Poultry On The Prairies

The Prairies are appreciating the poultry route is being recognized, says the Dominion Poultry Husbandman, for in three years the poultry population of the three Prairie Provinces increased over four million, and in 1931 nearly one half of Canada's poultry was on the prairies. In the whole of Canada there is only one province—Ontario—that has more poultry than Saskatchewan and Alberta. Of the millions of bushels of grain consumed by poultry each year, nearly one half of it is fed in these provinces. Saskatchewan alone has nearly as many head of poultry as the provinces of Prince Edward Island, British Columbia, and Quebec combined.

HEALTH

by DR. LEONHARDT

A HEALTH SERVICE OF THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION AND LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES IN CANADA

CHOREA

Chorea, better known as St. Vitus' Dance, is a disease of children, children between five and fifteen years of age being the most frequent victims. It is more often seen among girls than boys, and it appears to select what is described as the over-active, highly-strung, excitable child.

The cause of chorea is not definitely known, but it is generally agreed that it is an infection due to the same germ that causes rheumatic fever. This opinion is held because of the frequent association of chorea and rheumatic fever, and because, in both conditions, the heart is affected. In chorea, however, the heart is not so severely affected and the fever does not occur in children without any of the joint symptoms which are commonly associated with the disease.

Other factors such as shock, fright exposure to wet or cold, have all been considered as being immediate or precipitating causes, but it has not been shown that they are, in any sense, the real cause of chorea.

The onset is usually gradual. It will be noticed that the child is nervous and irritable. He has some difficulty in using his limbs, as if ericised by his drooping or unsteady things and his occasional stumbles and falls. These signs are followed by irregular, jerky movements, which may be limited or general, mild or severe. There is a marked loss of appetite, the child tires easily and, not infrequently, he complains of headache.

In addition to the physical symptoms, there occurs a marked change in the disposition of the child, with irritability and emotional outbursts. The disease, even in its mildest forms, requires adequate treatment. Following recovery from the attack, definite steps should be taken to prevent a recurrence.

Prevention of further attacks will include a consideration of the tonsils, which, if diseased, should be removed. The next step is to build up attention to diet, fresh air, exercise, and rest.

Until the child reaches a stage of good health, he requires extra rest together with the avoidance of any physical or mental strain. As long as the child is below par, he should be guided away from competitive sports, and from exciting or worrying tasks. It takes time, even in a child to rebuild health, and the process demands understanding and patience, together with perseverance, on the part of parents.

Questions concerning health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

Harvesting In India

Harvest time varies in different parts of India between March and April. The wheat is allowed to get dead ripe before it is harvested and cutting is all done by hands by means of small tools. The cutting is generally done by labourers on the share system. The stalks are cut into small bundles for a contract cash payment of approximately a dollar an acre. From the harvest fields the bundles are brought in carts to the threshing floor where the grain is trodden out by bullocks. These bullocks walk round a central pole to which they are tied, treading out the grain as they go round. The work is irksome and slow. In addition to separating the grain, the action of the hoofs of the bullocks is to bruise and break up the dry straw into small fragments. This broken straw is known as bhussa and is the chief form of cattle fodder for the rest of the year. The grain is threshed from the chaff by hand during the prevalence of strong west winds—G. S. Henderson, Director of Agriculture, Bihar and Orissa, India.

Insect Immune Trees

The evident selection exercised by insects for certain individual trees or for trees in a definite condition of health is a matter of the greater importance. It is well known that even at the height of a severe outbreak certain individual trees may be completely exempt from injury. Many examples of this individual immunity have appeared in the course of investigations by the Dominion Entomological Branch, and it has sometimes been suggested that immune trees of trees might be propagated from these individuals with great advantage to forestry.

Grading Up Pigs

In the grading up of pigs, the method of breeding which seems to offer the greatest source of revenue with the least expenditure for breeding stock is that of breeding up the stock from common or grade stock to higher grades through the use of pure-bred boars of one breed on common or grade sows of good quality. Sows of this description can be secured for a small cash outlay, and, provided discretion is exercised in selecting sows and mating them to suitable pure-bred boars of a recognized breed, very rapid progress can be made in the development of a strain of bacon pigs which will run the pure-bred hog a hard race for the honours in the production of select breeding and feeding the Market Hog pamphlet, Dominion Department of Agriculture.

