the writhings and frettings of a child that worms are troubling it, she can procure a reliable remedy in Miller's Worm Powders which will expel all worms from the system. They may cause vomiting but this need cause no anxiety, because it is but a manifestation of their thorough work. No worms can long exist where these powders are used.

Jap Cargo Vessel's Unusual Voyage

VANCOUVER, March 3.—City police, called by the officers of the Japanese cargo steamer Tabu Maru and immigration authorities, arrested nine alleged mutineers of the steamer's crew and twenty-nine stowaways when the vessel entered the harbor here late yesterday afternoon. The alleged stowaways were found along a search hidden in the port, bunkers of the ship. They are being held by immigration officers for deportation. According to the report of the captain of the steamer, shortly after leaving Kobe, Japan, bound for Vancouver, to load logs, a number of stowaways put in their appearance, and with the cooperation of some of the crew, defied the ship's officers. The men were armed, it is declared, and thus intimidated anyone who dared to interfere with them. The vessel's harbor she was met in the stream by the ship's agents and harbor officials. The police were summoned and arrests followed. The alleged mutineers appeared in Police Court this morning. The Tabu Maru carries a crew of 39 officers and men.

TICKET CLERK DYING FROM BULLET WOUND

OSHAWA, March 6.—Howley Byron, chief ticket clerk in the Oshawa Street Railway uptown office lies in the hospital hovering between life and death as the result of bullet wounds, one just below the heart and the other in the head, apparently self-inflicted. When Byron failed to appear at his office yesterday afternoon friends went to search for him as he was known to be in poor health, particularly from heart trouble. Eventually they found him in his summer cottage on the lake front. He was lying on the bed in an unconscious condition. A revolver was also found which had been taken from the office. Byron came to Oshawa from Gananogue some years ago and had become very popular in town.

Miners Buried In U. S. Blast

BLUFFFIELD, Va., March 6.—The bodies of six miners had been recovered late tonight from the mine of the Weyanoke, Coal and Coke Company, at Arista, Mercer County, which early today was shaken by a heavy explosion. Hope for rescuing alive five other miners of the thirty-eight entombed by the blast was abandoned when rescue workers said they were unable to reach the section of the mine where the men were at work when the explosion came. Afterwards which flooded the mine, following the explosion probably would prove fatal to the five still entombed, mine officials said. Seventy-five men were at work in the mine when its channels were rocked by the blast, 3,200 feet from the main opening. However, many of them were in other sections and were not caught by the crumbling of the walls. Of the 38 entombed, 27 only slightly injured, were rescued. The force of the ex-

Mrs. Kemal Pasha Pours 5 O'clock Tea For Newspapermen

ANGORA, Mar. 5.—Mrs. Mustafa Kemal held an at-home and poured tea for foreign newspapermen today, shattering a five-century tradition, and bringing a modern European atmosphere into the life of the new Turkish Government affairs. Mr. and Mrs. Kemal carried out the spirit of the interview when they discussed educational, industrial and professional walks of life, as well as their plans for establishing co-education throughout the schools. The Kemals live five miles out of town, in a house donated by the Grand National Assembly, which regards Kemal in the same light as Americans regarded George Washington. It is an Arabic structure two stories high, and located on a hill overlooking the Angora Valley for miles. The political and military side of Kemal is public, but his home life is a mystery, except to friends. Hence there was more than the usual anticipation among the guests, including a British newspaperman a photographer, Bulgarian newspapermen and myself, as we passed the sentries and arrived at the door, where a guard was ready to receive us. We entered a big ante-room with a marble fountain which was not running, in the middle of the teasettled tile floor, and were immediately ushered into a big room, where Premier Rauf Bey introduced us to Mr. and Mrs. Kemal. After the exchange of formalities, Mrs. Kemal directed the conversation to the sphere of women. She had numerous American friends, and her father is a former member of the New York City exchange. Though she never visited America, she was educated in England and France, and therefore, is quite familiar with women's activities in the United States. She laughed when a correspondent explained that American women usurped all the privileges of men without taking over the responsibilities, and it was the only place in the world where a sentimental jury would excuse the brutality of husband-killing. This was not the goal of Turkish women she said.

Propaganda Of Klan Causes Indignation

ALBANY N.Y., March 6.—Members of the New York State Legislature are being deluged with anonymous letters from persons stating they are members of the Ku Klux Klan. The letters assail Catholics and Jews and are propaganda against a Jew's just introduced for making public the list of members of the Klan in New York State. One letter received today quoted extensively from Rev. Charles Chiniquy's book, "Fifty years in the church of Rome" and stated that his expose of a supposed attempt to destroy Protestant America had been proven by recent events. Responsibility for the wholesale destruction of Catholic churches in Canada and a few in the United States is put on the Klan by the writer, who says that "insultical scheming is being overcome by a flaming cross," which is "igniting Roman Catholic academies and nunneries." Legislators are indignant at the campaign and declare they will support the measure aimed to curb the activities of the Ku Klux Klan. The Post office department may investigate in an effort to locate the

Washington Expects Hostilities Again

NEW YORK, March 6.—A special to the Tribune from Washington, says that so serious is the situation in the Ruhr now regarded in the U.S. capital that "no one would be surprised at an outbreak of hostilities which would lead to renewal of war at any moment." "Not even at the moment the French troops began their advance in that region," the dispatch continues, "was such a danger of hostilities as great as now in the opinion of Washington officials." The newspaper adds that the uncertainties of developments in the Near East as well as the Ruhr situation add to the feeling of apprehension in Washington.

Gray Hair Becomes Dark And Beautiful

Try Grandmother's Old, Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays we simply ask at our drug store for "Wet's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.