K. OF C. WIN CAPE BRETON HOCKEY TITLE

SYDNEY, N. S., Feb. 14.—(C. P.) Knights of Columbus won the Cape Breton hockey championship by scoring their second consecutive win over Dominos 3-4 here tonight. Knights will enter the Nova Scotia championship playoffs next week with the winners of the A. F. C. League.

Tonight's game was fast and clean with only five penalties being given. Don McAdam shot the first goal on an end to end rush half way through the opening period. But Hughie McDougall put Dominos on an even footing in the second. Tommy Young put the game away for Knights when he broke through the defence to blast the rubber past Gordon Campbell and Pat McAdam lengthened the lead when he carried the puck down the ice in the dying moments of the final period. He tripped as he was about to shoot, but the momentum carried the rubber into the cage.

Reid's Corner Eliminated By Indian River

In what was easily the best hockey debauch out to the North Shore League fans this winter, the Indian River Rovers eliminated the Reid's Corner Tigers by defeating them 3-1 in the game and 4-0 on the round. Brilliant work on the part of both goalies featured the exciting tilt and many sure-fire recipes for red-light displays were scored by the sticks, gloves and pads of the two redoubtable goalies between the posts. E. Mill batted the disk past McQuarrie from a scramble in the first period and the hard-fighting Tigers never managed to pull up on even terms with their opponents afterwards. The tally that boosted the Rovers into the finals was the result of a fine display of stick manipulating by R. Hecker on left wing. Picking the puck up at his own blue line, he scooted down the left boards, veered to centre, stick-handling his way through the defence, was checked partly off balance as he went through, but recovering, pounced on the loose water and drilled it into the cords. It was a fighting band of Tigers who desperately strove to overcome their two-goal deficit in the final frame. H. Lefurgue, shifted to the forward line, was easily the most effective player on the ice during this period. His relentless boring in and bullet drives gave his team their lone counter, and he was robbed of enough others to change the verdict, by the brilliant Tuplin in the Indian River net. O. Mill took a pass from his brother Egin and restored to the Rovers their two-goal lead, thus relieving the tension.

F. Pidgeon and G. Webster refereed and handed out eight penalties which the teams divided equally.

Kensington High Defeats W. K. S.

The Kensington High School 6-1 defeated the West Kent boys 3-1 in a game at Kensington Saturday afternoon. All the goals were well-earned results of clever combination plays. The Charlottetown boys opened the scoring when Jay drew the defence and snatched a pass to Rattenbury early in the first period. Kensington tied it up a minute before the bell. E. Hughes slipping the wafer to B. Higgins on left wing, who coasted in and let loose from short range.

The winning counter was chalked up half way through the middle session. E. Hughes again engineering the play. N. Hog took his short forward pass handy the net and sagged the draperies. The goal was scored.

KENTVILLE ELIMINATED

KENTVILLE, N. S., Feb. 14.—(C. P.) Port Williams eliminated Kentville in the first playoff game of the Kings County League by defeating Atlantics 7-5 in a free scoring game here tonight. Forcible work on the part of the Kings and a 4-7 score and now move into the semi-finals against Berwick Bruins.

Atlantics tried hard to overcome the one goal lead chalked up by Port in last night's game, but were outplayed by the visitors and when the gong ended the first period, Port were leading 4-1. Atlantics almost evened matters in the second with two quick goals. But Port again took a commanding lead with an additional two goals late in the period. Each team collected a marker in the final.

S'ide Curlers

The curlers at Summerside continue to enjoy good sport on the rinks. The rink skipped by E. P. Foley with Joe Wood, Joe Dechant and W. W. Muttart as team mates has been declared Club champions for the 1933-34 season.

Foley's win over Tiftus on Friday night gave him a total of ten wins and only three losses. As this record could not be equaled the series has been discontinued.

The Commercial series is taking the interest of the members now. On Friday, the Fire Dept. and the P. S. Dealers played several extra ends but had to declare their match a draw as the ice was booked for other matches.

The Fox Association won from Holman's and A. Horne & Co. won from the Fox Breeders.

The Lawyers won from the Canadian Bank of Commerce; A. Horne & Co. won from McArthur Block and The Curlers won from the Board of Trade—S.
